U.S. Would Defer Draft, Call Guard

200,000 Militiamen Would Be Mobilized By January 1 Under New Program

By John G. Norris.
Post Staff Writer

Army plans for mobilizing practically the entire National Guard by January 1 and deferment of conscription later than originally scheduled were revealed yesterday as opponents of the draft continued their denunciation of the measure in the Senate.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, declared passage of the bill would "slit the throat of the last democracy still living" and challenged its proponents to stump the country with him on the issue this fall.

Concluding a long attack on the draft measure, which took up most of the day, Wheeler turned to the backers of the bill, declaring:

Up to Willkie, Says Johnson

"I challenge you to come into Montana where I am up for reelection and make my opposition to this bill an issue. I ask you to come into my State and debate it with me. I will come into your States and debate it with you, if you dare to invite me."

The political phase of the conscription bill was injected into the current debate again later in the day, as Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, said that Wendell Willkie held the fate of the measure "in the hollow of his hand."

Johnson, an opponent of the draft, predicted that if Willkie approved the bill in his acceptance speech Saturday, it would pass without difficulty, but his opposition would render it a "dead issue."

Draft to Be Deferred

"If he approves it vigorously," Johnson said, a dozen timid Democratic Senators and 50 election-conscious Congressmen will be free to support it, since it will then no longer be a campaign issue. If Willkie straddles the issue Congress will follow suit by adopting some

'Really, I'm A Bit Tired, You Know'

"AND NOW IF YOU'LL EXCUSE ME," said Josephine Allfrey, 9-year-old British war refugee, after she told a Post reporter how she finally got out of the hotel room in which she locked herself, "I'm a bit tired, you know"

British Girl, 9, Admits Planes Worried Her

Child Had Her Choice Of Going to Scotland Or Here—Chose U. S.

Much less frightened than by the bombs she saw dropped on her native England, 9-year-old Josephine Allfrey last night sat uncomplainingly through the ordeal of being locked alone in a hotel room while hotel employes worked vainly to free her.

The rosy-cheeked British youngster arrived in Washington with her American guardian, Mrs. Harold T. Pulsifer, chairman of the Women's Mercy Ships Committee, who came here to testify on the Glass Bill to allow American ships to evacuate Europe's child refugees.

With her brother, Philip, 5, and four other English children, Josephine has been living at Mrs. Pulsifer's home in East Harpswell, Me. Their parents, Robert E. Allfrey, airplane designer, and Mrs. Allfrey, are in England.

A Post reporter and photographer arrived outside Josephine's room in the Washington Hotel to find that the child had unwittingly locked herself in. She had turned two bolt-type catches in addition to the doorkey and was securely imprisoned.

Mrs. Pulsifer had been forced to leave the child alone in order to attend a meeting, Josephine later explained.

With encouragement from the outside, Josephine worked for several minutes attempting to solve the combination of the three locks.

The maid in charge of the corridor was called, but her passkey proved worthless in the face of the

Gasoline Retailers Warned Against Price Fixing

Washington's gasoline retailers will face antitrust prosecution if they attempt to end their price war by agreement, a Justice Department spokesman warned yesterday.

James C. Wilson, of the Justice Department's antitrust complaint division, told The Post that any price-fixing attempts will be investigated promptly.

Wilson's statement followed a broadside against "nearsighted businessmen" delivered by the Washington Retail Gasoline Dealers, an association of almost 100 service station operators.

Spurious Votes Back New Deal, Willkie Says

Agrees With Landon That Democrats Rely on Machines

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, Aug. 13.—Wendell L. Willkie and Alf M. Landon contended today it was the policy of the Administration to try to reelect President Roosevelt with "fraudulent votes" cast by municipal political machines.

In a coincidental statement, Willkie demanded that the Democratic National Committee return $640,000 he said had been collected in the sale of advertising for Democratic campaign books.

Willkie said $140,000 had been collected this year and, since it had been decided not to distribute the Democratic campaign books, the money should be returned immediately.

He added that $500,000 of adver-

Adkins Is Leading In Arkansas Vote

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 13 (AP).—Homer M. Adkins, former United States revenue collector Arkansas, took a big lead over Gov. Carl E. Bailey in tabulations from the Democratic gubernatorial primary early tonight.

In 1,238 precincts out of 2,002, the unofficial returns gave Adkins 62,848, and Bailey 46,912, while J. Rosser Venable, Little Rock World War veteran, and Frank Witte, Magnolia merchant, had only a few hundred.

In the Lieutenant Governor's race, the incumbent, Bob Bailey, led his field by a comfortable margin.

Police Hero Is Wounded

Detective Baker Gravely Hurt In Scuffle With Theft Suspect

Shot with his own gun in a struggle in the 1300 block of Fourth street northwest, Detective Sergt. Earl Baker, 43, of the Metropolitan Police clothing squad, was critically wounded in the chest about 12:30 a. m. today.

Blood donors were called soon after he was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Baker told fellow officers, who found him when they answered an anonymous telephone call, that he had been shot by a colored man he was attempting to arrest.

Cruising in the vicinity, he sighted the man, sought for housebreaking, in another car and forced him to the curb. The man jumped out and fled. Baker said he then overtook him and, after a struggle in which both fell to the pavement, subdued him and started toward the police call box.

At the box, the prisoner put up another struggle, both fell again and Baker's gun dropped from the holster. The man retrieved it, shot the officer and fled with the gun, leaving Baker unconscious.

Baker has twice been cited for heroism by the District Commissioners, the last time for shooting the leader of Washington's "black face bandit gang" in 1935 during a holdup of the Blue Bell Cafe, 3335 Bladensburg road northeast.

For the act he received a gold medal, the highest award in the department.

Jackson Lists Hatch Law Violations

Circular Informs U. S. Attorneys Of Criminal Acts To Be Prosecuted

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson last night announced that he has issued a circular instructing all United States attorneys in the violations of the Hatch "clean politics" Act that will bring Federal prosecution.

At the same time he said the Department of Justice no longer will attempt to answer "general inquiries with respect to the meaning and interpretation of the Hatch Act in particular situations."

The announcement came in the midst of attacks by Democrats and Republicans alike on the Democratic National Committee's plans to issue another campaign book containing advertisements of corporations barred by the corrupt practices act from making direct political contributions.

May Drop Campaign Book

Likewise it followed closely the controversy over an opinion by Henry P. Fletcher, general counsel of the Republican National Committee, that the Hatch act's limitation of $5,000 on an individual's party donation might be circumvented by giving a national committee only that amount, with additional contributions to State or local committees.

With relation to these two controversies the Jackson statement said that "the following criminal acts are punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000 or five years' imprisonment:

"The making of an annual contribution in excess of $5,000 to or for any campaign for the nomination or election of any candidate for an elective Federal office. The annual limitation likewise applies to a contribution made to any political committee or to any national political party.

96 English Craft Lost, Berlin Avers

Area 300 Miles Wide 'Pulverized' For Invasion, Press Declares

By C. Brooks Peters

Berlin (Wednesday), Aug. 14. Wave upon wave of death-dealing German bombers roared over the coast of southern England yesterday, the high command declared, destroying airports, firing oil tanks, wrecking antiaircraft batteries and shattering searchlights in the "pulverizing" process, seemingly designed to pave the way for still more serious activities.

Put on the "Pressure"

Yesterday, the Germans say, their air force really put on the pressure. It is reliably reported that larger concentrations of German bombers, accompanied and protected by fast, deft fighter planes, were engaged in these activities than have ever before appeared over the British Isles.

As a result, the Germans claim their greatest victory since the attack on the British seriously began. Latest reports, it is declared, show 96 British planes destroyed during the day, while the German losses were only 24, five members of the crews of which were rescued.

Fifty British planes were shot down over the British Isles and the Channel; 16 in the course of a British attack on the Danish city of Aalborg, while 30 were destroyed on the ground in attacks on British flying fields.

Claim Mastery of Air

The air attacks of the last three days, the Germans emphasize, should be viewed as one great battle, the largest of this war, which has given them, the Germans claim, unchallenged mastery of the air over the Channel and southern England.

Most of the German attacks have been concentrated on the coast from Plymouth to Dover and the mouth of the Thames, and from the Isle of Wight inland to Aldershot

'A Slight Vibration'

Three Waves of Nazi Planes Bomb and Strafe Southampton

Air Raid Shelter Is Struck Squarely But Not One of 100 Inside It Is Hurt; Defense Squadron Fells 14 Invaders

By William J. Humphreys.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Southampton, Aug. 13.—Three successive waves of Nazi bombers sowed destruction today on Southampton, largest city strafed by the raiders and one of the most important ports on the English Channel.

Buildings were rattled by heavy explosions which took an undisclosed toll—and overhead British fighter planes tangled in fierce air fights with the invaders. One defense squadron alone, already credited with bringing down seven Nazi planes yesterday, smashed 14 more today without a single loss.

One big bomb exploded squarely on an air raid shelter which held 100 persons, and not one was injured.

"All we felt," said one, "was a slight vibration, and dust fell on us."

They had to be told that the shelter was set afire, on the outside, by the explosion. Firemen soaked the blazing exits so the occupants of the shelter could get out.

Several persons in the bomb-strewn city which has a normal population of 180,000 (now much less), told of narrow escapes from death.

(The dispatch, filed through British censorship, made no mention of the number killed—if any.)

One man was said to have been blown out of a building hit squarely by a bomb, and hurled 25 yards through what a few seconds before had been a plate-glass window of another building. He got up, apparently unhurt, and sought shelter elsewhere.

The air ministry said the raiders who hit here also attacked the Kentish coast to the east before sweeping across this city at the head of Southampton Water, reaching in from the Channel behind the Isle of Wight.

At Southampton alone the British

Cudahy Back Under Orders Not to Talk

Minister to Belgium Denies Criticizing American Soldiers

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13.—John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, who was reprimanded by the State Department last week for expressing his views on the Belgian situation, returned today on the Dixie Clipper, under instruction, he said, "not to talk at this time."

Asked if he had criticized the American Army, he replied: "I was a member of the United States Army in north Russia, and if I criticized the United Staes Army I would be criticizing my own army. I am being questioned about an outrageous statement." He said he had not given any statement to newspapermen abroad criticizing American soldiers.

He was quoted in the interview as saying that the German army behaved better than American soldiers would have in the same circum-

Sen. Thomas Leads In Idaho Primary

Boise, Aug. 13 (AP).—Senator John Thomas established a commanding lead for nomination on the Republican ticket tonight in early returns from the State's primary election.

Returns from 9 out of 792 precincts gave Thomas 677 votes to 284 for for his six opponents combined.

Mayor Chase A. Clark, of Idaho Falls, seeking Democratic nomination for the Governor's seat now occupied by Republican C. A. Bottolfsen, had 953 votes to 650 for Attorney General J. W. Taylor and 163 for James L. Barnes, of Hansen, on returns from 12 precincts.

Greeks Angling For Albania, Italians Say

Il Duce Seen Ready To Demand Slices Of Greece, Yugoslavia

By the Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 13.—Italian spokesmen accused Greece tonight of having territorial designs on Italy's Albanian domain and indicated that Premier Mussolini sooner or later will demand slices of both Greek and Yugoslav territory in a "general settlement" for Albania.

The Italian press has been hitting at Greece since the week-end disclosure of the death of an Albanian patriot, Daut Hoggia, at the hands, the Italians said, of two Greek assassins. Italians also charged Greece is a "silent ally" of Great Britain in the war.

[The New York Times said Italy's campaign against Greece certainly will climax in a crisis owing to the violence of the language used by such officially inspired commentators as Virginio Gayda and Giovanni Ansaldo. How far it will go is not yet possible to gauge since it will depend in part on Greece's return and to a much larger extent on what Italy intends to make of it.]

Fascist Leader Slain

Yugoslavia entered the Italian picture only today, when the newspaper La Tribuna reported the killing of a minor Fascist leader, Leonardo Ciurcovich, in the Italian town of Zara on the Yugoslavia coast because he objected to a stranger singing a Slav song on Zara's streets.

Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor and often Mussolini's mouthpiece, said the Italian government expected Greece to "answer for its new crimes." Gayda declared Italy could not tolerate Greece's "acts against the independence of Albania" and accused Greece of de-

78 German Aircraft Shot Down, London Says

Great Fires Set In Midlands; R. A. F. Raids 17 Enemy Airdromes

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Aug. 14.—Nazi warplanes shrieked over the length and breadth of Britain early today, scourging the industrial Midlands and North Scotland and plunging into the fourth day of an unremitting assault on the south shore, apparently aimed at smashing out an invasion "bridgehead."

Planes came over the Midlands, heart of industrial England, in seven or eight waves.

The defense of this island mounted in tempo with the hourly increasing threat of invasion, a threat enhanced by a clash of light-draft naval vessels in the Channel during yesterday's gigantic aerial conflict.

The British, despite their preoccupation with bringing down 78 of an estimated 300 attacking German planes yesterday, apparently found time to give Germany a new dose of her own medicine.

Air Raid Alarm in Berlin

Berlin had a 47-minute air raid alarm this morning, and the big wireless station at Bremen shut down abruptly, a possible sign of R. A. F. planes in the vicinity.

(Bern, Switzerland, also had an hour's alarm, when "foreign planes" were heard.)

Some Britons even speculated that Germany might give up the invasion idea and try an aerial "starvation" blockade instead.

"This in fact the beginning of blitzkrieg," the Times of London commented, however "the assault upon Great Britain is working to a crescendo . . . If the project of invasion is still seriously entertained—and the organization set up for the purpose is elaborate—all this is obviously preparation for a landing. On that assumption, the air attack

Many Feared Dead in Tennessee Flood Waters

Elizabethton, Tenn., Aug. 14 (AP) (Wednesday).—An undetermined number of persons were believed to have drowned in the Rivesta section, near Elizabethton's rayon plants, Sergt. Claude Buckles of the State highway patrol said early today.

Buckles said water was at least 50 feet deep and still rising, and authorities had been unable to get in with boats.

About 250 to 300 persons live in the section which is near the Watauga River.

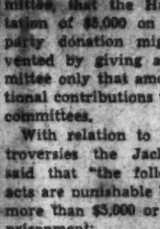
Some people in the Rivesta section were reported clinging to trees to avoid being swept away in the swirling waters.

The Gallup Poll:

Sharp Defection From Roosevelt Found Among Voters in Large Cities

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 13.—The big cities of the Nation, which were Democratic holds in the last Party strong-two elections, show a marked swing away from President Roosevelt in the latest surveys by the American Institute.



DR. GALLUP

Cities of more than 500,000 inhabitants show a Democratic defection of more than 14 percentage points since 1936. The shift is particularly striking in New York and Chicago. In Chicago, which voted two to one for Roosevelt four years ago, the Institute poll found Roosevelt leading Wendell Willkie by a margin of only 2 per cent today.

However, Roosevelt carried the big city vote by such a large margin in 1936 that, even with the defection, he still runs ahead of Willkie in the large urban centers.

The poll was conducted on the question, "If the election were held today, would you vote for Roosevelt or Willkie?"

CITIES OF 500,000 AND OVER

For Willkie	43

The defection in the last four years can be seen from the fact that in the 1936 election these same areas voted 71 per cent for Roosevelt, 29 per cent for the Republican candidate, Alf M. Landon.

The trend since 1936 in the three largest cities, New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, is shown in the following comparison:

	For Roosevelt 1936	Pls. Today	Chge.
Chicago	67	51	—16
Philadelphia	62	56	— 6
New York	75%	62%	—13

Reports on opinion in all the individual leading cities will be published before the end of the month.

The significance of the big city trend is that Willkie has made important gains in the very places where the New Deal is strongest. Roosevelt's landslide in 1936 would not have been possible without the big city vote. Cities of 500,000 and over account for more than 20,000,000 of the total national population.

Results: To Date

In addition to today's results, the Gallup poll has found and previously reported the following facts about the Roosevelt-Willkie campaign to date:

National popular vote—Roosevelt 51 per cent, Willkie 49 per cent.

Line-up of States—24 States for Roosevelt, 24 for Willkie.

The next complete report for the Nation will be published August 25 in The Washington Post.

Petain Rebukes Accused

France Indicts 'Monsieur X' Before 'War Guilt' Court

By the Associated Press

Riom, France, Aug. 13.—The government of Marshal Petain formally indicted tonight before a high court of last appeal the leaders whom it deems responsible for betraying the Third Republic by leading it, unready, into war.

It did not name them, but it lumped them as a composite "Monsieur X" in a general complaint. The court itself will fix individual responsibility.

As the blanket charge was placed before the nation's new Supreme Court, the old marshal, chief of state, went before the radio with a stinging rebuke for those who stand accused—who obviously include, among others, former Premier Daladier and former Generalissimo Gamelin. He said France fell before laziness, incompetence "and even sabotage," intended to create social disorder or international revolution.

Bitterly, Petain added that the causes of France's plight had not yet disappeared; would not disappear until there is "a change of men."

Enemies of the state, he charged, still were operating in the unoccupied part of France, and he informed the nation there would be changes shortly to wipe out the

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Sitting in the Senate press gallery, I had been musing that there were too few young men in official Washington. Then the somewhat underdone Rush Holt, the Senatorial accident from West Virginia, began to talk, and for a moment I was strongly prejudiced in favor of graybeards.

Harlan Miller

Yet, despite the damning evidence of Rush Holt, it is true. This is the much heralded age of youth. But where are young men? Perhaps 40 members of Congress are under 40. In the departments there is a scattering of men in the thirties in important if inconspicuous places.

* * * *

But no member of the Cabinet is under 40, and only one—Jackson—is under 50. No justice of the Supreme Court (quite properly) is under 40, and only two are under 50. There are no generals or admirals in their 30's, and probably none in his 40's, which is all wrong.

* * * *

I have before me a list of 135 men under 40 in the Government here. One-third of these are Congressmen. Most of the rest are experts of one sort or another—economists, scientists, statisticians. Goverment lawyers. Some are well known here. Most are unknown outside the Capital and their own home towns.

"—heavy going for young men"

A handful, but only a handful, have made their force felt. Tom Corcoran, for one, whether he frightens you or not; Ezekiel, the economist; John Barriger and Willis Ballinger; Larry Duggan, of the State Department, and Ed Foley, of the Treasury; Corrington Gill, of WPA.

* * * *

Many of the rest are forceful, too; but their force is ameliorated, for better or for worse, by middle-aged superiors who sit on the lid, coasting, maintaining precedents, throttling innovations, waiting for the bell . . . Perhaps this is as it should be; maybe it's safer.

* * * *

But in a peculiar way this situation deprives more than half the population of adequate representation in the Government. More than half of the people have 30 to 60 years of activity ahead of them, and they are governed and guided largely by men with only ten years of activity left

* * * *

This means that officialdom largely is pointing at 1950 as the end of the rainbow, and too few are thinking of 1970 or 1980 or 1990, when half the Americans alive today will still be alive. And this is true, even in a reform administration like the present one.

"—with pensions, no pushovers"

I'd be the last to deny that a man is wiser at 50 or 60 than he is at 30 or 40. But for his wisdom he pays with his diminishing vigor, daring, initiative and imagination. And he isn't much worried about what sort of a world this will be after 1960.

* * * *

Especially in Congress is the going tough for a young man. The older men hold the important posts, and through their long beards the younger men must cut their way with machetes.

* * * *

How many millions has it cost the country for the older men to fight their way, through reelection after reelection, up to seniority in a committee? How many pressure groups have been truckled to and bought off with appropriations?

* * * *

It might be less costly to pension members of Congress after a term or two. If it's a good thing to limit the Presidency to one six-year term, as I think it is, why isn't it good also to limit the tenure of Congressmen, eliminating also their endless struggle and scheming for reelection? With a pension, a member might not be such a pushover under pressure.

* * * *

To preserve some continuity, each State might be allowed one Representative at large, eligible to reelection for more than a term or two . . . It's a question whether 6 or 12 years isn't long enough for any Senator. . . . At least it seems a plausible thought as one sits in the gallery and listens to Senate debates these days . . . Maybe the younger men wouldn't be so much less effective.

Jones Foresees Export Subsidies

Must Act to Keep Trade, Loan Chief Tells Committee

The United States will have to subsidize exports of manufactured products "if we expect to have any exports at all," Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, told the House Banking and Currency Committee yesterday.

Testifying in favor of a bill granting $500,000,000 more lending authority to the Export-Import Bank, Jones took a gloomy view of the future of the American export market.

"If South American countries cannot export they will face a serious situation," he said,

He said that without American aid the other republics of this hemisphere would have a "difficult time."

Though he predicted an economic battle with totalitarian states that might involve wider export subsidies by the American Government, Jones insisted that the Export-Import Bank bill had "no flavor of a subsidy."

It is merely, he said, a matter of holding present customers and "getting more while we can."

Part of the $500,000,000 would definitely be used for financing industrialization of Latin America, Jones said in reply to a question by Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Massachusetts. Jones said no applications for loans have been received, but he said that he was sure Latin-American nations wanted the loans.

Jones envisaged growing commitments for the United States in Latin America.

Asked whether the United States might have to follow up its economic gestures toward neighbor nations with political and military measures, Jones replied:

"That ought to be in the back of everything we do."

Revealing more of the Administration's plans for action in this hemisphere, the loan administrator answered in the affirmative when asked if his agency would use any of the $500,000,000 for financing sale of war weapons to Latin America.

"Such a loan would have consideration," Jones said, to the question by Representative Crawford (Republican), of Michigan.

one where part or all of the proceeds directly or indirectly inure to the benefit of or for any candidate for an elective Federal office, or to the benefit of any political party or committee."

The bitter dispute over the campaign book, meanwhile, brought reports here, without confirmation, that when Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, of New York, takes up his duties next Saturday he will abandon plans to circulate the publication.

The reports came after both Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, and author of the Hatch law, and Attorney General Jackson on Monday severely criticized the fund-raising undertaking. Hatch called on his own party to end it, regardless of the cost, and Jackson warned against carrying out a plan to sell the book through local or State committees.

At Colorado Springs, Willkie, who on Sunday had warned corporations that all purchasers of advertising in the book would be prosecuted if he is elected, declared:

"I am gratified to learn that Attorney General Jackson and Senator Hatch have today joined in my campaign to prevent the Democratic National Committee from brazenly violating both the Corrupt Practices Act and the Hatch Act by the sale of the Democratic campaign book."

Criminal Acts Listed

Jackson's statement listed as another "criminal act" punishable by $5,000 fine or five years imprisonment "the making of, or promising to make a contribution to any political party, committee or candidate for public office by anyone who is negotiating for, or performing a Government contract."

He listed among violations subjecting one to a $1,000 fine or a year's imprisonment include:

Intimidation or coercion of voters.

Use of Federal authority and certain State authority to interfere in elections.

Promises for benefits in return for political support.

Depriving anyone of relief for political activity.

Soliciting of funds from Federal workers or relief clients.

Disclosure of Federal or relief rolls for political purposes.

The circular said the act limits to $3,000,000 annual receipt of contributions by any political committee and imposes a penalty of $10,000 and imprisonment for two years.

Federal agencies will enforce provisions restricting political activities of Federal employes to policy makers, Jackson said.

Alf Landon Taps At Willkie's Door

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

WHO SAID VACATION?—Wendell L. Willkie (right) has had a steady stream of visitors since his arrival in Colorado Springs, Colo. A caller yesterday was Alf M. Landon, the Republican candidate in 1936, who sat down to talk 1940 politics

Willkie, Landon Hit Machine Politics

tising revenues collected in the past also should be returned to corporations because such collections violated the corrupt practices act.

If the money is not immediately repaid, Willkie said, "then the corporations should demand payment at once and sue for the recovery if such demand is refused."

The nominee told his press conference he wanted to emphasize "that I will keep after this thing until they (the Democrats) pay back this money.

"A great many corporation officials have advised me that they were under pressure to make contributions. That is a direct violation of the Corrupt Practices Act. It is one of the most sinister things that could happen."

Landon, seated beside Willkie, said the November election "depends to a great extent upon how many fraudulent votes can be cast by the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, the Hague machine in Jersey City and Boss Flynn's machine in the Bronx.

"I believe it is the policy of the Administration to rely on these machines to cast as many fraudulent votes as possible."

Willkie said he thoroughly agreed.

One reporter asked whether voters were not "confused over the contrast between the Administration's idealism and its machine politics," and Willkie interjected:

"They are about as confused, Alf, as they are about whether the President was drafted at Chicago."

Landon, 1936 nominee, nodded assent.

Willkie said he would ask Thomas E. Dewey to make a "strong talk" against machine politics in Missouri. Landon commented that "some of the Pendergast machine are still in jail, but what they need there is a good Republican house-cleaning."

"Let's look at the picture on the question of machine politics," Willkie remarked. "President Roosevelt and I each had a choice—namely, to name a national chairman.

"I named Joe Martin (Representative Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts), House Minority Leader.

"I may say that since his appointment I have heard nothing but praise both for his character, capacity and for the cleanliness that he stands for in American public life.

Compares Martin and Flynn

"Franklyn D. Roosevelt had the same kind of a choice to make and he named Ed Flynn, boss of The Bronx.

"During the course of this campaign, I want the two candidates for President to be judged by what we respectively say—by what we each do, and with whom we associate and consult and whom we ask to perform for us.

"And I call the comparison on the first association—Joe Martin against Boss Flynn.

"Think what they each are and what each represents. I doubt whether there is a man in this room who does not know Joe Martin. In public life for many years he has represented all that is finest in American public life."

In his remarks to the press conference, Landon said he believed a swing toward Willkie was developing both because of opposition to a third term and a general conviction "that the New Deal has failed."

In his remarks about machine politics, Landon said there had been "an amazing spectacle in Missouri." There, he added, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic leader, came to the State to speak for Senator Harry W. Truman in his renomination fight against Maurice M. Milligan and Gov. Lloyd C. Stark.

That development, Landon said, "will help make Missouri a Republican State."

Ingersoll a Caller

He added that Truman represented "the Pendergast machine."

Among Willkie's callers were Ralph Ingersoll, editor of PM, New York newspaper, and Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, of New Mexico.

Willkie said that after his Elwood (Ind.) acceptance address August 17 he would visit either at Elwood or Rushville, Ind., with his sister, Julia Willkie, and his brothers, Robert T., H. Fred and Edward E. Also in the family gathering will be Mrs. Cora Wilk, of Rushville, the nominee's mother-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. Miller Hamilton. Mrs. Hamilton is Mrs. Willkie's sister.

Willkie said tht Dave Ingalls, who managed Senator Taft's unsuccessful campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination, would direct his campaign in Ohio.

Bankhead Named to Notify Wallace Of Nomination at Des Moines, Aug. 29

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Representative William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, Speaker of the House, has been chosen to notify Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace of his nomination for the Vice Presidency, James A. Farley, National Democratic Chairman, announced today.

BANKHEAD

Formal acceptance by Secretary Wallace of his nomination as President Roosevelt's running mate at a ceremony in the City Coliseum in Des Moines, Iowa, August 29 will mark the formal opening of the Democratic campaign, Farley said.

Speaker Bankhead, who served as temporary chairman and keynoter of the Chicago convention, and whose name also was placed in nomination for the Vice Presidency, was picked to deliver the address of notification at a conference between Chairman Farley, Chairman-elect Edward J. Flynn, and other committee officials.

Farley said that "in the event Speaker Bankhead is detained in Washington by the business of the House, he has been authorized to designate someone to deliver the address for him."

A notification committee including a representative from each State and Territory will attend the ceremony.

Sinclair Weeks, chairman of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee, yesterday called a meeting of the executive committee at the Columbia Club in Indianapolis Friday night, the eve of the Willkie notification ceremonies.

The committee will discuss plans for the Willkie-McNary campaign with Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., of the Republican National Committee, and party leaders. Senator John Townsend, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, and Representative J. William Ditter, chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, also will attend the meeting.

Although Wendell Willkie, Presidential nominee, is expected to arrive in Indianapolis on Thursday afternoon, he will not attend this meeting.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 13 (AP).—A woman election official challenged the right of the Pulaski County Willkie Democratic Club secretary to vote in the Arkansis democratic primary today, but three judges ruled the ballot valid.

Mrs. Louis Buckley Acuff, a clerk, cited a resolution of the County Democratic Central Committee barring Willkie supporters from the primary, in asserting the ballot of Lewis W. Cherry was void.

The judges said nothing in their instructions barred Willkie supporters.

National Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., named Representative Wigglesworth (Republican), of Massachusetts, Eastern director of the speakers' division of the Republican National Committee today.

Wigglesworth will establish an office at the Eastern campaign headquarters in New York.

Boston, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Massachusetts State ballot law commission today ruled off the November election ballot the names of the Communist, Socialist, Socialist-Labor and Prohibition Party candidates.

The commission found that all four parties had "absolutely disregarded" a provision requiring the holding of party caucuses prior to picking candidates, and that they failed to check to determine whether delegates to their conventions were registered voters as required by law.

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 13 (AP). A record registration of 3,782,702 was reported for the August 27 primaries in California. Democrats outnumbered Republicans nearly 2 to 1 with both parties showing about the same percentage of gain over the previous high mark set in the 1938 general election.

Representative Mundt (Republican), of South Dakota, advocated in a statement yesterday that candidates be required by law "to file sworn statements of service in advance of their campaigns giving detailed reports of their activities and votes in support of Government policies advocated in their party platforms and campaign speeches."

Bill to Regulate Investment Trusts Sent to White House

Security Commission And Business Approve Measure

The House yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill to place the $4,000,000,000 investment trust industry under Government regulations.

The regulating measure has the approval both of the industry and the Securities and Exchange Commission, the agency that will do the regulating.

Savings of the 2,000,000 Americans who own investment trust securities would be affected—by receiving closer Federal scrutiny.

Along with the investment trust bill, Congress gave final approval also to an amendment to the Securities Act of 1933 relaxing the 20-day waiting period between registration of a new security and permission to sell it.

Four Weeks of Hearings

Securities dealers had complained about the 20-day enforced wait and worked out the amendment through conferences with the Securities Commission. The SEC will probably reduce the waiting period in most cases to four or five days, officials said.

The investment trust bill brings under Federal supervision an industry that has so far been relatively free from regulation by Washington.

The bill extends the authority of the SEC both to investment trusts of all types and to investment counsels, a new class of professional financial advisers, who are conservatively estimated to advise in the investing of more than $4,000,000,000 in client funds.

The measure that received final Congressional approval was written after four weeks of hearings and three weeks of conferences between the SEC and representatives of the industry. It was sponsored in Congress by Senator Wagner (Democrat), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

Investment trusts are broadly classified by the bill into three categories: Management companies, unit investment trusts, and face-amount certificate companies.

Aimed at Abuses

Registration with the SEC is required of all investment trusts, and no trust may operate without registering. Provision also is made for full disclosure of the firm's investment policy.

There are specific penalties and prohibitions against allowing persons with jail and fraud records to hold office in these companies.

There are also safeguards against officers of investment trusts borrowing from their firms or buying and selling securities owned by their firms.

The measure, as a whole, its framers said, is aimed at preventing abuses which cost investors millions of dollars after the 1929 crash.

Officials believed yesterday that the SEC would set up a new investment trust division, probably to be headed by David Schenker, who conducted a two-year study of investment trusts. He has been mentioned for appointment to the commission when the expected resignation of Chairman Jerome Frank becomes effective.

Relief Speeded To Victims Of Hurricane

2 Dixie States Dig Out After Storm That Killed 36; Hundreds Homeless

By the Associated Press

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 13.—Assisted by Government relief agencies, residents of the coastal plains of South Carolina and Georgia went to work today to dig out of the wreckage of a tropical hurricane that took at least 36 lives, wrought damage of millions of dollars and left hundreds homeless.

The Red Cross dispatched nurses to the stricken area to begin precautionary immunization against disease and otherwise minister to sufferers.

Beaufort, south of Charleston, apparently was hardest hit by the 80-mile-an-hour gale that swept out of the Bahamas Sunday, wrecking waterfront buildings and sending high tides into city streets and homes.

The Red Cross reported that 25 colored persons were killed on St. Helena Island, near Beaufort. Eight others died on nearby Ladies Island. Reports from these outlying islands were described as incomplete, and fear was expressed that the death toll would be higher.

A CCC boy was drowned on Huntington Island, near here, and two persons perished at Savannah, Ga.

Sheriff J. M. McTeer, of Beaufort County, appointed by Gov. Burnet R. Maybank to head relief and emergency agencies, estimated 700 persons in that area were homeless and without food. He appealed to the outside for roofing material and food supplies as quickly as possible by truck.

Batteries of trouble-shooters also were at work to restore communication facilities. Telephone calls into the area were being accepted, however, subject to a five-hour delay.

Port Royal, near Beaufort, counted damage to all its residences and business houses. Warehouses and the waterfront pier of the Charleston & Western Carolina Railroad were demolished.

Parris Island, site of a United States Marine Corps base, reported heavy damage, but no loss of life.

Damage to Charleston industrial plants was estimated at $500,000, and Russell McGowan, Charleston attorney, said property damage at nearby Folly Island would approximate $1,000,000.

Insurance adjusters estimated that damage at Savannah would be between $850,000 and $1,000,000.

1,000 More Needy Get Notices They Can Buy 5-c Milk

More than 1,000 additional persons were notified they may now purchase 5-cent milk from the city's 11 distribution centers, it was reported yesterday by Otto J. Cass, director of the public assistance division.

Yesterday, second day of operation of the milk program for the needy, 1,180 quarts of milk were sold. This is 18 more quarts than were sold on Monday. Certificates for the purchase of the milk were sent to 768 persons Monday and 350 yesterday.

Cass said many stayed away the first two days because they lacked the 3-cent deposit required on the first quart purchased. Others brought empty milk bottles although they were instructed a 3-cent deposit would be required.

Churchill Backed 9-1 in England, Survey Shows

At no time during his years as prime minister did Neville Chamberlain have the support of as many British voters as Winston Churchill has today, the British Institute of Public Opinion reveals.

A survey reported by the Gallup Poll yesterday shows that nearly nine out of every ten British voters support Churchill, who took over the government just before the Nazis invaded France.

The survey on Churchill put this question to British voters:

"In general, do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Churchill as prime minister?"

Approve	88%
Disapprove	7
Undecided	5

In similar surveys conducted on the popularity of Neville Chamberlain when he was prime minister, the highest vote of approval ever reached was 71 per cent, in December, 1939.

Potential Conscripts Storm Capitol Hill To Urge Passage

The pro-conscription sentiment of young Virginians affiliated with the State's Junior Chamber of Commerce was impressed yesterday upon members of Congress at a Capitol Hill rally.

Led by Powell Harrison, their president, 150 members of the organization arrived from all parts of the Old Dominion in a motor caravan and descended upon the old House Office Building caucus room. They expressed support of compulsory military training to their Congressional delegation and representatives of the War and Navy Departments.

In turn, Senator Harry F. Byrd, six Virginia Representatives, Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Brig. Gen. Jacob L. Devers voiced their views on national defense, most of them urging enactment of peacetime conscription.

"These times demand action and this group of young Virginians is here to show their legislators and the country at large that we are not only in favor of compulsory military training but are willing to spend our time and money to come here and express our views," Harrison said.

He pointed out that while all members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, in Virginia and elsewhere, are between the ages of 21 and 35—military service age—the Virginia body recently voted unanimously to support the principle of compulsory training.

"Since time plays such a large part in military movements, it is imperative to effect such a program with minimum delay," the 29-year-old Harrison, resident of Leesburg, asserted.

"In building our armed forces, it is our opinion that compulsory military training provides the most democratic method. It shows no partiality to any group or class and distributes the responsibility of citizenship equally on all.

"Ours is an unbossed, unfettered organization of average, hard-working young men. We want to see American liberties and principles safeguarded and are willing to make our contributions. We hope our Senators and Representatives concur in our belief and will work for what they feel is the proper legislation."

Support of the principle of conscription was pledged to the Junior Chamber delegation by Senator Byrd and Representatives John W. Flannagan, jr., Dave E. Satterfield, jr., and Howard W. Smith. Representatives Thomas G. Burch, Schuyler Otis Bland and A. Willis Robertson spoke strongly in favor of preparedness but made no commitments on conscription.

Flannagan drew lengthy and spirited applause when he said his two sons, both of military age, are with him in his stand for preparedness training.

"One can do youth no greater injustice than to permit them to go untrained and then, should an emergency arise, hustle them into uniform," said Smith. He gave unqualified approval to the Burke-Wadsworth bill, as did Satterfield.

Senator Byrd warned against conscripting in numbers too great for the amount of equipment available for such recruits but said any bill which, in his judgment, goes the longest way toward protecting this country in any crisis will receive his vote.

Enactment of conscription legislation is deemed essential by the Army and Navy, the delegation was told by Gen. Devers, commander of the Washington Provision Brigade, and Admiral Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Representing all but about 5 of Virginia's 25 Junior Chambers of Commerce chapters, the petitioners carried banners proclaiming: "Virginia Jaycees—100 per cent for conscription."

Included in the group were 12 young men from Narrows, Va., in the southwest corner of the State, who drove all night to join the motorcade at Alexandria, assembly point for the "march" on Washington.

Tomorrow the Washington Junior Board of Commerce, at its weekly luncheon meeting at the Annapolis Hotel, will hear Senators Pepper and Nye debate conscription.

D. C. Collects $44,840,148 In Taxes

Real Estate Levy Totals $21,437,525, An Increase of $500,000

Real estate taxes during the last fiscal year accounted for nearly half the total amount of all taxes collected by the District Tax Collector Chatham Towers reported yesterday in his annual statement to the Commissioners.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, taxpayers poured a total of $44,840,148.67 into the District treasury, $478,600 below collections the previous year. However, the second half payment of income taxes due during the last fiscal year is not payable until October. It is estimated this will amount to more than $700,000.

Originally, the entire income tax payment was due March 15.

Real estate taxes amounted to 21,437,525, an increase of about $500,000 over the previous year. Income taxes amounted to $2,275,745; gasoline, $2,943,795; public utilities, $2,210,634; tangible personal property, $1,485,466, and alcohol beverages, $1,421,083.

Police court fines brought in $523,197; rents from various city properties accounted for $100,042; conscience fund, 217.49, and parking meters, $36,485.

Floods Ravage North Carolina; Many Homeless

By the Associated Press

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 13.—Mountain streams swelled by torrential rains flooded western North Carolina valleys tonight, wrought unestimated property damage to industries and dwellings, seriously interrupted rail and motor traffic and drowned at least one person.

Asheville's 51,000 inhabitants were threatened with an acute water shortage, City Manager P. M. Burdette said, unless three mains feeding two city reservoirs could be repaired within 36 hours. The mains were washed out at several points by today's heavy rains.

Scores of families dwelling along the Swannanoa and French Broad Rivers, which converge here, were forced from their homes and highways and railroads were put out of use by waters which washed out bridges and loosened earth into huge landslides.

Residents of Biltmore, suburban village, were being evacuated tonight.

Frank Nacke, 20, of Denver, Colo., a student at Black Mountain College near here, drowned when he and a companion plunged over a dam at Lake Eden into the rampaging Swannanoa.

City Manager Burdette said water would be rationed to heavy users.

Johnson Asks For Interview With President

Former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson will confer with President Roosevelt the latter part of the week, it was learned yesterday, possibly on his acceptance of a post as administrative assistant to the Chief Executive in charge of coordinating defense operations.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early announced Johnson had wired requesting the President for an interview today or tomorrow, and that the President granted the request.

Johnson resigned to make way for Judge Robert Patterson, of New York, choice of Secretary Stimson.

There has been a suggestion that Johnson be placed in charge of the home-defense program if the National Guard is ordered into Federal service.

Welles Sends Note to Tokyo On Narcotic Syndicate in U. S.

By International News Service

The State Department yesterday cabled the United tSates Embassy at Tokyo details of a huge narcotics ring traced by Federal agents to Kobe distributors and urged the information be quickly relayed to the Japanese government.

The message, signed by Acting Secretary of State Welles, was revealed as following a three-way Nation-wide drive on the narcotic smugglers, in which several Japanese and Chinese were caught in the largest roundup since 1936 and which upset an American addict market of several millions dollars.

It was explained that the cabled report was in no way a protest, and had been wired rather than sent in the mail to speed a breakup of the ring. In effect, however, the memorandum was reported to pose this question to the Japanese law officers:

"Here is the evidence of four cases. Some Japanese are known old offenders, How are they to be punished?"

Federal and State agents, meanwhile, were said to be continuing their undercover operations to intercept any other cargoes of narcotics in a crackdown which may bring startling revelations.

An unidentified American woman, a California taxi driver who speaks fluent Japanese, a Federal agent disguised as a stevedore, and a bundle of diapers aided the Government in seizing several members of the ring at Tacoma, and Seattle, Wash., San Francisco, New York and Los Angeles.

The largest shipment, caught on a Japanese steamer at San Francisco, contained 17 pounds of drugs. A sailor confessed that the purchase had been made in Kobe.

Other shipments were landed, unsuccessfully, at New York where a Japanese picked them up after he made a special trip from California.

Japanese narcotic laws call for fines of about $10 and a jail sentence of two months or less. These small penalties are blamed by Washington officials for widespread attempts at smuggling into the United States.

The present ring was exposed by tracing a Japanese from San Francisco, to a Tacoma laundry, the distribution point.

A woman there involved others, including a Japanese woman, seized at Seattle with 46 ounces of narcotics hidden in diapers.

One Japanese couple took a taxicab in San Francisco. The cab driver, a disguised narcotics agent, overheard their conversation and took them to headquarters, where they were found to have 28 tins, each holding 6 ounces or over. This led to another seizure in New York when an attempt was made to carry off 10 pounds of morphine which had been sent around the world from Yokohama.

The final case to date, and there are more to come, agents say here, broke in San Francisco when the same taxi driver, as a stevedore, assisted a Japanese with his baggage—and into a cell.

A drop in the bootleg market price on the Pacific Coast was the signal to the United States Government and California State agents that illegal imports were increasing and resulted in the sweeping invistigation.

Married Life Too Gay, Husband Sues

Married life was much too merry for him, Marion Earl Cowan, 417 Eleventh street southeast, told the District Court yesterday in his petition for a legal separation from Mrs. Virginia Achord Cowan, 1302 Irving street northwest.

Cowan retained a woman attorney, Miss Marie E. McCathran, to present his charges of cruelty.

The complaint said the Cowans were married November 26, 1938, and that as time went on the husband was led to believe that his bride was designed for "a lighter, more shallow life than that of wife and mother."

Thus, Cowan's sworn complaint said, he frequently came home from work and found gay parties going full blast. At one of these parties, said the sworn complaint, the wife and the guests took off all their clothes, and when Cowan remonstrated, the complaint added, the merrymakers belabored him painfully.

Cowan complained also that his mother-in-law was bigger than he was and beat him on one occasion. He said he and his wife separated March 18, 1940, and since have lived apart.

Cowan asked for a decree of legal separation and such other relief as the court might think he ought to have.

RCA Inquiry Told of Missing $2,500 Check

D. C. Attorney Denies It Was Indorsed By Ex-Sen. Moses

By the Associated Press

A missing check for $2,500 became the center today of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's inquiry into the postponement of an antitrust suit against the Radio Corporation of America in 1932.

Roger Whiteford, Washington attorney, told the committee yesterday that he had sent the check as a loan to Albert Hislop, former Mayor of Portsmouth, N. H. Whiteford testified that Hislop arranged a conference between David Sarnoff, R. C. A. president, and former Senator George Moses, of New Hampshire, before the case was postponed in Federal Court at Wilmington, Del.

The witness asserted, however, that the loan had nothing to do with the conference, but was made in connection with a business transaction.

Check Disappears

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, called attention to a suit brought by minority stockholders against R. C. A. He said these stockholders asserted that both Moses and Daniel O. Hastings, former Senator from Delaware, had received payments while members of the Senate in connection with the continuance of the suit.

Under questioning by Tobey, Whiteford denied any knowledge that the $2,500 was paid to Moses.

When Tobey asked for the check, Whiteford said it had disappeared, although he had seen it in his office last Sunday among other accounts.

"Please don't ask us to believe you lost it," Tobey exclaimed.

"I assure you I can't find it and have lost it," Whiteford replied.

Tobey asked Whiteford if Moses had "indorsed" the missing check. Whiteford said the former Senator had not.

Hastings Received $7,500

Tobey, declaring that Hislop was the "key to the whole picture," said that the former mayor would appear before the committee today and be asked what disposition he made of the check.

As a result of the Moses-Sarnoff meeting, witnesses have said, Moses recommended that Hastings be retained by R. C. A. Testimony showed that Hastings subsequently received $7,500 from R. C. A.

One of the three real estate brokers who said they received payments from R. C. A. in connection with efforts to postpone the antitrust suit testified that the continuance was "worth" $50,000 to R. C. A.

Levin P. Handy, of Washington, who said he received $2,275 for his "services," told the committee that Robert D. O'Callaghan, R. C. A. attorney, had informed him that he was "willing to pay $50,000 for the continuance."

Handy quoted O'Callaghan as saying the expense involved in trying the suit would be "terrific."

House Refuses To Consider Bill For Homesteads

By the Associated Press

The House refused yesterday to consider legislation which would permit the Interior Department to acquire all mortgaged farms, on application of the owner, and redistribute the land as homesteads.

The standing vote by which it declined to take up the measure was 123 to 47.

Representative Andresem (Republican), of Minnesota, estimated the program would cost $5,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000, and Chairman Jones (Democrat), of Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee, called it "the most amazing bill that has been presented to this House in many years."

Representative Peterson (Democrat), of Georgia, is the author of the legislation.

Ex-Sailor Indicted In Toy-Gun Holdup Of Congressman

Chilton Hume Johnson, jr., 28, Richmond, Va., former sailor, was accused by the District grand jury yesterday of choosing the Willard to stage a holdup, with a Congressman for the victim.

Representative Ernest Harold Cluett, of New York, was found in his room the night of July 8, bound and gagged. He reported that he had been robbed of $50 in cash and jewelry worth $155.

Cluett said he fell into talk with a stranger at a dinner earlier that evening in honor of Wendell Willkie, that the man accompanied him to his room and held him up with a pistol, which later turned out to be a toy.

Johnson, also accused of deserting the Navy ten years ago, was arrested in Richmond, Va., and brought here. Police said Johnson denied robbing Representative Cluett.

Admiral Hart Reaches Shanghai

Chief of Asiatic Fleet May Contest Japanese Demands

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Wednesday), Aug. 14. Using a sea-going submarine as a flagship, Admiral Thomas Charles Hart, commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet, arrived here this morning from Tsingtao amid Japanese demands for control of the British defense sector of the International Settlement.

Britain's decision to withdraw her troops from China will leave Rear Admiral Moriji Takeda, commander of the Shanghai Japanese naval garrison, as senior foreign officer, but Admiral Hart outranks him and as such it was expected he would preside over a meeting Thursday at which foreign defense chiefs will consider reassignment of the British zone.

Those here who oppose the idea of Japan controlling the British sector, containing some of Shanghai's largest business interests and best residential districts, hoped the American admiral would block the Japanese.

Want U. S. to Withdraw

Tang Leang-Li, official spokesman for the Japanese-controlled Chinese administration at Nanking, echoed the Japanese military when he expressed hope the United States would follow Britain's example by withdrawing the Fourth Marine Regiment stationed here.

"The Chinese won't tolerate" the transfer of the British sector to American troops, he said.

It was understood here that negotiations on Japanese demands, described as a virtual ultimatum, for economic and military concessions in French Indo-China were underway at Vichy, France.

(In Tokyo, the influential newspaper Hochi was quoted in a Domei (Japanese news agency) broadcast today as declaring "Japan will not be intimidated by any American interference" in her relations with French Indo-China.)

Indo-China Prepares

Vichy, France, Aug. 13 (AP).—Admiral Jean DeCoux, acting governor-general of French Indo-China, was reported today to have taken "necessary measures" to face any situation arising from concentration of Japanese troops on the Indo-Chinese frontier.

Dispatches to this effect, under a foreign dateline, appeared in the censored French evening press. The unspecified measures were described as necessary "to face an eventual aggravation of the situation."

(Shanghai dispatches have said that Japanese demands on French Indo-China include right-of-way for Japanese troops to operate through Indo-China against the Chinese province of Yunnan and both Japanese land and naval forces were said to be ready for invasion of Indo-China if the privilege were refused.)

Welles Minimizes Shanghai Dispute

By the United Press

Acting Secretary of State Welles last night minimized the Shanghai dispute as local in character and susceptible of easy adjustment.

He said the State Department has had no direct word from Admiral Hart but indicated great reliance is being placed on the Admiral's ability to reach an equitable solution acceptable to Japan as well as interested Italian and French authorities and the municipal council.

He had no further comment.

reported destroying 22 enemy planes in the raging sky fights. These were listed as nine Junkers dive bombers, five large Messerschmitt combination fighters and bombers, and eight smaller Messerschmitt fighters.

The Junkers bombers were reported bagged in one brief engagement, and fell one after the other within a few minutes.

Pole Is Hero

A Pole, once taken prisoner by the Russians, was credited with one of the best scores of the day's fighting, but the exact number of Nazi planes chalked up to his account was not specified. He was said to have come to England after escaping into Rumania from the Red armies, who captured him in their push into Poland.

Cudahy Returns, Says Statement Was Distorted

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DENIES DIG AT U. S. SOLDIERS—John Cudahy, United States Ambassador to Belgium, reprimanded by the State Department for expressing views on the situation in Belgium, returned to New York by Clipper yesterday from Europe. He was met by his family, Mrs. Cudahy, son, Michael, 16, and daughter, Mary Jane, 19. Cudahy said London newspapers distorted his statement so much he didn't recognize it himself, and denied he criticized the U. S. Army stances.

He replied in the negative when asked if he planned to run for Governor or Senator in Wisconsin.

He said that "all the London papers except one, the London Times, distorted my statements so much that I couldn't even recognize them."

Later, he was shown a copy of the Associated Press story on his London interview and asked for his comment. He said the story was a "fair statement" of what he had said.

The only point to which he took any exception was that where he was quoted as saying the Germans behaved perhaps better than American soldiers would have done.

"The wording," Cudahy said, "was not quite what I said."

The tall, ruddy, gray-haired Ambassador was met by his wife, his daughter, Mary Jane, 19; his son, Michael, 16, and Mrs. Lawrence "Chip" Robert, whose husband is secretary of the Democratic National Committee.

At the airport Cudahy called the State Department and also put in a telephone call for Miss Marguerite Le Hand, President Roosevelt's secretary.

Baltic Envoys to Be Recalled

By the Associated Press

The American Government prepared yesterday to withdraw its representatives in the three tiny Baltic states whose independence from Russia spanned a brief 22 years.

While disapproving of Russia's absorption of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, the State Department was understood to have decided it could do nothing but comply with a Russian request to recall diplomatic and consular officials from the three countries.

At the same time, conversations continued in the effort to improve relations between the United States and Russia. Constantine Oumansky, the Soviet Ambassador, conferrred with Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, for more than an hour Monday. It was their third long conference in little more than a week.

Officials to Be Withdrawn

Seven legations and consular officials are involved in the Baltic withdrawal, in addition to the Ministers. The Ministers, John C. Wiley, of Washington, Minister to Latvia and Estonia, and Owen J. C. Norem, of Sioux City, Iowa, Minister to Lithuania, are already en route home.

Legation and consular officials who act in dual capacities are:

Estonia—Walter A. Leonard, of Essex, Iowa, and Montgomery H. Colladay, Middletown, Conn.

Latvia—Earl L. Packer, of Ogden, Utah, and Edwin Allan Lightner, jr., of New York City.

Lithuania — Bernard Gufler, of Lawrence, Kans.; E. Tomlin Bailey, of Tuckahoe, N. J., and Basil F. MacGowan, of Tennessee.

Sidelights of the War

Spain Protests on Blockade As Dreams of Empire Revive

Official Answer Awaited From Britain While Feeling of Resurgence Mounts; Attack on Gibraltar Believed Far Off

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 13.—Spain, it was learned today, has delivered a note of protest to Great Britain against what Gen. Franco calls Britain's "illegal supervision" of Spanish imports. The protest called for immediate relaxation of the British blockade "in order to permit Spain to continue with her reconstruction."

So far, Britain has not sent an official answer, and despite her obvious desire to see Spain's point of view and settle the dispute, it is evident the Spaniards are not yet satisfied.

For the first time in several years Spain is beginning to revive her old dreams of empire. The British decision to extend the blockade to Spain naturally clashed with this new feeling of Spanish resurgence and there is no telling where it will lead.

It becomes clearer all the time that the Germans and Italians are going to do what they can to break the British hold on the Suez Canal and Gibraltar, but it does not look as if Gibraltar will come first. If Egypt falls, experts here believe Hitler and Mussolini will put pressure on Gen. Franco to cooperate in an attack on Gibraltar.

75,124 Tons Sunk in Week

London, Aug. 13 (AP).—The admiralty announced today that British and neutral shipping losses for the week ending August 5 amounted to 75,124 tons.

The admiralty announcement, denying German claims that 232,743 tons of shipping were sunk during this period, said the losses consisted of 13 British ships totaling 60,058 tons, one Allied ship of 1,298 tons and five neutral vessels totaling 13,768 tons.

Torpedo, Bomb Sink 2 Swedish Steamers

Stockholm (Wednesday), Aug. 14 (INS).—Sinking of two Swedish steamers—one by torpedo off Ireland and one by bombs in the English Channel—was announced today. Sixteen members of the crew of the 4,300-ton steamer Canton were picked up in an Irish harbor after their vessel was torpedoed, it was said.

The steamer Varia, of 1,300 tons, was sunk by bombs in the English Channel, according to the announcement which said 10 crew members were rescued and another 8 were seen floating on a raft.

British Strengthen Algeciras Defenses

Algeciras, Spain, Aug. 13 (AP).—To better their defense set-up, Britons are plugging the gate in the old wall skirting the Algeciras side of Gibraltar and warehouses and other buildings in the commercial dock area are being torn down. The razing of the buildings will give defenders greater efficiency from higher dominating positions in the British stronghold.

Gibraltar was visited twice by planes today but no bombs were dropped.

Mexican Senate Approves Draft

Mexico City, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Mexican Senate approved compulsory military training by a 57-to-1 vote late today and sent the measure to President Lazaro Cardenas, who sponsored it as a defense necessity. The Chamber of Deputies passed the act several days ago.

The measure calls for training 50,000 reserves annually, starting next year, until a reserve of 200,000 men has been developed. Then the program will be tapered off. Men between 18 and 45 are subject to service.

Guns of Trafalgar Melted Up for New

Falmouth, England, Aug. 13 (AP).—Decreeing that "we don't need mementoes to remind us of Britain's glorious past," the town council today ordered the guns of the frigate Bellerophon, on which Napoleon surrendered after Waterloo, melted for military scrap iron.

The Bellerophon, launched in 1736, escorted Lord Nelson's body home after Trafalgar, where he was wounded fatally.

British Battle 2,200 Planes In Four Days

Declare 256 Shot Down, Admit Loss of 82; Germans Claim 327

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 13.—In four blasting days of her prelude to blitzkrieg Germany has sent at least 2,200 planes against England.

Starting last Thursday, Hitler's sky raiders have subjected the island kingdom to a terrific intensified pounding.

Here is the four-day picture:

Thursday—Mass waves of 800 Nazi planes attacked shipping in the English Channel, engaging in huge aerial dog fights with British R. A. F. fighters over the Channel.

Sunday — 400 German planes smashed at the big naval base at Portland, on the South Coast, and also attacked Dover and Channel shipping convoys.

Monday—500 German raiders bombed Portsmouth naval base, Southampton and Dover.

Tuesday—Another 500 German planes attacked all along a 200-mile Channel front, concentrating on Southampton and Dover.

Planes Destroyed

In these titanic struggles for air supremacy, the belligerent nations, up to midnight tonight, made the following claims of planes destroyed:

	German Claims		British Claims
	British Lost	Germans Lost	Germans Lost	British Lost
Thursday	49	10	60	16
Sunday	93	21	65	16
Monday	89	24	62	13
Tuesday	96	24	69	27
Totals	327	79	256	82

German losses in attacks on Britain have been 597 since the war began and to 513 since the first mass raid on June 18, British officials said tonight.

Estimates placing Britain's total action losses of planes at 724 gave this break-down: Lost in home defense, 119; over the Western Front, 401; over Germany and Nazi-occupied territory, 109; over Scandinavia, 67; over the North Sea, 25; over neutral countries, 5.

A consecutive picture of Germany's mass air raids yesterday showed that they began with a concentrated attack on a limited area, fanned out wide and then narrowed down again to the first hard-hit area.

The series began over the Kentish coast about breakfast time ranged far down the English Channel in the midday and ended again over Kent in late afternoon.

(Kent forms the lower jaw of the Thames Estuary, and includes such important ports as Dover, Deal, Margate, Ramsgate and Canterbury.)

This is how British reports recapitulate the raids:

In the first, 10 Junkers dive-bombers, accompanied by about a dozen Messerschmitt 109's, were driven off by R. A. F. fighters.

Three hours later, 50 Messerschmitt fighters and about 30 Junkers returned to the same Channel area to attack shipping. Nine were shot down, including six dive-bombers and one of the Nazi's new Heinkel 113 fighters.

Most Costly Raid

Then more than 50 Messerschmitts operating as bombers and Junkers 87's crossed the Kentish coast. At least one bomber and one Messerschmitt fighter were downed.

Meanwhile, a mixed force of Junkers, Dorniers, Heinkels and Messerschmitts attacked Portsmouth (to the west of Kent). This was the most costly raid of the day for the Germans. Twenty-seven raiders were shot down, seven by anti-aircraft fire and the rest by British Spitfires and Hurricanes.

The last large-scale raid of the day was by 50 bombers escorted by 150 fighters. In this attack on the Kentish coast, the fighters stretched out behind the bombers in groups of 30 in tiers reaching as high as 5 miles.

must be expected to increase still further in severity; and the climax may well be close at hand."

This morning's German attack on the English Midlands was the biggest of the war for that district. Bombs burst with a rumble and great glares made the sky lurid. Antiaircraft gunners kept up a scorching fire. Tracer bullets and searchlights pierced the morning dark.

The picture was much the same along the south coast, in Wales and in Scotland.

Only 11 Planes Lost

Houses were hit in one Scottish town, a row of huts set afire in another, and many salvos of Nazi bombs were said to have fallen in fields. One fatality was reported and "minor" civilian casualties.

As for damage after Tuesday's assault by hundreds of German planes on the Channel coast, the British acknowledged only a series of fires and "a few casualties," while reporting proudly that their day's bag of Nazi planes was the biggest yet. Only 13 defending British fighters were lost, the British declared.

Sixteen other British planes, all bombers, were lost, however, in retaliatory raids against Nazi blitzkrieg bases "from Jutland to the Bay of Biscay," Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Attack in Three Waves

The Nazis raiding Southampton yesterday came in three waves, said the air ministry, adding:

"At one time, enemy bombers and fighters were falling out of the sky at the rate of about one a minute."

In the English Channel itself, a force of German warships—both surface craft and submarines—was declared to have been beaten off by British motor torpedoboats in the dark hours of Tuesday morning.

[The Germans reported a North Sea encounter between German mine sweepers and British patrol boats, in which a British speedboat was sunk.]

Loss of the British mine-sweeping trawlers Tamarisk and Pyrope by air attack was announced by the admiralty.

In the series of day and night attacks on Germany and Nazi-held territory—attacks sent home in some instances "in spite of ice and cloud"—the British said, they bombed 17 Nazi airdromes, the Nazi seaplane base at Borkum, the Nazi-held harbor at Denhelder on the Dutch coast, various docks and munitions plants. Among the targets were air bases at Cherbourg, Caen and Brest, all in France.

But all of this, however destructive it may have been to Germany, was only a side issue to the great showdown here at home—the Nazi's air attacks which already are sweeping the southern coast and now threaten to extend in force to the cargo-choked west coast.

West Coast May Be Next

All of these western ports were officially acknowledged to be "pretty full," and it was conceded that area might well be next.

Southampton—Normally about 180,000 population—was the most important city officially acknowledged to have been hit by the raiders, but bombs also fell on the Isle of Wight and on "several" R. A. F. airdromes in southeast England. At one of these a "number" of casualwere acknowledged.

Yesterday was the third successive day of unending attack and adding the 400 to 800 raiders that appeared last Thursday in a bloody overture to what has come since it raised to a total of about 2,000 the number of German planes that have struck in the big-scale fighting.

The Nazi bombers pounded particularly the 80-mile defense "corner" between the estuary of the Thames—which leads to London—and the Sussex-Hampshire coast, and struck along a 200-mile stretch of the Channel.

This broad attack upon the Channel coast, across but 20-odd miles of water at some points from the Nazi-held French coastline, went on into this morning.

Mobile Batteries Ready

Mobile batteries and strong troop concentrations were in position and ready, from the coast to several miles inland. Modern barricades, intended to block the invader but to permit free movement of the defenders, were thrown up along all roads.

Civilians in one southeast coast town still were firm in the belief that cannon fire from across the Channel—not bombs—had struck their houses Monday. But officials insisted that there was no confirmation of a bombardment.

French "75" guns manned by the crews of French warships shot down two German bombers in a recent raid on a south coast English naval base, it was announced last night by headquarters of Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

The general, who refused to comply with the surrender ordered by the French government of Marshal Petain, is head of a commission which is building a force to fight on at Britain's side.

The action was the first for the French ships since the Petain surrender, it was said, and came when 100 Nazi bombers raided the base.

R. A. F. Sets Fires In Amsterdam

The Hague, Netherlands, Aug. 13. (U.P.).—British bombing planes badly damaged parts of Amsterdam, starting many fires and allegedly hitting a hospital, in widespread attacks last night on German-held ports and northern Dutch towns, it was reported today.

German authorities accused the British fliers of bombing Wilhelmina Hospital in Amsterdam and an asylum for women in Castricum, a northern village.

The former naval base of Den Helder was heavily bombed by the British planes and great damage was inflicted although antiaircraft fire was said to have kept the raiders at great height.

Most of the civilian population of Den Helder already had been evacuated.

First-Day 'Battle' Ends in Deadlock

Post Correspondent 'Captured' Despite Plea of 'Neutrality'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Correspondent.

Heuvelton, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The First Army slept on its arms tonight while its patrols, like sensitive fingers, felt for each other through the darkness.

Across a little valley west of the Flackville-Heuvelton road, the Fifty-eighth (Maryland) and Ninety-first (Virginia) Brigades of the Twenty-ninth Division, faced each toward the other's lines and waited daylight. Then the two brigades will be launched again into the battle which was begun this morning and, excepting for those questing patrols, ended for the day at dusk.

Early today the Ninety-first, commanded by Col. John F. Bright, Mayor of Richmond, sent out a strong reconnaissance patrol, led by two tanks from its command post post southeast of Northrupt Corners. At the same time another patrol went forward from field headquarters of the Fifty-eighth, commanded by Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock. Their mission was to seek out and hold the other until the main bodies could be brought up and the battle developed.

Patrols Went Astray

Somewhere along the road both patrols went astray and light elements of the 116th Infantry (Va.) and the Fifth (Maryland) collided abruptly along the Flackville-Heuvelton road, where the Fifth had dug in awaiting word of the enemy. A platoon of the 116th and the lieutenant commanding were gobbled up by the Fifth in the first shock of surprise.

The Maryland regiment advanced at once across a field of uncut hay, bobbing up for short rushes, covered by rifle fire and machine guns. Across the field, the 116th deployed and returned fire while a strong detachment felt for and found the flank of the Fifth's advance element forcing it back to the edge of the field.

Behind the lines of the Fifth, Company A, 121st Engineers of Washington, commanded by Capt. James R. Quade, was thrown ahead of the artillery to repair a demolished bridge and then was split into detachments to build road blocks against tanks on the Flackville-Heuvelton road. Antitank forces with 37 milflimeter guns were pushed forward to defend those blocks.

Fifth Attempts Pinchers

While this action was simmering down to quiescence, the Fifth started a powerful enveloping movement against the left flank of the Virginia brigade. The Virginians, at first battling superior strength, threw in the First and Second battalions of the 116th and then the whole First Virginia, which had been held in reserve. The attack stopped in its tracks and the umpires called a stalemate.

Both brigades then went into bivouac on the field, the lines of brown shelter tents sprang up in the hay and the wheat stubble and field kitchens came forward. In a matter of minutes their stacks were belching smoke and the troops were in line with mess gear.

It was a battle loaded with surprises, not the least of which was suffered by a Maryland infantryman who captured your correspondent and his driver who were sitting between the lines as they closed in the first collision. He came forward with the combat groups, dodging behind the tall hay and the hummocks and little patches of brushwood which dot the open fields and flopped on his belly.

What Neutrals Get

"I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but you're captured."

Your correspondent explained he was a neutral and his driver was a nonbelligerent. Sadly, the doughboy said he was with military intelligence, faded away to report the flank movement being developed by the 116th.

The problem being worked out by the Twenty-ninth in preparation for First Army maneuvers August 19-22 was prepared by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, division commander. It presumes that a Black Army, represented by the 91st Brigade, has crossed the St. Lawrence River, captured Ogdensburg and is advancing toward Heuvelton and Rensselaer Falls. A Blue Army, the Fifty-eighth Brigade, has set out to throw it back. Today's battle was the first phase of the maneuver ending with the Black force advanced about 15 miles from Ogdensburg and stalemated by an equal Blue force across its front.

Lieut. Newton D. Wood, of Company G, Fifth Maryland, was badly shaken up today when the automobile he was driving was in collision with another operated by Mrs. Inez Wright, Brentwood, Long Island. Three officers riding with Lieut. Wood were not injured.

In Ogdensburg tonight the Twenty-ninth Division gave a radio broadcast over Station WLSB, featuring the 121st Engineer Band, directed by Warrant Officer Meyer Goldman. Capt. Gordon Hittenmark, division radio officer, was master of ceremonies.

Rutherford Urges Requisition Of Embargoed Machine Tools

Chief of War Department Procurement Tells Committee There Is No Other Way To Get Shipments Held Up by Restrictions

By the Associated Press

Col. Harry K. Rutherford, chief procurement planning officer of the War Department, urged the House Military Committee yesterday to approve legislation authorizing the President to requisition embargoed machine tools.

Rutherford

Because of the recently imposed Presidential restriction on exports, Col. Rutherford said, many such tools prepared for shipment abroad were "bogged down" either at seaports or in the hands of manufacturers.

"We are very much in need of them," he testified, "but there is no way to get hold of them except by legislation of this sort."

The legislation, introduced Monday by Representative Faddis (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, would authorize the President, in the interest of national defense, "to requisition and take over" at a price determined by the President any military equipment, munitions, machinery, tools, materials or supplies the exportation of which was prohibited by the proclamations under the Neutrality Act.

Arsenal Hangs Out 'Help Wanted' Sign

Philadelphia, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Government hung out a "help wanted" sign today and relaxed age and experience requirements in a search for mechanics to speed operations at the huge Frankford Arsenal.

Throughout the third U. S. Civil Service District the Government advertised for 3,000 skilled workers. It boosted the age limit from 55 to 62 years and stipulated that applicants need only have had two years of apprenticeship instead of the usual four years. Until recently the age ceiling for new employes had been 50.

Col. James Kirk, assistant to the commandant, said that because of a lack of men only a few of the Arsenal's departments have gone on the three-shifts-a-day ordered recently by Secretary of War Stimson.

C.I.O. Ship Unions Pledge Cooperation

Full cooperation by all C. I. O. maritime unions to provide adequate and trained personnel to man the ships of the American merchant marine in the present emergency was pledged yesterday by Bjorne Halling, executive secretary of the C. I. O. maritime committee. The statement was made in reply to telegrams sent by H. A. Wiley, commissioner in charge of training for the U. S. Maritime Commission, to maritime unions asking their cooperation in a program to insure no discrimination against members of the U. S. Maritime Service.

"The C. I. O. maritime unions are very much concerned about national defense and have already offered their full cooperation through the declaration of the C. I. O. executive board," Halling said. That declaration affirms that "the C. I. O., its officers, constituent unions and membership are fully prepared to discharge our responsibilities in the approaching national emergency to the best interests of the United States of America."

National Defense Stamps Due in Fall

'Carefully Drawn' Law Urged by Spokesman For Manufacturers

By the Associated Press

An official of the United States Chamber of Commerce urged Congress yesterday to delay enacting of an excess profits tax, while a representative of the National Association of Manufacturers favored a "carefully drawn" tax of that type as a temporary "emergency measure."

Ellsworth C. Alvord, of Washington, chairman of the chamber's Federal finance committee, recommended that Congress go ahead and pass, separately from the tax, legislation permitting defense contractors to deduct from their taxable income the full cost of new plant installations.

Meanwhile, Alvord argued, the pending 25 to 40 per cent excess profits tax, with which plant amortization is joined, could be subjected to "simplification and improvement." This, he said, was more essential than speed.

Urges Profits Tax

Carl N. Osborne, vice president of the M. A. Hanna Co., Cleveland, and vice chairman of N. A. M.'s Government finance committee, came out for an excess profits tax applicable to this year's earnings. He said, however, that the tax should not be made permanent because it involves "inequities."

Both Alvord and Osborne testified at a joint hearing of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees on a proposal by the House Tax subcommittee to enact an excess profits levy, provide defense plant amortization and repeal the Vinson-Trammell Act's 8 and 7 per cent limits on the profits from warships and military aircraft.

Both objected to details of the proposed profits tax and Alvord, unlike Osborne, declared that the levy should not in any case apply to this year's income.

Difficulties in Wording

Despite objections raised by various interests to the excess profits proposal, Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, predicted to newsmen that a measure along the lines laid out by the subcommittee would be ready for the House by next week. Doughton said that bill drafters were having some difficulties in wording the complicated tax but forecast that they soon would have completed their job.

Another National Association of Manufacturers' witness, H. E. Howell, comptroller of the General Fire Extinguisher Co., Providence, R. I., urged that if delays were encountered on the excess profits tax, "a sound amortization provision should be considered the first order of business."

"Desirable Objective"

Alvord's plea for deferring the excess profits levy brought quick comment from committee members that Secretary of War Stimson and Defense Commissioner William E. Knudsen had said immediate action on the tax was desired by manufacturers so they might know their tax liabilities.

Asserting that this "certainly is a desirable objective," Alvord raised the question whether taxpayers would know where they stood, even after the tax were enacted.

He declared that the subcommittee proposal was "complex and almost wholly without precedent" and "may require hundreds of computations, with frequently recurring changes and variations."

U. S. Puts Gag on Probe Of Utility 'Slush Fund'

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 13 (AP).—Steps to guard the secrecy of a Federal grand jury investigation of alleged political "slush fund" activities of utility companies were taken today by O. John Rogge, Assistant U. S. Attorney General in charge of the inquiry.

Rogge announced he would ask the District Court to enter an order banning publication of the names of witnesses subpenaed before the special grand jury impaneled yesterday.

Watergate Guest Conductor Asks 'Break' for Women in Art

ANTONIA BRICO—"LET'S SING INSTEAD OF FIGHT"

Antonia Brico Cites Discrimination Against Her Sex in Field of Music and Inquires, 'Do We All Have to Be Cooks?'

Antonia Brico, who insists on being called a "musician" rather than a woman conductor" sat down in a hotel room here yesterday to loose blast after blast at "negative-minded" people who deny her sex equal opportunity in art.

"Is the woman's place only in the home? Do we all have to be cooks?" asked the woman who will conduct tonight's concert of the National Symphony Orchestra at the Watergate.

Then she spoke bitterly of a slight at the hands of John Charles Thomas. She was to conduct a concert on which Thomas was to be soloist. When the famous barytone learned he was to submit to the baton of a woman conductor he refused to sing, she said.

"I have never told that before, but I think it's time I did," she added. "I want to ask him why . . . if he had said I was a bad musician, I would have understood."

Paints Gloomy Picture

Miss Brico worked her way through the University of California, won a European scholarship, and persuaded Dr. Karl Muck, pre-war leader of the Boston Symphony, to accept her as his only pupil in Hamburg. But she painted a gloomy picture of prejudice in art.

"While they are in training," she confided, "women are accepted on an equal footing with men, according to their talents. But when they get out of school and start into professional phases of music they can't even get auditions."

"Is that fair?" she asked with spirit. "I don't want to seem a violent feminist. I'm not. All I want is equal opportunity. They should hold auditions with screens hiding the applying musicians. That's what I'm going to do when I have my own orchestra again."

Miss Brico told of one of the most "tremendous moments of my life," when she was in Finland in the early part of the summer and held a musical symposium with Sibelius.

"Side by side we played through his first and second symphonies at his house. I assure you it was a tremendous moment. It was in the midst of one of those Finnish thunderstorms. The thunder came crashing through the trees as we played."

Then the musician went on to hope that "art will be let alone in this war. What difference does the nationality of musicians make?"

"And I hope people won't think they have to cut art out of their lives . . . if people get together and sing, how can they continue to fight?"

Committee Hears NLRB Lawyers

A number of National Labor Relations Board lawyers appeared before a House committee investigating the board yesterday to deny that they used informal files of the agency in preparing decisions.

Edmund M. Toland, committee counsel, has asserted that material not a part of the formal record had been used in reaching decisions, and that this should not be done.

The witnesses who entered the denials were George Koplow, assistant to the board's associate general counsel; Ivar Peterson, Ralph Winkler and Fanny Boyles, board lawyers.

Der Tag

For three successive days, towns and villages on the southern and southeastern coast of England as well as many points deep in the interior of that country have been subjected to an unending succession of daylight raids by gigantic armadas of German planes.

Because of the censorship and the sharply conflicting claims of the opposing sides, it is impossible to determine what damage the raiders have actually managed to do. Nor is it clear, on the other hand, what the cost has been in men and machines.

The Germans insist that they have now secured complete aerial mastery over the Channel, that the Royal Air Force has become demoralized by the hammer blows rained upon it, and that British resistance is on the verge of being broken. The British, for their part, scoff at these claims. They admit that the raids have resulted in some casualties among civilians, but only little damage to military objectives. And they claim to have destroyed a very large number of German bombers and fighters.

At any rate, the long-anticipated Battle of Britain appears now to have begun in earnest. Whether the air raids of the last few days presage the beginning of an actual attempt at invasion of the British Isles is not clear. There are signs pointing in that direction. Yet it is possible that Hitler may decide to continue for some time longer his effort to "soften" the British by incessant air raids so as to make invasion, when it comes, an easier task than it would likely be at the moment.

The stakes of this battle, which may prove the greatest and most decisive of the war, are of incalculable magnitude. Great Britain now stands alone in the path of Hitler's hope of European mastery. If that last bastion of freedom is overcome, the whole of Europe will be under the domination of the totalitarian dictators. On the contrary, if Britain triumphs, a blight which for years has been spreading over the world will be arrested.

So none who has the cause of freedom and democracy at heart can be indifferent to the titanic struggle now under way in the skies over England. Its outcome will affect the lives of every human being and of generations yet to be born.

Mr. Flynn's Dilemma

The campaign book controversy has become a lively political issue. Some political leaders are taking full advantage of the opportunity it gives them to hurl brickbats. The public is little concerned with this war of words. But it has a vital interest in the outcome of a dispute so closely related to the cause of clean politics.

Those who see nothing more than campaign arguments in this controversy should remember that it is Senator Hatch, a Democrat, who has most emphatically demanded that the campaign book sponsored by his party be abandoned. Likewise Attorney General Jackson has warned Democratic National Chairman Flynn against any attempt to sell the book through State and county organizations. These officials have taken their courageous stand in spite of political considerations.

Mr. Flynn's ambitious plans for distribution of this book have probably been deflated by the opposition of Senator Hatch and the Attorney General. He now says that the volume will not be placed on sale. Rather "it will go to 100,000 or more Democratic speakers and workers like any other campaign book." Still he leaves some questions unanswered.

Will these speakers and workers be required to pay for the book? If so, they would be liable to prosecution under the Hatch Act, which forbids the purchase, but not the sale, of such publications. On the other hand, if the book is distributed free it will become a contribution to the Democratic campaign financed in considerable measure by the advertisers who have bought space in it.

Some of these advertisers are corporations. The Corrupt Practices Act forbids corporations to make contributions "in connection with" elections to Federal office. Mr. Flynn seems to escape one dilemma to fall into another. When corporation "ads" make possible the distribution of a campaign book to party workers the spirit if not the letter of the Corrupt Practices Act is certainly violated.

Senator Hatch is unquestionably right in saying that the only straightforward course is abandonment of the book. In the meantime, it is to be hoped that he will take the lead in proposing amendments to the law leaving no doubt whatever as to the legality of the practices he and the Attorney General have condemned.

Salutary Revival

Congress has given a good deal of thought to the problem of restoring men to their jobs after a year of training in the National Guard or the Regular Army. It should be clearly understood, however, that it has not devised a formula which will automatically reopen jobs to men who may be called into military service.

The bills permitting mobilization of the National Guard and conscription of young men from 21 to 31 call upon private industry to reabsorb men with good records after a year of military training. But it does not go much further than that. Failure of an employer to rehire a returning soldier would become an unfair labor practice "unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so."

An employer's circumstances necessarily change when he has to fill vacancies in his organization. Few, if any, industries can simply leave jobs open for a year, and that is particularly true in times of war or emergency. So, in spite of the desire of most employers to take back drafted men at the end of their training period, no binding pledges to that effect can be expected. It should be clearly understood that Congress has not required any such pledge and that it could not reasonably do so.

Because of the restricted nature of the rehiring provision its enforcement is not likely to be a major task. Yet that assignment should logically be given to the National Labor Relations Board which handles other cases of alleged unfair labor practices. There can be only one reason why the House Military Affairs Committee voted to deny the NLRB jurisdiction in such cases. It distrusts the NLRB as that agency is now constituted.

The effect of this committee action is to revive interest in the amendments to the National Labor Relations Act passed weeks ago by the House. The proper solution, of course, is not to distribute the administration of fair labor codes among several agencies but to establish an NLRB in which Congress will have confidence. Presumably the House Military Affairs Committee amended this section of the National Guard bill only because the Senate Labor Committee has refused to cooperate in amending the Labor Relations Act.

Fortunately, the Labor Committee yesterday began a series of executive sessions devoted to the proposed National Labor Relations Act amendments. No special stimulus should have been necessary to produce such action. Aside from administrative problems, the urgent necessity of removing any unnecessary impediment to full industrial production for national defense should induce the Senate to act on this legislation without further delay.

Fifth Anniversary

Five years ago this week the President signed the Social Security Act. A much shorter time has elapsed since the insurance programs created by that act really began to function in earnest.

Indeed, only a handful of persons are as yet eligible for limited benefits under the Federal old age insurance system, while most of the States have been paying unemployment benefits for only two years or less. Yet within the brief period of their existence, the insurance systems and the public assistance program for aiding needy old people, dependent children and the blind have become established institutions.

Changes and amendments to the law are of course needed in some cases to correct defects, in others to keep abreast of the constantly changing needs of a dynamic society. Obviously, no system of social security can ever be regarded as a finished product. Most countries, furthermore, have evolved their insurance plans by slow degrees instead of launching a comprehensive program as we did.

The workers of this country have come to regard the benefits of social insurance as a necessary protection against such unavoidable evils as old age, dependency and unemployment. Criticism of certain features of the laws and their administration has often been sharp, but few critics would now venture to challenge the purpose behind such legislation or to urge its abolition.

Today 50,000,000 workers are entitled to old age insurance benefits, whereas five years ago there was no Government insurance of this sort in existence. Over 28,000,000 workers are also insured against loss of employment under State laws, and over $1,000,000,000 has already been paid out in benefits. In 1935, only one State had an unemployment compensation law, and it had paid no benefits.

Another very constructive development has been the rapid expansion of the Federal Employment Service, and its recent coordination with the Social Security Board's Bureau of Unemployment Compensation. These two systems—the one for helping workers to find jobs, and the other for tiding them over periods of idleness—are interlocking in character and call for unified administrative control to achieve maximum effectiveness.

The Employment Service has also become an important defense instrumentality, since it has been made the official recruiting agency for the defense industries. With its extensive network of exchanges for registering those in search of jobs and for ascertaining their training and qualifications, the Employment Service can provide invaluable aid in mobilizing man power for defense purposes.

Emergency demands, however important, will eventually pass. But it is difficult to conceive of conditions in which the workers of the country will not need the kind of systematic protection against social insecurity which the Government is trying to provide through the new Federal Security Agency.

The Fairest Way

In his speech in the Senate Monday, Senator Norris admitted that a selective draft "is the fairest way to get an army," but attacked the Burke-Wadsworth bill as unnecessary and dangerous. "If we are to have compulsory military training in time of peace," he said, "we shall put ourselves on a level with the dictator nations of the world."

In other words, the highly respected Senator from Nebraska would not be opposed to a compulsory military training measure if the enemy were already at our gates. He opposes it only because that dread possibility has, fortunately for us, not occurred. Yet Senator Norris was one of those who helped make unanimous the Senate's approval of vast additional appropriations for defense.

It must be assumed that the Senate—and the House—voted as they did on defense appropriations because the danger which confronts the Nation at this time is real. Certainly there is no assurance that the headlong march of the aggressors is about to be halted.

And, while Senator Norris believes that the dictators will fight among themselves, there is no present indication of their readiness to do so. As long as there have been victims to despoil they have shown an amazing ability to stick together regardless of the suspicions and hatreds they may entertain for one another. The United States cannot afford to rely upon the chance that mutual suspicion may disrupt this partnership.

Neither Congress nor the people of the United States believe that the dictators will graciously give us time leisurely to build up our defenses. We cannot wait until the enemy is actually on this hemisphere's doorstep before strengthening our armed forces both as to men and as to materiel.

Senator Norris is fearful that conscription in peacetime will build up a warlike and militaristic spirit in the United States. If that holds true in time of peace, it should equally hold true in time of war. Yet the conscription we resorted to during the World War had no such consequences. When the emergency came to an end the draft army was demobilized.

The United States is by no means free from the dangers of arbitrary rule and dictatorship. But the bill providing temporary conscription of young men for defense purposes seems to be one of the least of those dangers.

Caesar Rides Again

From the Hartford Courant.

Mussolini never lets an opportunity pass to play the role of the conquering hero. There is nothing, apparently, that pleases him quite so much as being able to clank his saber and remind the Italian people that his Fascist regime is rebuilding the ancient empire by glorious conquest. Lately, of course, the turn of events in the European war has not permitted much indulgence in self-gratification. Before Italy's entry into the conflict, Hitler was the dominant figure on the continental scene, and the military and political situation was such that the Duce could hardly play a lone hand. Now after casting his lot with the Nazis in the hope of sharing in the loot of war, Mussolini still finds himself in a secondary position with Herr Hitler still directing the grand strategy.

But the way of the war has in no wise dimmed the brightness of his imperial dream. Recalling that the omnipotent Julius Caesar successfully invaded Britain twice, he has begged the Fuehrer to let Italian troops, ships and planes take an important part in the wasting of the British Isles, scheduled for October 1. Judging from Italy's role in the struggle to date, it is probable that Mr. Hitler was not overcome by the offer of reinforcement. Italian aid was negligible in the reduction of France, and the reports are that the fleet is holed up in the Mediterranean by British squadrons. Still, in the interests of a harmonious partnership, Hitler has agreed to permit the Duce to send "token" forces to the Channel to share in the expected German triumph.

"Token" forces? That is enough to make Caesar writhe in his grave. What worthy warrior would abase his shield by conquest by proxy? Paris chose such tactics in the Trojan War, and apparently Mussolini, too, is willing to taste the fruits of synthetic victory. The salve to the dictatorial conscience is, of course, that the editorial writers will draw a golden picture of the renaissance of the glories of ancient Rome. The Italian people will see Mussolini at the head of the brave Fascist legions, reenacting the triumph of Caesar, and not a word will be breathed about the figure in Hitler's rumble-seat.

Col. Lindbergh's Speeches

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Felix Morley's review and analysis of the radio addresses by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, which appeared in The Washington Post of August 11, is so obviously and thoroughly honest and fair that, in my opinion, there will be added to his list of friends and admirers, in direct result of his commendable work, a multitude of new friends and admirers.

There seems to be, in these times, a real demand for writers of calm courage, thoroughly honest, fair and able, anxious to uncloth or unfrock by calm review and analysis, the orators of today for public beholding on merits of the motives behind their orations.

While I instinctively knew that Col. Lindbergh was so thoroughly American I was just as sure that some others, prominently placed in our national life without remotely close to the same claims for national attention, were using the advantages of their offices and trust to undermine Col. Lindbergh, either unwittingly or deliberately overlooking that a wartime President returned to these United States "showered down with foreign gifts," requiring special Congressional authority for acceptance, compared with the single bestowal on Col. Lindbergh and wholly apart from war considerations.

Defense By Wishing

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The very stones should cry out at the illogical reasoning contained in some of the letters published in these columns against defending our country. Do these self-centered pen pushers really believe that the less we defend ourselves the more chance we will have of keeping out of war?

We can't have peace by just sitting down and repeating over and over "We want peace," and the sooner the young people of this Nation get that idea into their pretty little heads the better off we'll all be.

Defends Dr. Cook

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because of the outstanding high journalistic standards of The Post, I was the more shocked by your editorial of August 8 deriding Dr. Frederick A. Cook, discoverer of the North Pole.

You liken this gentle, generous and heroic man, whom I have known since girlhood, to Ananias. Still largely "yellow" 31 years ago, our press became a veritable Ananias club, to crucify one of the greatest of Americans. During those earlier years Dr. Cook disliked being interviewed and shunned reporters. Out of spite and lust for sensationalism, reporters became cheerful tools of Commodore Peary, second to attain the North Pole. This was during the strategic first weeks after Dr. Cook returned to this country, when he was getting needed rest, in seclusion. When he first learned of the storm of calumny the press had whipped up against him, the kindly doctor was too dismayed and too crushed to cope with it. Later, many papers refused to print his defense; they were by then committed, as they saw it—smug members of their club.

Dr. Cook discovered the North Pole. No person knowing this splendid man could suppose that he was either stupid enough to be mistaken or crass enough to deceive. His book, "My Attainment of the Pole," patiently explains the scientific proofs of his achievement, for laymen. Important among those proofs, by the way, are excerpts from the expedition report of Peary. An appendix to this book is a document signed by some 20 of the world's authorities on polar exploration, from several countries, who substantiated Dr. Cook's claims after expert examination.

Favors Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an overseas veteran of the World War, I feel that the Wadsworth conscription bill should be speedily enacted into law. This is the only fair and just way of securing an adequate Army for defense of the United States. No matter how much we all dislike the idea of conscription in times of peace, nevertheless we have to recognize the dangers inherent in the world situation.

However, the bill should be modified totally to exempt from training and service all ordained clergymen, seminarians and brothers. These are all engaged in purely spiritual work, many in teaching, others as nurses in hospitals and as coadjutors in seminaries and colleges. They give their services without remuneration of any kind and their work is of distinct benefit to the community.

This is not the time to weaken the spiritual fiber of the Nation. On the contrary, everything should be done to encourage the strengthening of the spiritual resources of our people so that we may be able to face the perils and trials of the future with unity and confidence.

PATRICK JONES.

In Their Own Minds

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Interesting coincidental references to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt by two columnists in The Post of August 10 merit special notice.

Mr. Westbrook Pegler writes: "That Mrs. Roosevelt is not aware of the Communist control of the (newspaper) guild I will not admit. This is no matter of interpretation or opinion. It is an obvious fact... She is not a journalist, but a diarist and dilettante, and her participation in guild affairs is a presumption."

Now to quote Mr. Mark Sullivan: "Mrs. Roosevelt's motive is a thing within her own mind, only to be inferred from her actions and the circumstances. A common interpretation was that Mrs. Roosevelt wished to give moral support to the Youth Congress; and to show disapproval of the Dies committee, even perhaps disdain for it."

Of course the motive behind the writings of Messrs. Pegler and Sullivan on the same day about the President's wife is a thing within their own mind, only to be inferred from the commentators' actions and the circumstances.

THOMAS ECKLOFF.

Biblical Blitzkrieg

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is remarkable how you can find something in the Bible for every situation of life, provided you know where to find it. In the fourth chapter of Judges we see that God's chosen race was sold into the hand of Jabin, King of the Caananites, for 20 years. Jabin had 900 chariots of iron, which must have been as formidable to the Israelites as Hitler's tanks were to the Poles.

At the close of the 20 years, the Prophetess Deborah sent word to Barak, whose name means Lightning (Blitz, in German), to gather an army of 10,000 men to fight against Jabin. Barak refused to go unless Deborah agreed to go with him. The battle was fought, and Jabin's general, Sisera, was utterly routed, 900 chariots and all, and that blitzkrieg was soon over.

What do you know about Meroz? Look at the twenty-third verse of the fifth chapter, a chapter in which Deborah and Barak sang to praise Jehovah for His great deliverance. I recommend this twenty-third verse to our isolationists:

"Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of Jehovah. Curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof, because they came not to the help of Jehovah against the mighty."

The American Way Of Life

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., has written a primer of Americanism and suggested that citizens endeavor to write out for themselves the basic principles of our way of life. I like this idea and have tried to think through these principles and to see my part in making them a reality.

1. Freedom of speech, freedom of worship and freedom of action we have accepted as fundamentals of our Nation but have misunderstood or misused freedom. We are free to say what we think and honestly believe but we often speak without conviction that is based on the hard work of thinking things through. We are mentally too lazy to make the effort adequately to inform ourselves. Freedom of speech has meant for too many of us freedom to abuse and fix blame rather than the privilege of offering constructive ideas and plans.

We accept freedom of worship as the liberty to worship not at all. For this abuse we will continue to pay until we correct our hearts and minds. "In God we trust" was not put on our coins by forefathers in a moment when they were so hurried no better idea came to their minds. All of us would do well to take stock and see honestly in what do we trust. Do we really care for the freedom of worship and, if so, will we start immediately to worship God in the highest way we know?

Freedom of action we have interpreted as meaning doing what we want to do, regardless of the results on other lives. We have become selfish, with every man for himself. Freedom of action must again come to mean freedom to take responsibility for our community and our Nation.

2. Moral integrity that makes us honest and unselfish. We don't trust each other in business because we have not merited trust. We trust neither party in politics because too often those who fill high positions in the State and Federal Governments have not portrayed moral integrity. We must start building in homes and schools, with renewed emphasis and finer examples, the love for honesty and selfless living that made many names great locally and nationally.

We must lose the mad idea that when "What is a person worth?" is asked we think of his financial success and not of what he is worth in example and character to those who daily touch his life. Integrity of character is built by constantly doing small things right. Youth cannot accept cheating in school and on the playground as morally all right and expect to grow into honest businessmen and public officials with integrity of character. "These truths we hold to be self-evident"—the way the twig is bent the tree will grow.

My American primer would go no further until adult and child have learned well these basic principles of our way of life. Not so they may be repeated parrot-like, but so they may become a part of us—so our living, thinking and acting will be different.

The Post Impressionist

Among The Sassanach

SHE MUST have been a pretty girl, and by all accounts, she became a charming young woman, but my childish recollections of her are of a somewhat grim old lady who would not move with the times. She was my father's aunt, and even Dad, when in his fifties and sixties, stood somewhat in awe of her. Her life span coincided almost exactly with that of Queen Victoria. My great-aunt was born in 1820, the year after the Queen's birth, and died in 1902, the year after the Queen's death. From the time they were both in their early twenties, and both young matrons, until a few months of the Queen's death, the two women were lifelong friends—that is, as much as a subject can ever be a "friend" with her sovereign. Yet my great-aunt never held a position at court—that is, she was never a lady-in-waiting or anything of the kind. She was too busy bringing up a family of three sons and four daughters and managing the London house in Berkeley Square and the estate in the Midlands which her husband farmed in the desultory fashion of his class in the last century.

My great-aunt was born into that now nearly vanished class of "landed gentry," who, until the outbreak of World War I, constituted the real governing class of Britain and the empire. Her birthplace was near a small town in Ireland, about 65 miles south of Dublin, where she spent the first 16 or 17 care-free years of her life, "ridin' horseback an' raisin' Hell" (her own words in later life) with the boys and girls of the neighboring estates. Her own parents, of course, were distinctly holdovers from the eighteenth century, hard-drinking, hard-swearing "squires," and my great-aunt inherited the latter tendency, at least, and must have galvanized many a mealy-mouthed Victorian gathering with her ready-tongued damns. She used to say, "I privinted Mama's goin' to George IV's coronation (the year of her birth), and who th' Hell wanted to go to William IV's coronation? The point was that the latter monarch enjoyed little popularity with the aristocracy, being considered too free and easy in his democratic manners.

My great-aunt always looked back wistfully to her Irish childhood—spent almost exclusively on the farm, but varied by a not too frequent two-day journey by family coach to Dublin, for a few days of shopping, and perhaps a ball at the vice-regal court, and a two-day journey back. When a lady of her mother's class came up from the country, the "draper's" shop was closed to the public for several hours at a time, so that she and some friends could examine the bolts of calico and dimity and Chinacloth undisturbed by casual shoppers, and after the selections—a year's supply of everything—had been made, the "draper" would order in from a nearby tavern a collation of sherry and port and tea, a leg of mutton and potatoes, and would permit himself to partake of a glass of sherry, standing, but not venturing to sit with, nor in the presence of, the "quality."

But this early phase of my great-aunt's life came to a sudden end. When she was about in her seventeenth year, which would have been about 1837, she was called into the house from her tomboy play, to find the visiting dressmaker in possession at a time of the year when she should not have been there. Her mother said to her, "Strip down to your shift, my girl; you're to be measured for your wedding dress." That was the first intimation she had that a young Englishman of her acquaintance, heir to a baronetcy, had asked her father for her "hand" and been accepted. Apparently it never occurred to her parents nor the young man himself to consult her. However, she did not seem opposed to the marriage, which lasted long and harmoniously, and a few months later she made her first trip to England as a bride.

For the ensuing 60-odd years of her life she seldom varied the monotony of London, to the Midlands, to London, with an infrequent trip back to Ireland and an even less frequent trip to Paris. Her methodical, self-indulgent manner of crossing the channel was typical of the woman. She and her husband would progress by coach, in their early years, and by train in their latter, to Dover, where they would put up at the Lord Warden Hotel and simply wait for a calm day and a smooth crossing—wait a week, if necessary. Then, taking advantage of the first favorable opportunity, they would skip across to Calais, and on to Paris.

Although all but the first 17 years of her life were spent in England, my great-aunt never ceased to be anything but an Irishwoman, in speech, mannerisms and inner convictions. There are only two small, nearly harmless species of snakes in England, rarely seen, but she would never walk over her husband's estate, visiting tenantry, and the like, without knee-boots. She rode horseback—side saddle—until she was about 70, and only stopped then because of the gradual introduction of "that damned barb wire."

Pinch In Sweden

Political Tensions Relaxed

Uppsala.

AFTER THE NERVE-RACKING anxiety and suspense of those spring and summer months, when the turbulent flood of war rolled up, from all sides, to the very doorsteps of Sweden, this country is now again living through a period of comparative tranquillity. The menacing tide has receded, at least for awhile, and things are becoming more settled in many ways.

Strolling through the animated streets and avenues of Stockholm, sauntering along the restful embankments of Malaren and Saltsjon, or seated at the terrace of one of those crowded parkcafes around which the music-loving Stockholmers are wont to cluster like swarming beehives, you would hardly become aware of the fact that a war is on. All there is to remind you from time to time of the unpleasant reality may be the unaccustomed abundance of uniforms among the public, the striking rareness of motor vehicles and before all the fact that one stumbles now almost every 50 yards upon some newly finished public air-raid shelter most of which have been discreetly, and with remarkable good taste, fitted into the natural frame of parks, squares, avenues and other pleasant surroundings.

A SURE INDICATION, among many others, that the tension has relaxed may be found in the fact that nearly all the famous mountain resorts and wanderer's paths in Jamtland and Harjedalen have now been made accessible again to tourists. After the German invasion in Norway and while hostilities there were in progress, the Swedish military authorities closed hermetically the beautiful mountain zone along the long-drawn out frontier with Norway, not only to foreigners but even to Swedish tourists. These restrictions have now been greatly eased, as only a 20-kilometer-wide borderzone provisionally remains closed, while the rest of the country has been reopened to tourist traffic.

However, there will be practically no foreign tourists in Sweden this year, not only because of the difficulties of access and the visa restrictions, but still more because all foreigners living here are now subjected to strict supervision and manifold regulations hampering their liberty of movement. They may not ride, without special permits, in private cars or taxis, nor use certain trains, nor leave their habitual place of residence without reporting to the police, and before all they are barred, on principle, from all the border tracts and many other Swedish provinces.

IF THE POLITICAL tension has noticeably eased, the same cannot be said yet about the economic position. The old saying that one bad thing seldom occurs alone has proved true again. While she is all but totally cut off from the overseas markets from which she used to import large quantities of foodstuffs, cereals, fodder, fertilizers and so forth, Sweden this year faces the prospect of an exceptionally poor crop, due to an abnormally long winter and a persistent summer drought. According to latest reports, the coming harvest is sure to fall—at least as far as the two most important cereals, viz., wheat and rye are concerned—considerably below average levels, and far behind the good crops of the last few years. Normally, Sweden consumes about 600,000 tons of wheat and 400,000 tons of rye, which requirements used to be more than covered by domestic production, but this year a sensible deficit is sure to arise.

At the same time consumption is liable to increase, for more home-grown cereals will be needed for fodder to compensate the unobtainable feeding stuffs from abroad. However, although certain restrictions may become unavoidable, there is as yet no immediate risk of food scarcity in Sweden, thanks to the ample stocks of grain and other provisions which the authorities have laid in during the last years before the outbreak of the war.

There is, on the other hand, a certain abundance of meat supplies, owing to the fact that many farmers in view of the fodder shortage are slaughtering much more of their livestock than would be normal. This, again will necessarily lead in due course to a sensible decrease in the milk output with subsequent reduction of the output of fats and dairy products. However, as yet butter is abundant, more indeed than would be desirable. The export blockade in the west has caused large quantities that formerly were sold abroad to be dumped on the home market—with the result that the government has had to take measures to sustain the price of butter. Among these most effective—but also most onerous for a large part of the population—has been a complete ban, for the time being, on the production and sale of margarine.

SWEDEN'S FOREIGN TRADE has been adapted, as far as was possible, to existing conditions by a series of new trade agreements just concluded with Germany, Denmark and Norway, all on a clearing basis. Although but scant details have been published, it is known that the treaty with Germany provides among other things an increase of about 30 per cent in coal and coke deliveries from that country. Sweden used to import from Germany some 4,500,000 tons yearly, but also approximately the same amount from Britain, so the expected increase in German deliveries cannot make up, by a long shot, for the loss of British supplies, and the present fuel shortage will continue to make itself felt. To remedy this stringency, partially at least, the output of domestic fuel from the country's vast forest resources is being stepped up vigorously.

Germany, in return, is to quintuple her purchases of Swedish wood pulp and also to increase considerably her imports of timber and paper from that country. However, even so, the Swedish wood-working industry is facing exceptionally hard times, for even now Germany cannot absorb more than about one-tenth of its normal production, of which the incomparably larger part used to go to Britain, the United States of America and other overseas countries. As a result of this and other factors—especially the persistent stagnation of the building industry—it is feared that Sweden, in the coming winter, will have to cope with an unemployment figure several times as high as in past years.

AMONG THE MANY interesting devices by which Swedish businessmen and engineers now attempt to meet the manifold difficulties resulting from the war, the replacement, on a large scale already, of ordinary motor cars and trucks by "gengas" vehicles (which are driven by charcoal, coal or carbid aggregates) deserves special attention; even electrically driven cars, mostly lorries, are now coming into use here. Gasoline and oil—of which 90 per cent used to come from countries with which Sweden at present lacks communication—is strictly rationed and these restrictions have only just been sharpened once more.

Fair Enough

Our 'Safest' Policy

IT SEEMS almost impossible to check the madness which is being spread through this unfortunate land by such warmongers as Gen. Pershing, William Allen White and the leaders of the Government, but the effort should be made in the interest of peace, prosperity and security.

The issue is simple. It has been shown that aggressive nations which prepare to attack Adolf Hitler bring down upon themselves the most terrible revenge. It has been shown, too, that no nation may persecute with impunity those among its population who strive to create good relations with the Fuehrer and his comrade in arms, Joseph Stalin. Therefore, it is plain that the only safe policy for the United States is to accept the leadership of the German-American Bund, the German-American National Alliance and the Communist Party, which are bravely opposing the efforts of the warmongers to create a great military power.

Those who indulge in the un-American sport of red-baiting must also be included in the war-mongering class, for the patience of Stalin, like that of the German Fuehrer, though great and generous, nevertheless, has its limits, as the plutocratic parasites of Finland learned last winter.

THE ARROGANT rulers of the Finnish people did everything in their power to inflict pain on the brave patriots who sought to promote understanding and closer relations with Russia. The great Russian leader endured the suffering of these loyal friends as long as his heart could stand the pain and finally, from humane motives, went to their rescue with results which the world now knows.

After all, then, who are the real friends of the American people? Are they Gen. Pershing, William Allen White, the President, the international bankers and the war profiteers who are advocating militarism? Or are they the brave but kindly leaders and members of the bund, the alliance and the Communist Party who are striving mightily to prevent rearming as proof to Hitler and Stalin that this Nation has no intention to attack them?

If we maintain good relations with Hitler and Stalin what need have we of a great Army and Navy? As long as they are strong they will stand ready to shield the American people, especially from the misrule of the warmongers, and unless we change our course the time will surely come when they will feel compelled to do for us what they did for the people of Poland, for example.

IF WE MAINTAIN good relations with them we may spare ourselves the cost of arming and soldiering, and even of domestic police work, for they have highly efficient detective and strong-arm staffs, some of whom, doubtless, are at work among us already, seeking to prevent the folly of our militaristic leadership.

It is dangerous for us to persecute and discriminate against those who are loyally opposed to the will of the warmongers. Hitler and Stalin will not like it, and if a reckoning is forced upon them they will liberate us, help us to establish our own Government, under their protection, and punish the warmongers for their false leadership.

Meanwhile the patriotic course for true Americans is to refuse to submit to conscription, to resist by every means the efforts to rearm, to denounce the warmongers and to bear in mind the fate which befell those European nations which, under the power of the plutocrats and warseekers, interfered with organizations like the bund, the alliance and the Communist Party in their efforts to conciliate the great peaceful forces of Europe.

Why Hitler and Stalin want to spare us the expense and bother of protecting ourselves we simply haven't the moral purity to understand. Steeped in cynicism and suspicion, we assume that anyone who goes around waving a gun at us intends to do us great bodily harm. Some people are dumb that way.

Two Defense Methods

By Ernest K. Lindley

Larger Regular Army Vs. Conscription

NORMAN THOMAS has replied to my recent column arguing that a citizens' army raised by selective draft is more democratic than a large standing army. As Mr. Thomas states briefly counter-arguments which are made also by other correspondents, I publish herewith his reply, with my comments concerning it.

Writes Mr. Thomas: "I am against a large conscript army, because it is not democratic, because it is not necessary for defense, because it is a standing invitation to an aggressor in high office to use it for imperialistic purposes. History proves this point. The great argument in many men's minds for universal peacetime registration is as Col. Lewis Sanders put it before the Senate committee, that it 'will force an American unified in thought,' i. e., totalitarian.

"But, you argue, a large standing army is worse; to which I reply:

"1. An army genuinely directed toward defense need not be very large. See Hanson W. Baldwin's excellent article in the August Harpers.

"2. You and others are continually using a parallel between the Army and the police force. It is not a parallel which is perfect, but it has some validity. I have not yet found it necessary, nor have you, to advocate universal conscription in order that the Government may choose policemen. Neither would you deny that it is proper, since we are to have a police force, to have decent conditions for policemen and decent means for recruiting them.

"3. The alternative, either a conscript army (which you call democratic) or a large professional army is false. If we have a large conscript army we shall probably have a larger, not a smaller, professional army. Certainly the whole officer class, noncommissioned as well as commissioned, will be professional. It will not be enlisted for a year or even two years. There must also be a large professional nucleus, in the flying corps, the coast artillery, and the operation of other elements of mechanized warfare. These professionals may be recruited out of the conscripts. They will be apart from the conscript citizens' army and they will hold all the real key positions of power.

"As long as the people feel that they have to deal with the menace of war by military preparations, they will demand some military force. In this age of specialization, an old-fashioned citizens' army or militia will not be the answer. We'll have professionals plus conscripts."

GENERAL ANSWER: Mr. Thomas asserts that a conscript army is not democratic, but he does not offer a single argument to support his assertion. He advances two main arguments against conscription, (a) we don't need a "large" army, and (b) an "old-fashioned citizens' army" cannot defend the country so well as a professional army of specialists trained over a long period. Neither runs counter to the argument that a conscripted army is democratic. The second, by implication, supports the argument. Mr. Thomas recognizes that historically the duty to defend the Nation falls on all able-bodied male citizens. In other words, he recognizes the universal obligation to perform military service as the deep-rooted tradition of this Nation. He argues merely that it is not necessary or practical from a military viewpoint to apply the principle.

Of course, the old-fashioned militiaman who kept his musket hanging over the door—and knew how to use it—is no longer adequate. To be able to defend the community in time of danger he must have more specialized training. In theory and practice, universal military training is the modern application of the duty, recognized from time immemorial, of every male citizen to defend the community. The selective draft is, in turn, a fair way of applying the principle of universal obligation to bear arms in defense of the Nation. The men to be trained are selected by lot, and priority is given to those who are best fitted physically and are not immediately engaged in other essential national duties.

ANSWERS TO SPECIFIC points:

I don't know exactly what Col. Sanders had in mind, but I should assume he meant that universal registration would aid in creating a unity of determination to defend the Nation. Mr. Thomas may call it whatever he likes, but any nation which is not overwhelmingly determined to defend itself is not a viable nation, does not deserve to be one, and is in grave danger of ceasing to be a nation by any test. Obviously all male citizens aged 18 to 64 are not going to be called into the military services. The registration of all within these age groups is valuable chiefly as a symbolic act of affirmation of their duty to bear arms, if they are needed.

I have never compared the Army to the police force. However, every citizen is liable to police duty in time of emergency.

As to the size of the army we need to defend the Western Hemisphere, there are differences of opinion. Mr. Baldwin's estimates are considered too low by other experts. In making them he may have assumed we already have the air force we will not have until 1942 and the navy we will not have until 1945 or 1946.

I agree with Mr. Thomas that, even if we have the selective draft, we will need a larger Regular Army. In modern armies there must be a cadre of trained specialists. How large this should be is a matter of judgment. The prevailing view of experts is that we need, as rapidly as possible, an army of 1,200,000 men, plus at least 800,000 trained reserves. Given our total man power, that is not a large army. To me it seems too large for a professional army and large enough to justify a citizens' army. In preparation for defense of the Nation, the only excusable error is an overestimate of the need.

Hatch Law Statement

Terms Outlined

The Department of Justice statement on enforcement of the Hatch Act follows:

The Department of Justice announced today that Attorney General Robert H. Jackson had issued a circular instructing all United States attorneys that the Hatch Act adds many new enactments to the criminal code of laws of the United States, and that violations of these provisions are to be prosecuted by the Department of Justice.

The circular points out that penalties of $1,000 fine or one year's imprisonment, or both, are provided for the following types of illegal activity:

Intimidation or coercion of voters in Federal elections.

The use of official authority by Federal, and in some cases by State, officeholders to interfere in Federal elections.

The promse by anyone of Federal employment, compensation or other benefit from Federal funds, in return for political activity or support.

Depriving anyone of employment compensation or other benefits derived from Federal relief or work relief funds on account of race, creed, color or political activity.

Soliciting, assessing or receiving subscriptions or contributions for political purposes from anyone on Federal relief or work relief.

The furnishing or disclosing or receiving by anyone of lists of persons on Federal relief or work relief for political purposes.

The use by anyone of Federal funds appropriated for work relief, relief, or public works so as to interfere with or coerce any individual in his right to vote.

The annual receipt of contributions, or the annual expenditure, aggregating more than $3,000,000 by any political committee. (Willful violation of this section involves a penalty as high as $10,000 and imprisonment for two years.)

The following criminal acts are punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000 or five years' imprisonment:

The making of an annual contribution in excess of $5,000 to or for any campaign for the nomination or election of any candidate for an elective Federal office. The annual limitation likewise applies to a contribution made to any political committee or to any national political party.

The purchasing of any advertising or articles of any kind by anyone where part or all of the proceeds directly or indirectly inure to the benefit of or for any candidate for an elective Federal office or to the benefit of any political party or committee.

The making of, or promising to make, a contribution to any political party, committee or candidate for public office by anyone who is negotiating for, or performing a Government contract.

The circular points out that the provisions of Sections 9 and 12 of the Hatch Act which restrict the political activities of officers and employes of the executive branch of Federal, State and local agencies are not enforceable by the Department of Justice, but are enforceable administratively by the Federal agency concerned or, if civil service employes or State or local agencies are affected, by the United States Civil Service Commission.

The Attorney General's circular further states that the Department of Justice will not attempt to answer general inquiries with respect to the meaning and interpretation of the Hatch Act in particular situations. For a brief period following the enactment of the original Hatch Act it was the practice of the department to answer such general inquiries, but this practice was discontinued some time ago inasmuch as the Attorney General is authorized by law to render opinions only to the President and to the heads of the several executive departments.

The circular specifically notes that Section 15 of the new Hatch Act incorporates into statutory law certain determinations of the United States Civil Service Commission as to what constitutes political activity. Civil Service Commission Circular Form 1236, entitled "Political Activity and Political Assessments of Federal Officeholders and Employes," which describes such illegal activity, is available at the United States Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at 5 cents per copy.

Hour Of Destiny

By Barnet Nover

Hitler's Supreme Bid

SINCE THE FALL of France the world has tried desperately but vainly to penetrate the dark veil surrounding Hitler's next move.

Would he, people asked, carry out the threat made repeatedly by his spokesmen and attempt an actual invasion of England, a land which has not been successfully invaded for almost a thousand years? Would he, on the other hand, try the slower but less costly method of waging a war of attrition on the British Isles in the hope that by severing Britain's communications with the outside world the last nation barring his way to a total triumph would be starved out? Or would he, in conjunction with Italy and possibly Spain, first seek to destroy British power in the Mediterranean and East Africa?

FOR CLOSE on two months people have been speculating. Those two months gave the British precious time to prepare for the assault which their leaders never for a moment doubted would come sooner or later. But those two months were, we may be sure, not wasted by the Third Reich. Germany, too, could use that time to perfect preparations for the final battle of the war, a battle involving nothing less than the fate of Europe and the future of civilization.

There was a further advantage to Hitler in this delay, whether or not it was premeditated or forced by circumstances. In the United States during these two months of waiting, the fine edge of determination began to be dulled by doubt and confusion. Appeasers became vocal in the land. Those who not so many months ago were talking of the "phoney war" began to talk of phoney fears. The eagerness to help Britain by all measures short of war began to wilt under the winds of irresolution. All this was grist to Hitler's mill.

BUT THE MYSTERY of Hitler's next move is a mystery no longer. What happens now in the Battle of Britain which began last Thursday and which, during the past three days, has developed with ever-increasing fury will depend on circumstances. If Hitler does not invade England it will be only because the raids carried out by his air force during these latter days have failed to achieve their maximum purpose. For both the nature and the ferocity of these raids point to the inevitable conclusion that they were designed to be the prelude to an all-out attack.

Not otherwise would the southern and southeastern coast of England have been made the major objectives of this aerial assault carried out on a scale never before witnessed in the annals of modern warfare. For it is on that coast fronting the English Channel and thus nearest to the continent that the Germans are likely to land if an attempt at invasion is made.

"ALL SIGNS," writes Louis P. Lochner in an Associated Press report from Berlin, "points today to an early zero hour for a Nazi offensive against England with its climax an attempt to land German troops on the British Isles." And Germany again, he adds, is trying "to bring maximum destruction to railways, airports, naval harbors, industrial plants and gasoline tanks before ordering her troops to move."

How successful these raids have been it is impossible to say. The Germans make sweeping claims; these claims are regularly denied by the British. The one certainty is that the Polish experience is not being repeated. Outnumbered as the British are in the air they are not helpless. If the German raids have resulted in a very considerable amount of destruction the Germans have certainly not come through the ordeal unscathed.

IT MAY BE, of course, that the German attack if carried out with the intensity of these last few days will, in the long run, considerably weaken the British capacity to resist. Of that we cannot be certain. During these last weeks the British have manifested a magnificent spirit of solidarity and determination. They are not shot through with defeatism as were the French; they do not appear to be riddled with Fifth Column elements as were the Belgians and other victims of the Nazi blitzkrieg. Great Britain will be no easy nut for Hitler to crack. And there is at least a chance that he may break his teeth on it.

Yet Great Britain faces the most fearful hour in her history. She fights literally with her back to the wall. England's green and pleasant land has become the last, the greatest, the most decisive battleground of the war. The next weeks, possibly the next days, will tell whether her capacity is equal to her spirit; whether the last bastion of freedom in the Old World can withstand the assault of the Nazi terror which is now reaching a crescendo of ferocity.

On the answer to that question depends not only the fate of the British Empire but the fate of all free peoples everywhere.

Drive on 'Fifth Column' Begins With Registration, August 27

In a move to quarantine saboteurs and espionage agents in the country, the Federal Government will begin on August 27 to register the fingerprints, political affiliations and other pertinent information concerning 3,600,000 aliens in the United States.

The move is a product of the current tense international situation, but duplicates the iron-clad control long exerted over aliens in virtually every European country.

The Justice Department has promised the registration will be in no way a "witch hunt" and will be carried on with the "greatest cooperation" between alien groups and Federal agents.

To finance the registration machinery, Congress recently appropriated $3,000,000. It will operate at 7,500 large postoffices throughout the country. The aliens will file at these places registration blanks which will be forwarded to the Department of Justice in Washington.

Information to ascertain whether an alien is a law-abiding citizen will be sought in the following required data: name, age, race, occupation, date of entry into this country, political affiliations, including membership in all clubs, organizations, or societies, and work performed for any foreign government.

Gayda charged also that Greece long had been a "silent ally and agitator" for the democracies.

"From the first day of the war," he declared, "Greece has . . . offered to extend its aid in every way by contraband and free use of its territory and coasts to the British military command, of which it has become more an open accomplice every day."

Ansaldo, authoritative editorial writer for Foreign Minister Count Ciano's Leghorn newspaper Il Telegrafo, indicated Italy would demand a restoration of Albanian territories under Greek and Yugoslav rule in any eventual readjustment of Balakan frontiers.

Italians Land Troops

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Aug. 13.—It was reported here tonight that three Italian troop transports have landed troops at Durazzo to put down a continuing revolt in Albania.

It is said here that martial law has been proclaimed throughout Albania, but that the fighting Mirditi tribesmen of the district south of Scutari, were continuing to harass Fascist troops. According to information from refugee sources a continuous guerrilla battle is going on.

Piecing together informating coming from Greece and Yugoslavia—and heatedly denied by Italian officials—it appears trouble broke out after the Italians sought to call up certain Albanians for military service as well as to requisition livestock.

A Fascist force, estimated at 12,000 men, was sent against the Mirditi rebels who are said to number 4,000 and to be armed with rifles as well as a few machine-guns and mountain guns. Informants here say these weapons have been concealed for some time in peasants huts and fields, but some sources claim that British agents have been facilitating the arming.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 13 (AP). Official Yugoslav quarters tonight declared the killing of a minor Fascist official at Zara, Italy, was "a "local affair" and that Yugoslavia has been assured by Italy that the Italians do not plan to make it the occasion for a campaign similar to that against Greece.

Army Planning To Call Guard, Defer Draft

200,000 Militiamen Would Be Put Under Arms by January 1

such straddling amendment as the Maloney proposal."

The War Department plans for deferring the conscription of 400,000 men from October 1 to later in the fall, and calling out the guard—both dependent upon pending legislation—were disclosed by Brig. Gen. William E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff for personnel.

Testifying before the House Military Affairs Committee, Gen. Shedd said the amount of time required by Congress in considering the conscription bill had made it necessary for the Army to postpone previous plans to have 900,000 men in uniform by early October. It now hopes to have such a force under arms by January 1, Shedd said, "and even that is an optimistic program."

The present program, he said, calls for mobilizing some 200,000 guardsmen—virtually the entire militia—and about 388,000 draftees by late December.

Senator Wheeler charged the Army did not want conscription because it was necessary to produce the number of men required for defense, but to enable them to maintain a large number of troops in service during normal times.

He quoted War Department officials to show that only 415,000 additional men are required for the Regular Army and National Guard, and urged they could be acquired by voluntary enlistments. The real reason, Army officials want the draft, he contended, is to make the Nation "military minded." They have seized upon the present situation to "saddle" the country with a plan sought for years, Wheeler added.

Demanding to know where Secretary of War Stimson and other "men of the stamp of Stimson" want to send the conscript arm, Wheeler shouted:

"Are these Administration men not counting upon our invading large parts of South America—Mexico perhaps—all in the name of defending our country?"

Gen. Shedd revealed that the Army's new mobilization schedule provides for calling 55,000 Guardsmen September 15; 75,000 conscript trainees and another 55,000 Guardsmen October 15; 50,000 draftees November 1; 65,000 draftees, and between 65,000 and 70,000 Guardsmen, November 15; 100,000 draftees and 40,000 more Guardsmen early in December, with the remaining 98,000 draftees late in December.

Guard Bill Up Today

Legislation authorizing the call of the Guard won legislative right of way to the House floor following a hearing by the Rules Committee. Leaders plan to take it up today.

Army officials were subjected to severe criticism on the Senate floor for what some members contended was a "disregard of law" in "discouraging" one-year enlistments in the regular service. Opponents of conscription have advocated a vigorous recruiting campaign for one-year enlistments as an alternative to the draft.

The War Department opposition to one-year enlistments, despite a statutory provision giving recruits a choice of three or one year terms, was revealed by Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan.

He told the House he had called up the local Army recruiting station on Pennsylvania avenue, representing himself as a young man wanting to enlist for one year. Michener declared he was told that the shortest period he could enlist for was three years, but that when he revealed his identity and called attention to the law, the officer in charge admitted it was possible, but said they "discouraged" such enrollments.

Favors Raising Pay

Senator Wheeler, during his three-hour address, argued that the draft issue had been misrepresented to the country by newspapers and columnists. Responsible military experts agree, he said, that the millions of trained soldiers contemplated under the Burke-Wadsworth bill are not necessary for the defense of the United States or the Western Hemisphere. The numbers actually needed, he contended, can be obtained by raising soldiers' pay and intensive voluntary recruiting.

Earlier, Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, cosponsor of the bill, declared that voluntary enlistments were too slow to meet present defense needs.

"Let no one here deceive himself into believing that his would be a happy lot if by his action he helped to prevent or postpone adequate military training for those who some day may—God forbid—be called upon to defend their country," he added.

Barkley's View

Majority Leader Barkley said after today's session that he expected the Lee amendment providing higher rates of pay for Army enlisted men to be passed today without opposition, but predicted a showdown on the Maloney compromise would not come before early next week. This would defer conscription until January 1, pending a trial of an intensive recruiting program in an effort to raise the required men. Final Senate action is not expected before the end of next week.

'Monsier X' Indictment Filed in France

"treason" of executive agents who, he said, had prevented some of his measures bearing fruit.

He promised that thet revolution which started among higher-ups with the shift from parliamentary to authoritarian regimes would "descend" to embrace all those who should be carrying out the state's orders, but because of "incompetence or treason" are not doing so.

The reference tied in with recent shifts in departmental prefects and with charges that men in many departmental public posts are not cooperating with the new regime.

The court accusation blanketed as traitors to their charge an unspecified number of "ministers, ex-ministers and their immediate civil and military subordinates." It demanded that the court inquire into the pre-war and war periods and fix individual accusations, proceeding for the time being merely against the allegedly traitorous "Monsieur X," and later lodging charges against definite persons. These will be announced from time to time, with a final public trial some weeks hence.

The general complaint said:

"Crimes and offenses have been committed by ministers, ex-ministers and their immediate subordinates in exercise of their functions. They betrayed the duties and charges in their keeping by acts that contributed to the passage from peace to a state of war before September 4 (war was declared September 3) and by acts that later aggravated the consequences of the situation thus created."

These acts, he asserted, were "attempts against the security of the State" and were "committed by persons whose identity will be determined in the court inquiry." He demanded summary procedure against "X"—"the authors, co-authors and their accomplices in the aforementioned acts."

In his speech Petain charged that "pernicious propaganda" still is being carried out in France and that many measures he has initiated for the good of the country have been blocked by "incapacity and treason of a great number of agents" who should have carried them out.

Dealing with the Germans' refusal for the time being to permit his government to return to Paris and Versailles in occupied France, Petain asked his listeners to be patient.

"It is no more than a question of waiting," he said, until the Germans decide to authorize the transfer. This, he said, has been deferred for reasons "of a technical order" and "as long as certain material conditions are not realized."

Gen. Marshall Visits Guardsmen

Camp Beauregard, La., Aug. 13 (AP). Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, paid a lightning visit to the Southern National Guardsmen in training here today, but most of the weary militia, hard at work in the national forests and maneuvers area west of here, didn't see their commander.

Taking time off from his official duties in Washington, Gen. Marshall came here for a 24-hour inspection tour en route from Fort Bliss, Tex., by plane to Camp Shelby, Miss., and then back to Washington.

Nazis Claim Control of Air Over Southern England

and Eastchurch.

To secure the kind of superiority they want over this territory, the Germans declare, it is not only imperative for them to shoot down as many enemy planes as possible but also to destroy ground defenses such as antiaircraft batteries, airfields, searchlights and captive balloons. Should their air force succeed in cleaning up this area—300 miles wide to 70 miles deep—then their air bases and defenses across the Channel along the French coast would be as close to southern England as those left to the British farther inland.

In this area, moreover, the Germans say, the British no longer are in position either from the air or from the ground to hold off or repulse their attacks.

The British, however, are evidently still capable of harassing the territory of the Third Reich proper. At 1:35 o'clock yesterday morning air raid alarm sirens sent the inhabitants of Berlin scurrying to cellars where they were forced to remain until 2:25 a. m.

Whether any enemy planes actually got over Berlin must for the present remain a mystery. No antiaircraft fire was heard.

Earlier the roar of airplane motors was clearly discernible over the central part of Berlin and searchlights played upon the clear, moonlit heaven.

In their assault on Britain the Germans are employing the same tactics which proved so successful, although differently applied because of the difference in conditions, against all their other opponents in this war. Once air mastery has been won in a particular area, they say, it is possible for the land forces to operate with the greatest possibility of success.

The Germans unreservedly reiterate that their reports of enemy planes already shot down represent minimum rather than maximum figures, and when the British contend otherwise they are but following the procedure they employed in reporting the Norwegian venture as well as Flanders. The future, the Germans contentedly declare, will demonstrate who reported the results of this battle accurately.

Concentrated attacks yesterday were carried out against British flying fields at Eastchurch, which guards the mouth of the Thames on the southeast, at Plymouth and at Aldershot. These three airports, the Germans report, were seriously damaged or wholly destroyed.

At Eastchurch, six hangars were ruined, barracks, workshops and oil tanks were set afire and heavy antiaircraft batteries were put out of action while explosions and fires were caused at all three fields, they claim.

Ten Spitfires were destroyed on the ground at Eastchurch, while 12 captive balloons were brought down in flames, 4 of them near Dover, the Germans added. The same units which attacked the airport claimed a hit on two armed merchantmen with heavy caliber bombs, and to have shot down a Spitfire over the mouth of the Thames.

Yesterday afternoon, the German report, there were heavy air battles over Dover and the Channel in the course of which 19 Spitfires and 8 Hurricanes—that is a total of 27 Britishers—were shot down, with 8 Messerschmitts lost.

Several light Heinkel bombers on an "armed reconnaissance" of the Straits of Dover yesterday morning are reported to have sunk two enemy patrol boats which had opened fire on the German planes.

The British, meanwhile, attacked the Danish city of Aalborg at 11:15 yesterday morning. Of the 12 attacking enemy planes, the Germans claim, five were shot down by antiaircraft artillery and six by pursuiters.

Shortly after the first attack had been repulsed, the Germans declare, another wave of 11 Britishers appeared, and five were brought down.

At 2:05 yesterday morning, the Germans charge, British bombers flew over Amsterdam. They first dropped flares, and then four bombs—which, they add, struck a Dutch hospital. Other civilian portions of Amsterdam as well as smaller villages in the Netherlands were bombed by the British, the German news agency declares.

With Tennis as Lure, Newport Leads Resorts

Two Leading Local Glamour Belles, Eleanor Flood and Peggy Townsend, Are Taking Seashore City by Storm

By Hope Ridings Miller

WITH NEWPORT and Saratoga thus far nip and tuck for this season's social laurels, it looks now as if the queen of beach resorts will take the lead from the queen of race tracks.

Tennis Week has done it.

With the twenty-fourth annual net classic well under way, seats at the famous Newport Casino are being filled daily by a diamond-studded audience out-glittering anything the Rhode Island resort has drawn in many seasons.

Hope Ridings Miller

Social registers from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington seem to have been well combed for big names to add dash and oom-pah to the turnout. The Capital is especially well represented—what with two of our leading glamour girls, Eleanor Flood and Peggy Townsend, taking the resort by storm.

House guests of Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, they are feted high, wide and handsome; and if they manage to tear themselves away from the whirl the end of this week, as they plan, I'll be surprised.

MRS. GOULD will entertain tonight at a large dinner for them and her other house guests, including John Newington, who arrived yesterday. There'll be dancing afterward. A similar party is being planned by Mrs. Gould for Friday evening.

If Miss Flood follows the schedule she outlined before taking off to Newport, she will leave there this week-end and go to the Berkshires for a brief stay before returning here on August 25. Miss Townsend plans to be back earlier.

Another Capitalite who is in Newport for Tennis Week is Mrs. Sidney Kent Legare, who left her summer place in Simsbury, Conn., and is now visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick. Joe Alsop is also staying with the Dicks.

Miss Martha Douglas, of Chicago, sister of Justice William O. Douglas, is the guest of Mrs. Bruce Smith at her Newport home. Mr. Smith, who is working with the Red Cross this summer, is spending most of his time in Washington but goes up to Rhode Island on week-ends to join his wife.

Lieut. Tilghman Howard Bunch, U. S. N., of Washington, has joined Gen. John Philip Hill at his Newport home; and Mrs. C. Oliver O'Donnell, of New York and Washington, has with her Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Bancroft.

AT SARATOGA meanwhile, interest is divided between plans for Mrs. Payne Whitney's birthday party for her son, Jock, on Saturday, and the running of the Travers on the same day. Either event would be enough to bring Saratoga back into the headlines with a bang.

Further north, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, summering at Murray Bay, Canada, will have as her guest the next few days Jacques Dumaine, First Secretary of the French Embassy. Later, Mr. Dumaine will visit Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann at their vacation camp near Bar Harbor, Me. Which reminds me—Princess Margaret Boncompagni, who is sojourning at Bar Harbor, entertained at a large luncheon at the Bar Harbor Club on Monday.

The Martins Entertain Brazilians

Senhora Aranha And Her Daughter To Leave End of Month

The Ambassador of Brazil and Senhora Martins have as their guests Senhora Aranha, widow of Adalbert Aranha, who was brother of the Brazilian Foreign Minister, Oswaldo Aranha, and her daughter, Senhorita Maria Stella Aranha.

The visitors, who have been in Washington for some time, will leave the end of the month for a visit to New York. As Senhor Aranha, a prominent business man in Brazil, died recently, there will be no large parties for the visitors. Washington is familiar to them as they were guests here twice during the time Oswaldo Aranha was Ambassador.

Three distinguished Brazilians are in the Capital on a commission to make preliminary studies in connection with setting up a steel industry in Brazil. The commission is headed by Dr. Guilherme Guinle, one of the richest men in Brazil and well known as philanthropist and engineer. With Dr. Guinle at the Shoreham are Lieut. Col. Macedo Soares and Senhor Ary Torres.

Ray Atherton Leases House

Ray Atherton, who is Chief of the European Division of the State Department and at the same time still retains his title as Minister to Denmark, has leased the handsome yellow stone house at 3147 P street, Georgetown, and will move in the fall. This house was done over a number of years ago by Novelist Elinor Glyn, and was later occupied by Mrs. Henry King, the former Mrs. Isabella Greenway, when she was Representative from Arizona.

Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Atherton arrived from Europe the latter took a cottage at the Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia, Mass., and is spending the rest of the summer there.

Also on the move are Baron and Baroness James Baeyens of the French Embassy. The house which they occupied on Kalorama Circle has been bought by Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery Blair, and so the Baeyens have leased a residence in Georgetown. The Baroness is summering with her children at Marion, Mass.

Fay Des Portes To End Vacation Here in Ten Days

Fay Allen Des Portes, United States Minister to Guatemala, will conclude his vacation here in about ten days and will then return to his post. He made the trip from Balboa to this country in slightly more than nine hours aboard a new United States bombing plane.

Mrs. Des Portes and their sons, Fay Des Portes, jr., and Bernard Baruch Des Portes, are in New York after a visit with the Minister at the Mayflower. Mrs. Des Portes will return here for another stay prior to sailing.

C. J. Faulkner, Jr., Stops Over Here

Charles J. Faulkner, jr., of Chicago, is making a brief visit at the Mayflower on his way to Martinsburg, W. Va., where he will take a vacation at his family homestead in the Shenandoah Valley.

Mr. Faulkner's sister maintains the home in Virginia. Their father was a member of the United States Senate. Mrs. Faulkner did not accompany her husband here from Illinois.

Engagement Announced

Underwood & Underwood

Miss Genevieve Mary Jordan, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Jordan, of Waverly, N. Y., announce her engagement to Lieut. Ralph Edward Miner, Coast Artillery, U. S. A. Lieut. Miner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miner, of Binghamton, N. Y. The prospective bride has been making her home here for several years with her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Brink, of the Roosevelt Hotel. She attended Washington School for Secretaries. Lieut. Miner attended Alfred University and was graduated this June from West Point. The wedding will take place September 10 at Waverly, N. Y.

Mrs. Spalding And 4 Children Due on Monday

The Edgar Prochniks Will Meet Them At New York City

Completing a hazardous trip by plane and boat, Mrs. Francis Spalding and her four youngsters are expected to arrive in New York on Monday from Cairo, Egypt, where Mr. Spalding is American Vice Consul.

Motoring up to New York to meet them will be Mrs. Spalding's father, Edgar Prochnik, former Minister from Austria, and Mrs. Prochnik. Mrs. Spalding remained in Cairo "until the last possible minute" with her husband. The roundabout trip home went something like this: They boarded a plane in Cairo and flew to Karachi and from there traveled to Bombay. In Bombay Mrs. Spalding and her four children sailed on the President Garfield, around the Cape, toward the United States. Dry land should look good to the travelers for they have been on board ship since early in July.

Mrs. Spalding will go to the Spalding summer home at Squam Lake, N. H., to spend the remainder of the season. She plans to come to Washington in the fall, lease a house and join the ever growing colony of "State Department widows" here.

After a slight delay the Prochniks' new grandson has been named Jay Raymond Louis de Sibour. He is the 2-weeks-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean de Sibour, who are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Prochnik for the present. They expect to move into their new home on Dexter street in Wesley Heights next week.

Campaign Charted At Keiser Dinner

Plans for the coming campaign were discussed at a dinner given recently by Hugh V. Keiser, president of the National Democratic League of the District of Columbia, for members of the board of directors and several other friends. The party took place at his summer home, the Evergreens, at Fairhaven on Chesapeake Bay.

Among those present were Commander and Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, Mrs. Hugh R. Thomas, Dr. and Mrs. F. Thomas Evans, Mrs. Berrie Rector Thompson, Mrs. Martha Carter, Frank Hoffman, Martin Hysong, Mrs. Frances E. Lamarr, Mrs. Anton Auth, Mrs. Louise Herfuth, James Lea, Mrs. Lena McDonald, Mrs. Cecil Whaley, Mrs. Cecil Broy, Miss Inez Justus, Miss Alla Cleary, Miss Helen Walburn, A. Bohmer Rudd, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Bramhall, Russell Balderson, Charlie Murray, John Simon, J. Leo Kolb and J. Leslie McCuen.

Swedish Counselor Returns to Capital

The Counselor of the Swedish Legation, Folke Wennerberg, has returned to his duties here after a two-week vacation in Salterspoint, Mass.

He joined Mme. Wennerberg and their three children who are summering at Salterspoint, where they will be until next month.

Mrs. Vandenberg To Join Husband Here This Week

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg, is expected to join her husband here this week and they will go to Elwood, Ind., to hear Mr. Willkie's acceptance speech Saturday.

Mrs. Vandenberg has been at the Kudner Ranch in New Mexico, since leaving the Democratic National Convention. She was accompanied on her vacation by Mrs. Oliver LaGorce, who went on from there to visit her family in California. Mrs. LaGorce will not return to Washington until after Labor Day.

Mrs. Vandenberg may return from Elwood to spend the rest of the summer with the Senator.

Returns Labor Day

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, who is on vacation at Pine Park Camp, Onchiota, N. Y., will return to Washington after Labor Day.

Dr. Coulter, who has spent his annual vacation at Onchiota for a number of seasons, left Washington around August 1.

Capital Group Attends Berkshire Music Festival

With the Berkshire Music Festival the center of interest in New England circles, several leading members of Washington society who are summering there have gathered in Stockbridge for the concerts.

Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mrs. Charles C. Glover, jr., and Mrs. McCook Knox are at the Red Lion Inn there. Mrs. Dunn is summering at Manchester, Mass., Mrs. Glover at Marion on Buzzards Bay, and Mrs. Knox is en route to join her mother, Mrs. Anson McCook, at York Harbor, Me.

Lawrence Roberts Are at the Ritz

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., have gone to New York, where they are staying at the Ritz Carlton.

As secretary of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Robert is opening campaign headquarters in New York and will be there most of the time until elections, commuting between there and Washington.

Three Australians Arrive Here on Visit

Miss Rosemary Wright, of Melbourne, Australia, and Miss Jean Gillespie, of Sydney, are at the Mayflower with the former's brother, F. H. Wright, who will take a post graduate course at Harvard Business School this fall.

Miss Wright, her brother and Miss Gillespie spent a month in New York prior to their arrival here and previous to that spent some time in California and Canada.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

GREAT AND MYSTERIOUS was the excitement at Rehoboth Beach the other day when a telegram for the former Austrian Minister and Mme. Edgar Prochnik was being carted all around the town by a messenger boy in search of the popular couple. Not one of the several friends who were asked for information knew anything about the Prochniks being in Rehoboth. Everyone immediately began looking for them and eagerly expecting them to appear on the beach, but so far they haven't put in an appearance, and the mystery remains.

ROBERT HINCKLEY, formerly of Washington and now of Rehoboth, entertained friends at a mint julep party the other afternoon at his attractive vine-covered cottage. Since resigning from the foreign service several years ago, Mr. Hinckley has practically deserted Washington and spends most of his time in Rehoboth with his father. Occasional visits to his sister, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, in the Capital, are the signal for much entertaining in his honor, and much renewing of old friendships.

Mrs. Werlich acted as hostess for her brother the other afternoon and also present from Washington were Capt. and Mrs. John P. Jackson.

SOMEONE TOLD an amusing story of a charming young divorcee who rented a cottage in the pines this summer, a property which also bordered on a lake, furnished complete with rowboat. Recently the lady in question went to a party where she was introduced to her landlady for the first time.

The latter said to her tenant, "I do hope, Mrs. X, that you are comfortable in my cottage and are having a pleasant summer."

"Yes," replied Mrs. X; "I'm very comfortable and enjoying every minute of my stay."

"I hope," continued the owner of the cottage, "that you love the lake as much as we do and that you use the rowboat."

"Oh, yes," burbled Mrs. X; "the lake is too divine and I simply adore the rowboat. I've had three proposals in it already."

The landlady looked a trifle startled and opened her blue eyes very wide. "Have you really!" she said. "We only used it for rowing."

LEE MURPHY spent the week-end at the Corner Cupboard, at Rehoboth, with Mrs. Murphy and Lee jr., who had come down from Washington a week earlier. The whole family returned to town on Monday.

Larry Hooes accompanied Mr. Murphy to Rehoboth for the week-end.

Staying at the Corner Cupboard for a week is Wilson Pritchett, jr., known to the younger set of Washington as "Peppy." Since graduating from St. Alban's School, Peppy has been at Princeton, and has made his home in Philadelphia with his father. His mother was the late Mrs. Natalie Pritchett, who was so popular and so much in demand in the social life of the Capital.

Peppy is accompanied on his seaside vacation by the most engaging Scottie pup who is not more than a foot long including the tail. On being introduced to the beach, the little animal seemed to take an instant liking for sand and salt water as a diet. The results can, so far, only be predicted.

After he leaves Rehoboth Peppy intends to go to New Jersey where he will work in an airplane factory for a month and take flying instruction before returning to Princeton.

Brutus Coste, Second Secretary of the Rumanian Legation, and Mme. Coste are at the Ritz-Carlton in New York. Mrs. Lee Warren, of Washington, who is summering at Southampton, is also at the Ritz for a stay.

Mrs. William E. Borah, of Washington, is at the Poland Spring House, South Poland, Me., for the remainder of this month. She recently returned to this country from a vacation in Honolulu.

Llewellyn Thompson, of the State Department, has gone to Marion, Mass., for a vacation.

Mrs. Sidney Olson will leave today for a vacation in the West.

Robert Coe has returned to Washington after a vacation at his family's ranch in Wyoming.

The Misses Carolyn and Mary Christoph, of Cleveland Park, are visiting their uncle and aunt, Commander Karl J. Christoph, U. S. N., and Mrs. Helen Christoph, at the United States Naval Academy this week. Mrs. Fred Christoph, of Cleveland Park, will spend this week in Altoona, Pa., with her parents.

Mrs. Frank A. Beale, of 4506 Edmunds street, is at the Beekman Tower Hotel for a few days.

Miss Ruth Lonergan, of Washington, is at Camp Culvermere, Branchville, N. J., for the current week.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

THE THIRTY-NINTH annual Clarke County horse show will be held at Berryville, Va., tomorrow and Friday. The show promises to be one of the most interesting ever held in the historic little town.

A great deal of entertaining is scheduled for the two days of the show. Starting the ball rolling were Miss Joanna Huntington and her sister, Edith, who gave a dinner dance last evening at Journey End, the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, near Bluemont. The girls will entertain at a house party. Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh will entertain a number of their friends at their home, Springsburg, on the Shenandoah River. They are planning a supper party to follow the show on Thursday. Festivities will continue over the week-end.

A. B. HUMMER, secretary of the show, is seeing that the grounds are in perfect condition for the show. There will be a carnival in conjunction with the show. Among the horses to be shown are those from Springsbury Stables, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Greenhalgh and Llangollen Stables at Upperville, owned by Mrs. Jock Whitney. Dr. Lewis N. Allen, of Winchester, who maintains stables near Berryville, has entered a number of horses and others showing will be Ernest Redmon, of Middleburg; Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, of Warrenton; Robert Waters, of Johnstown, Pa.; Miss Anna Hedrick, of Arlington; R. M. Menefee, of Sperryville; Mrs. Walter McK. Jones, of Upperville; Tommy Dowell and Edward Barker, of Warrenton; Miss Mary O'Fallon, of Berryville; Clay Carr, sr., of Boyce, Va.; Irvin Beavers, of Middleburg; Charles V. B. Cushman, of Upperville; H. C. Thompson, of Hillsboro, and Shirley Payne, of Purcellville.

STILL OTHERS who will enter their horses are Mrs. William F. Walsh, of Bluemont; B. H. Kelly, of Round Hill; A. A. Anthony, of Leesburg; Robert Skinner, of Aldie; Mrs. George Watts Hill, of Durham, N. C.; E. G. Rust, of Philomont; John W. Orrison, of Pesonian Springs; Dr. Emlyn Marsteller, of Manassas; H. L. Down to Earth

"Have you been anywhere yet?"

"Oh, we're not taking any trip this summer—that is, except for a few little week-end jaunts."

"We're not either—except of course we may run down to the beach for a couple of weeks' rest."

"Well, we've just made up our minds to settle down and live more simply."

"So have we! I think everybody's got to come to it."

"Yes indeed! We've all been too soft. Look at France!"

"I know. Well, we're just cutting down on everything. We're going to sell one of the cars."

"We're even thinking of letting our chauffeur go."

"Welll, we may get rid of both our cars and just use taxis."

"We're not going to let Junior take his car to college this fall. You know I think young people have just got to learn how to pioneer."

"So do I. They're terribly soft."

"Why it's disgraceful! What do you think Gracie wants now? A silver fox jacket! I told her she'd simply have to take skunk."

"You did exactly right! They've got to get down to more primitive values."

"Yess indeed! Why, look at our grandmothers! That's why I decided to do without new drapes this fall."

"That's why I'm wearing my old beaver coat another year."

"It's the only way to save democracy!"

"Another thing: I'm going to cut down on my clubs."

"So am I. Besides, if I let my second maid go I won't have time for anything on the outside."

"Well, of course, it's going to be hard giving up so many things, but when I think of what my grandmother—or at least my great-grandmother — went through I know I have the stuff in me to do it!"

"So have I. Icome of pioneer stock. As a matter of fact, if I had to, I could get along with only a part-time maid!"

Well, we may just give up all our servants—that is, except for having someone come in to do all the heavy work—especially since there'll be just the two of us at home this winter."

"Say, you'll never guess what we're thinking of doing."

"What?"

"Giving up our home entirely!"

"No!"

"Yes. We've just about decided "So have I. I come of pioneer —store the furniture and move into a hotel!"

'Minnikins' on Parade

It's Bare Midriff For the Blues Now, Says Designer

Hollywood.—Time was when sage advisors would suggest that a girl buy a new hat strictly on the daring side if she felt drab, mousy and uninteresting. But this season, says Designer Howard Shoup, it's a dress with a bare midriff that exerts the greater influence on the woebegone.

Howard thinks the bare midriff should merely suggest itself for formal wear but "be blatant about the whole thing" for sports wear. Ideal in the first category is the evening gown Ida Lupino is wearing in "They Drive by night."

Of deep azure chiffon, a bare midriff is hinted at under a broad waist section of lattice work done in the self material. Brenda Marshall's black mousseline bouffant works the same subtle wonders with a panel of white mesh lace for a midriff.

A WOMAN'S WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

"WOMEN ARE DOING unusual things these days. They're quietly seeping into everything, and by the time the men realize what is going on, it will be too late for them to do anything about it." Thus speaks Estelle M. Whiting, who is in a position to know. She's an active partner in the firm of Whiting-Herrity-Rhodes, Inc., which handles the installation and repair of elevators.

Estelle Whiting

Mr. Whiting died in 1929, less than three years after their marriage. "He'd never told me anything about the business; said I'd never have to bother with it," according to Mrs. Whiting. "I guess he thought I was dumb. I could have gotten along all right after his death, but I didn't want to live on a shoestring. Besides, I had an itch to do something. So I took over his interests and became manager of the office. A month later my partner fell ill and was out for nine months, leaving me to supervise the company's outside work as well."

She now is familiar with the mechanics of elevator repair, though she wouldn't want to tackle an ailing elevator herself. Her only difficulty is with the union, which seems to feel it can get away with sending her all its poorest workmen. "I used to take anything they sent, but no more," she says. "If a man is not good I fire him at the end of the first day."

His real name is Limehouse Snooty, and his breed is Kerry Blue terrier. His latest fad is a colored leash to match Miss Fuqua's costume, be it pink, blue, yellow or fireman's red.

WANTED: A good plain cook, fond of children. Apply Mrs. J. P. Summerscale, wife of the commercial secretary of the British Embassy. At present Mrs. Summerscale is doing all the housework for her husband and two children. But she is expecting an addition to the household in the form of eight English refugees—two mothers and six youngsters aged 1 to 5 years. She doesn't feel up to cooking for 12 mouths.

Mrs. Eber Woodruff doesn't give up easily. When a purse snatcher confronted her the other night in front of her home, 3708 Ingomar street northwest, she nearly proved a match for him and would have won out if the purse strap hadn't broken. So the thief is the richer for 16 cents and an old compact. In the struggle, however, he lost his hat. Mrs. Woodruff is the richer for that—and the price mark in it reads $2.50.

A Washington newspaperman, well-known for his tricks with the telephone, once dialled a wrong number while inviting some friends to a party. He apologized for his mistake; then, because the feminine voice at the other end had considerable oomph, asked her to the party anyway, sight unseen. The whimsy ended on two rather sour notes; the gal turned out to have considerably less oomph than her voice indicated, and she brought her husband to the party.

Colonial Villagers who carouse late Saturday night must nevertheless arise with the virtuous by 8 a. m. Sunday to set their trash and garbage outside the door. If they try to prolong their Sabbath rest by putting the containers out with the cat at bedtime, they receive a warning from the management; after repeated offenses, the collector takes away the trash containers with the trash, and they must start all over again with new equipment.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Divorcee, 21, Loves and Is Loved by Man Whose Church Doesn't Recognize Divorce; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 21 years old and I go with a boy who is now 23. No two people ever got along so well together. We never disagree, are always completely happy together and I adore him and think there is no one like him. We have been going together for two years—occasionally at first, but constantly during the last six months.

Very often we visit his parents and his married brothers and sisters and they all seem very fond of me. They say I am the nicest girl he has ever had and they are always asking us when we are going to get married, as they want me to marry him.

But here is the trouble: When I was 17, I married a young man in another city. The marriage lasted only four months. We simply couldn't get along, so I left him and came home. He was miserly with money, and it seems we just didn't love each other. I think I was more in love with the idea of getting married than I was in love with the man; and, too, we were both very young.

Several months later I met this other man and we have gone together ever since. In the meantime I got a divorce. But he and his family are devout members of the Catholic faith, and do not believe in divorce. Also, his family doesn't know that I have been divorced. The boy says he wants to marry me more than anything in the world, but doesn't see how it can be arranged, since I am a divorcee.

Don't you think if he loved me as much as he says, that he would marry me regardless of his church? Or else find some way whereby we could be married in the church? I am nearly frantic at the thought of losing him. He is my whole world and I never was really happy until I met him. And I am a nice girl and a decent girl and well thought of by my friends and my parents' friends. I pray that you can help me with my problem. Sincerely,

CLAUDIA.

Get Church's Ruling In Particular Case

DEAR CLAUDIA: About a year ago the question of the eligibility of divorced persons to be married by the sacramental rites of the Catholic church was discussed in this column. At the time, I went to considerable effort to get the church's view of the subject. Here, in brief, is what I learned:

The Catholic Church does not recognize divorce as restoring married persons to single status in cases where the marriage has been valid (from the point of view of canon law) from the beginning. But, on the other hand (and here is hope for you), it holds certain unions to have been null from the beginning, even when the parties have entered into the contract in good faith. If such a partnership is legally dissolved, and one person or the other thereafter becomes a member of the Catholic Church, and wishes to be married by its rites, the case is brought before the Matrimonial Court of the Diocese for review.

Circumstances may be—and even frequently are—disclosed which justify a declaration of nullity. Which is to say that, in the view of the church, a valid contract has never existed. In the event of such finding, the person whose former relationship has been dissolved by divorce (to employ the legal, civil or social term), is considered eligible for full participation in the irrevocably binding sacramental rites of marriage in the Catholic Church, of which he has now become a member.

Perhaps your beau, like many another hereditary member of the Catholic faith, just isn't sufficiently acquainted with the church's canonical interpretation of Christian marriage, to realize that he may have a fighting chance, as it were, to make you his wife with his church's blessing.

So perhaps it is ignorance and unfounded fear of learning the so-called "worst" which has caused him to delay so long in applying to church authority for clarification of the cruel issue. But he is being most unfair in racking you with uncertainty. He should have undertaken, long since, to find out whether you can be married in his church. If he learns that you cannot, and if his conscience will not permit him to give up his faith for you, then he should say so honestly and renounce all claims upon your time and affections. M. H.

Sea Foods, Vegetables Aids to Reducers

Fish Are Low In Calories and Now in Season

By Ida Jean Kain

IT seems that sea food is something you are either mad about or something you never touch. It depends somewhat on where you grew up. If you were born and raised inland perhaps you never touch it—but if you were brought up in Maine or Connecticut you think nothing of driving 50 miles for lobster, and while it is cooking you whet your appetite with a shrimp cocktail and clam broth!

Because of the violent pros and cons on the subject of sea food it appears rather infrequently on my reducers' menus. But actually sea foods and fish are very low in calories, and if you like them this is the season to enjoy them.

Habits of Eating

It's funny how we get set in our ways of eating. Where I grew up we didn't have sea food. We had a garden, and string beans, tomatoes and potatoes outgrew everything else. So perhaps that helps to account for the abundance of these vegetables in the diets.

At any rate, I have been asked on several occasions whether string beans have any special reducing virtue, or would it be all right to eat something else for a change.

As a matter of record, there are a couple of things in favor of string beans—they are cheap and low in calories and are good served plain. But if you prefer summer squash it's just as inexpensive and practically as low in calories. Any of the following vegetables can be substituted for the ones mentioned in the day's menu: spinach, chard, lettuce, asparagus, okra, celery, summer squash, brussels sprouts and broccoli. A three-ounce serving of any of the following vegetables will not exceed 50 calories: carrots, beets, peas, squash, turnips, onions, one small ear of corn and rutabagas.

Some Can, Some Can't

Cooked cabbage is another much disputed food item. Some people can eat it and some can't, but it is low in calories and excellent in the reducer's menu. Usually raw cabbage is included, as it is easily digested and is a means of stepping up the vitamin C intake. Tomatoes are included abundantly for the same reason.

Since cauliflower seems to require the addition of a sauce and eggplant tastes better fried, I don't suggest them very often. But if you are willing to give up something else so you can have fried eggplant, count it 175 calories for two average slices. This count allows for the breading, plus a tablespoon of fat for frying. Most scalloped vegetables count 100 calories per half cup.

With a little calorie juggling you can change the menus to suit your particular taste and still reduce on schedule. The important thing is to keep within your calorie limit for the day.

Summer Squash And String Beans Are Recommended

SEA FOOD AND FISH	Calorie Count

Big Italian DriveRepulsed, British Claim

But Rome Declares Battle Still Rages In Somaliland Sector

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 13.—Britain's warriors in British Somaliland, who let advancing Italian troops seize three towns, have repulsed one general attack, it was reported today.

The British high command said the assault was delivered last Sunday on defense positions covering Jugargan Pass, 35 miles south-southeast of Berbera, capital and principal port of British Somaliland.

"In spite of intensive support by low-flying aircraft, the attacks were broken up and repulsed by our artillery and small arms fire," a British communique reported.

The Italians have been driving across Somaliland since they captured Hargeisa, Oadweina and Zeila last week. British sources have indicated they would let the Italians advance, extending supply lines, until they are where the British want them.

Reports of Italian troop concentrations along the Libyan-Egyptian border brought a sharp warning from the Egyptian press that Egypt would fight beside the British if the Italians attack her.

The newspaper Albalagh said the Italian attack likely would come in late August or early September, when the heat is more bearable.

Battle Raging, Rome Says

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 13.—The battle that will decide the fate of British Somaliland was continuing today, according to the Italian high command which announced the capture of Adadleh, a village about 50 miles from Berbera.

The battle, said the communique, began at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and is still raging.

In that zone the British have erected several small forts which, so far, the Italians have not been able to take, according to military experts here. The enemy positions are being subjected to intense bombings and the British offer stubborn resistance with a view to delaying the advance as long as possible in order to permit the evacuation of British personnel and the withdrawal of ships, stores and ammunition, as well as foodstuffs from Berbert, the Italians say.

At the same time, the communique announced a series of air raids over Malta during which oil tanks weer est on fire.

[Two waves of Italian bombing planes raided Malta Tuesday, dropping a number of bombs, including incendiary missiles, International News Service reported from Valetta. Slight damage was caused and one civilian casualty was reported.]

Mysterious Air Crashes Kill 16 in Australia

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 13.—Two unexplained plane crashes today killed 16 persons, including Lieut. Gen. Sir Cyril B. B. White, chief of the Australian Army staff, and three commonwealth cabinet ministers.

One plane carrying the high Australian officials and six other persons crashed and burst into flames in a forced landing near the Canberra Airport.

The other, a Royal Australian Air Force machine which left Brisbane Monday, was given up as lost, its victims presumably drowning at sea.

Ministers in the first plane were en route from Melbourne to Canberra to attend a cabinet meeting. They were:

Brigadier Geoffrey A. Street, defense.

J. V. Fairbairn, air.

Sir Henry Gullett, vice president of the executive council.

Other victims were Sir Cyril's chief aide, Col. Thornthwait; Street's secretary, and the four members of the crew.

Government officials immediately postponed the cabinet meeting and a scheduled session of the commonwealth loan council.

Premier Robert G. Menzies said the disaster was "a great national calamity . . . Every man concerned was doing war service of the first importance."

British Boats Machinegun, Ram Nazi Foe

By Robert P. Post.

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 13.—The old days of naval warfare were reenacted in a modern dress early this morning when a squadron of British motor torpedo boats—part of the navy's "mosquito fleet"—took on heavier German ships with machine guns and hand grenades.

The captain of one of the British launches—they are not much more than that—saw a shape looming out of the darkness which he took for a German E-boat of the same size and type. He was too close to use his torpedoes, for they would have blown him up as well as the enemy. So the young captain—these boys usually steer themselves, in an action—jammed the throttles down, spun the wheel over and rammed the German at about 30 knots.

The German, which had been sighted at less than 100 yards distance, was larger than the motor torpedo boat and was apparently made of steel. The torpedo boat's bows crumpled in the ramming.

There were two Germans sighted togeiher. It is not known what they were, though they were small. A good guess is that they were minesweepers. Anyhow, the second boat in the British line dashed right between them with all its machineguns spitting and as it went past the sailors on the Britisher's decks heaved grenades at the enemy.

Though it was a question, attacking a dim shape only outlined by flashes of gunfire, the British think the attack was effective. The German return fire caused no casualties. Indeed, the only damage done to the British was that to bows of the boat that rammed the German vessel.

A third British motor-torpedo boat sighted something bigger at a distance and shot past the original action and when close to two bigger German ships, opened point-blank with her machineguns.

Later one of the British squadron had two running fights with a German E-boat, but it was too dark to tell what damage was inflicted.

It must have been a big evening for the hand-picked crews of these little boats which showed their willingness to go baldheaded for anything they see. What led the British ships into the area was not revealed, but it is probable they had received reports of a concentration of German torpedoboats, possibly in preparation for an attack on a convoy.

Anyhow the British went out to the other side of the Channel to have a look and found plenty of opposition.

The night's excitement did not end with dawn. Presumably on the way home some of the little British ships drew the attention of a German plane. Again machine guns spat as the German attacked from 500 feet.

When last seen, according to the admiralty, the plane was on fire and losing height. The British boats apparently left it to its own devices.

WORLD FAVORITES IN NEPTUNE. The Dannie Danford Trio, opening in the Neptune Room next Saturday, has played for the world's most famous pairs of lovers—the Duke of Windsor and Wally, King Carol of Rumania and Magda Lupescu. They've also performed for Princess Helene of Greece, Crown Prince Michael of Rumania and (sh-h!) for Hitler himself!

When World War II broke out the Danford Trio was starred at Berlin's Wintergarten. On the day Poland was invaded they fled to Norway but finally made their way back to the United States. The impressive list of the Danford European bookings includes Paris' Bal Tabarin and Monte Carlo's Sporting Club. Their music features the novachord, vibraharp, clarinet and flute . . . Please note that you've only until Friday to catch Washington's own Three-Star Trio now scoring so smartly in Neptune.

First Washington press agent to get into uniform will probably be Bill Mullett, authority on Shoreham Terrace activities. He holds a reserve commission as lieutenant in the 320th Infantry, expects to be called to duty soon at Fort Belvoir.

Danaher Offers Bill To Tighten D. C. Insurance Laws

A string of amendments to a bill, now pending on the Senate calendar, which aims to tighten and modernize District laws and regulations on fire, marine, casualty and title insurance was introduced yesterday by Senator John A. Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut.

The alterations proposed by Senator Danaher would extend insurance coverage to any form of damage of glass and its appurtenances, instead of merely the breakage of plate glass; all types of damage traceable to boilers, not merely boiler explosions, and otherwise expand the insurance protection field.

The bill passed the House several months ago and was to have been called up on the Senate floor last week but Senator Danaher prevailed upon Chairman William H. King, of the Senate District Committee, to hold the measure in abeyance until the former submitted his suggested changes.

Browder's Wife Quizzed on Entry

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Earl Browder, Russian-born wife of the Communist Party's Presidential candidate, was questioned at Ellis Island today on the legality of her entry into the United States.

She was released in custody of her attorney after the questioning. Immigration officials declined to discuss the case, saying the results of their examination would be sent to the Department of Justice in Washington.

Earlier, immigration officers in Washington had reported there was no record of Mrs. Browder's entry into this country. They said Browder had requested she be allowed to leave the country and return under the quota of some nation such as Canada to meet legal requirements.

Sumners Bill Will Pass, Capper Says

Author's Plea for Rule Postponed Till Today By House Committee

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Congress should and will pass the Sumners resolution, which provides for a constitutional amendment authorizing national representation for the District, Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, told the Senate yesterday.

Representative Hatton W. Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, author of the measure, will appeal to the House Rules Committee this morning for a special rule to hasten consideration of his proposal by the House. Scheduled to be heard yesterday, his mission was postponed 24 hours because of prior business.

Heartily indorsing the Texan's resolution, on condition that a proposed amendment denying the District representation in the Senate be withdrawn, Capper said he sees "a bright prospect of success" with regard to Congressional action at this session on the question.

"Answers Objections"

"The Sumners proposal," the ranking minority member and former chairman of the Senate District Committee declared, "answers completely objections which have been raised against all other national representation resolutions as attempts to write a statute into the Constitution.

"I am strongly in favor of the Sumners amendment in its original form, but not with the amendment proposed by the House Committee on the Judiciary which eliminates the right of Congress to grant representation to the District in the Senate. The people of the District deserve and need to be represented in the Congress, which consists of both the House of Representatives and the Senate."

"Step to Right Great Wrong"

The veteran legislator, long a champion of District enfranchisement, said he is confident that "before the present session of Congress adjourns we will take the long-deferred step to right a great wrong which has done a great injustice to a fine, intelligent, public-spirited and patriotic people."

Since it provides for a constitutional amendment, the Sumners resolution would require a two-thirds vote in both houses for enactment. Capper said he believes the proposal has sufficient strength in Congress to pass and that it would be approved by the necessary three-fourths of the States.

Sumners Bill Held Simpler

This measure, approved by the Senate District Committee for the first time in 1922 and reaffirmed in 1927, provided for a Constitutional amendment empowering Congress to grant one Senator, proportional representation in the House, and Presidential Electors. It also granted District citizens the same rights in Federal courts as residents of States.

The Sumners resolution, said Capper, is simpler, yet would give Congress broader power. It does not require any hearings, according to the Kansan's view, inasmuch as virtually all pertinent facts on representation for the District have been brought out at Senate hearings in the past.

"There is ample record upon which to base immediate action," Senator Capper said in his 10-minute floor speech. "This is a fundamental American question and no sound American objection can be raised against it."

Turned down yesterday by the Rules Committee, which was too busy hearing arguments on the child refugee and National Guard bills to take up the District suffrage question, Congressmen Sumners and Guyer (Republican), of Kansas, who accompanied Sumners, issued statements urging action on the resolution on representation.

Author Defines Bill's Powers

"All this resolution proposes," said its author, "is an enabling Constitutional amendment granting more complete power to the Congress to provide for the District of Columbia, and modify from time to time as it sees fit, such a government as in the light of its judgment and experience would be most suitable for the people and yet not interfere with the Federal interests."

Since Congress, under the Constitution, is responsible for the Capital's home government, it should have authority to grant inhabitants representation on Capitol Hill, "provided, of course, such a grant of right would not interfere with the Federal interest," Sumners asserted.

Guyer, ranking Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee, of which Sumners is chairman, said he favors the proposed amendment because all American citizens are entitled to a voice in their Government, and it would relieve Congress of its present burden as the Capital's governing body.

Sees No Valid Objection

"This will really make Washington a part of the Nation with all its responsibilities and burdens in harmony with the fundamental principle upon which this Nation was founded, that Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed and that 'taxation without representation is tyranny,' Guyer stated.

He said he sees no valid reason why District inhabitants might not have the right of local self-government, under Congressional supervision.

Besides Sumners and Guyer, Chairman Jennings Randolph, of the House District Committee is expected to appear before the Rules Committee at 10:30 a. m. today to request a special rule giving the Sumners resolution privileged status, thus assuring early floor action.

Jailed Man Kept on WPA, Jury Charges

Padding of a WPA pay roll here was charged by the District grand jury in a bulky indictment presented to Justice James W. Morris in the District Court yesterday.

Accused by the grand jury was Harry O. Williams, 56-year-old former WPA foreman. The indictment charged that Williams carried Simms Breashears on his pay roll as a laborer for a period of several months, during which Breashears was in jail, in the hospital, or idle. The men were asserted by investigators to have divided the wages collected by Breashears.

Both men were charged with presenting false claims to the Government, which carries a maximum penalty of ten years in prison and $10,000 fine, and criminal conspiracy, which carries a maximum of two years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The indictment was among 43 presented in the District Court yesterday.

Those indicted were:

Missing D. C. Youth Hunted by Police In Three States

Police of three States were searching last night for a 15-year-old District youth who disappeared from his home here Sunday shortly after returning from church.

WILHITE

The missing boy is Richard Wilhite, of 2020 Shepherd street northeast, who is believed to be either on his way to the New York World's Fair or to visit relatives in Virginia.

Weighing about 135 pounds, the youth is 5 feet 8 inches tall and has blond hair and blue eyes. When last seen he was wearing white shoes, gray checked pants, a blue shirt, and on his left hand wore a ring containing a picture of himself.

A graduate of St. Joseph's Parochial School, he planned to enroll at St. Francis High School in the fall. His mother, Mrs. Edna Wilhite, is a nurse. The boy's father died in 1928.

Goodwill Industries Committee to Meet

The recreation committee of the First Ward Neighborhood Council will meet at the Goodwill Industries, 1218 New Hampshire avenue northwest, at 8 p. m. today to frame a list of needs for presentation to the Commissioners.

Items to be considered are expansion of the Goodwill Industries Boys Club, the organization of a Girls Club and the provision of a reading room.

Other matters to be discussed include a Rock Creek Park playground, play space adjacent to the consolidated school as well as outdoor swimming pool and gymnasium facilities, and a day nursery school at Francis Junior High School.

More Teeth Put in D. C. Health Code

Commissioners Give Officials Power To Force Diseased To Go to Hospitals

A stringent communicable disease code providing the health officer with authority to remove diseased persons to a hospital "or other place" he may select, was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Refusal on the part of the infected person to comply with the health officer's orders could result in a $100 fine, 30 days in jail, or both.

The new code, in the making for more than a year, was indorsed by the District Medical Society and the United States Public Health Service.

Twenty-two illnesses are added to the list of communicable diseases that must be reported to the Health Department.

A case which made the rounds of the courts last year brought prominence to need of revising the code. A father of a family having active tuberculosis refused hospitalization, thus endangering the other members of the family.

Under the new code, any person suspected of having any of the communicable diseases must be reported to the health officer in writing within 24 hours. This applies to hospitals, dispensaries, physicians, laboratories, parents and guardians.

In cases of the more serious diseases such as diphtheria, rabies, infantile paralysis, leprosy, parrot fever, the report must be made by telephone as well as in writing.

3 Policemen Will End 105 Years' Service

Three veteran policemen, with a total of 105 years of service, will be called before the retiring board on the recommendation of the police surgeons.

MASON

Lieut. Thomas Mason, jr., 51, and Detective Sergt. Lawrence A. (Larry) O'Dea, 70, and Eugene Davis, 66, are the victims of age and infirmities who probably will have to "turn in their plates" to younger men.

Most colorful of the three men is O'Dea. With 44 years in the department, he is the third oldest man in point of service, having been appointed in July, 1896. His record shows 16 commendations.

Once regarded as the department's stormy petrel, O'Dea for five years has lived a comparatively quiet existence, directing the activities of the robbery squad. In his spare time, he collected old prints and pictures, of which he has thousands, and placed them on the walls of his office and in the corridors of the headquarters building. It has been said that his photographic collection is rare and valuable.

O'DEA

Lieut. Mason, chief of the Hack Inspector's Office, was appointed June 23, 1920. He was made a sergeant in 1930 and months later was placed in charge of taxicab inspectors. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1938.

DAVIS

Davis was chief of the check and fraud squad until illness forced him to remain at his home, 1333 Maryland avenue northeast. He was appointed to the force in 1899 and was made a detective sergeant in December, 1922.

A. M. Newman New Police Chief For Montgomery

Andrew M. Newman, deputy clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners at Bethesda, Md., yesterday was appointed county chief of police by the commissioners. The appointment becomes effective tomorrow midnight.

Newman is a resident of Chevy Chase, Md., and served in the Navy in the World War. He also served as an investigator with the Department of Justice in the war frauds cases shortly after the close of the war.

Newman has been commander of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase post of the American Legion, and now is a leading contender for vice commander of the southern Maryland district. He is a former president of the Chevy Chase (Md.) Fire Department.

The former chief of police, Charles M. Orme, was dismissed by the county commissioners following an investigation into the attack by a mob last month on a meeting of the Jehovah's Witnesses in Rockville.

St. John's Call Here 'Interests' New Englander

Cambridge, Mass., Pastor Would Succeed Dr. Oliver J. Hart

Dr. Leslie Glenn, 40-year-old rector of Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., has received a call to St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, and is "very much interested," he said yesterday.

The historic church here, known as "The Church of the Presidents," is seeking him as successor to Dr. Oliver J. Hart, who resigned recently to accept a call to Trinity Church, Boston.

Reached by long distance last night at Dark Harbor, Me., where he is vacationing, Dr. Glenn said that he had not finished discussing the matter with "my people in Cambridge" but indicated that a decision would be reached within a week.

Dr. Glenn, a native of New York City, has served for 10 years at the Cambridge church, which does work among students at Harvard University. Previously, he had been for three years a secretary for college work among Episcopal students—with duties which carried him throughout the Nation.

Dr. and Mrs. Glenn have three children.

Smoke Interrupts Movie About 'Heaven'

"All This, and Heaven Too" was interrupted last night by smoke that billowed across the orchestra section of the Metropolitan Theater from a minor blaze in the upper section of the building.

Manager Charles V. Grimes ordered the picture halted to announce the smoke emanated from an upstairs locker room and the theater was in no danger. Fifteen ushers' uniforms were destroyed by the blaze.

City Dads Want a Queen —But for Water Pageant

The District Commissioners are looking for a queen.

With John A. Remon, president of the President's Cup Regatta, they are hunting a regal beauty to reign over the September aquatic pageant, it was announced yesterday.

Thomas P. Morgan, jr., vice general chairman of the regatta, announced that the queen's coronation will highlight the celebration. It will take place during the illuminated water pageant September 27.

Raymond J. Spaeth Resigns A. U. Post

Raymond J. Spaeth, assistant business manager and bursar of American University, resigned yesterday to take charge of the business office of the new Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago.

With his wife and 3-year-old son, he will leave Washington August 26 for his new post, he said yesterday. The institute was created by the merger of the Armour and Lewis Institutes of Technology.

A Kansan, Spaeth, who is 32, was educated at American University and Harvard University.

Cooperation Of Colored Groups Urged at Rally

Necessity for cooperation of all organizations interested in welfare of colored citizens, was emphasized last night by Dr. Charles H. Houston, representative of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, at a mass meeting held on the campus of Howard University.

He called attention to a request by the superintendent of police for 200 additional policemen, and a statement by Capt. Bobo, of the Thirteenth Precinct, that 20 additional men are needed to "go in pairs through the tough spots." The purpose of this, Houston stated, was to "keep down unrest caused by bad housing, inadequate recreation facilities, and unemployment."

He urged attendance on hearings this morning at 9 o'clock at 1712 G street in the case of Harry S. McAlpin, a colored Government employe, having been discharged after protesting a request made to the Civil Service Commission for 300 workers in the national defense program, in which it was specified that none was to be colored.

$646,540 More Sought To Clean City

Refuse Dept. Asks New Incinerator; Brown Requests 100 Additional Police

Stirred by demands of organized citizenry for a cleaner city, the District Refuse Department yesterday asked a 43 per cent increase for 1942 over present appropriations.

The total requested was $2,148,720, an increase of $646,540. William Xanten, director, said this would make possible employment of 67 additional men, a new high temperature incinerator, and formation of a unit of five three-wheel motorcycles.

At the same time, Police Chief Ernest W. Brown renewed last year's request for an additional 100 men and funds to build a new precinct at Forty-second street and Benning road northeast. Both items were deleted from his 1941 estimates.

$3,626,796 Requested

Maj. Brown requested $3,626,796 for 1942, as compared with the present appropriation of $3,332,575.

Xanten asked for $590,700, an increase of $174,940 for his department. The greater part of the increase would be used to hire 60 laborers and 7 drivers. He pointed out that the amount of labor placed on the streets of Washington "has been curtailed materially since the year 1930," this decrease amounting to some 400,000 man hours. He blamed reduced appropriations for the inadequate service. With additional funds, his men would be put on a 40-hour work week, instead of a 36-hour week.

An item which has been overlooked by the Commissioners in past Capital improvement projects—a new high-temperature incinerator—holds an important place in Xanten's new budget.

He explained that the existing two incinerators are heavily overtaxed and that considerable quantities of combustible refuse is being dumped into open lots for firing.

Vigorous Complaints Result

"There is no low ground in or around Washington that can be used for that purpose without engendering nuisance," he declared.

Just and vigorous complaints from nearby householders are the inevitable result, he added.

As a result of this situation, which was not expected until 1950 by earlier city planners, Xanten has set a tentative figure of $385,000 to acquire a site and construct the incinerator. Two sites are listed, both approved by the District land purchase committee and coordinating committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. These are in the vicinity of the New York avenue railroad yards and the area east of Fort Totten Park.

In addition to the demands for an increased police force and a new police station, Maj. Brown has asked that funds be provided to equip 35 scout cars with two-way radio sets, replace 200 old revolvers, and provide the department with a chemist to perform analyses in investigations.

Sadie Thompson's Island Comes to Life Once More

There Is Trickery in the Name of Pago Pago; Star Cast Surrounds Dietrich in Her Next; This, That and the Other About the Theater

IT GOES BACK MUCH FARTHER, of course, than the appearance of the late Jeanne Eagels as Sadie Thompson in "Rain," but that will do as an example for present-day—or thereabouts—theatergoers. I mean the pronunciation of Pago Pago, involved in the title of Edward Small's production of "South of Pago Pago," opening on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater, come Friday. I know of no rule in the English, or any other language, requiring the sounding of a letter absent from the spelling of a word. Yet, Pago Pago, as a matter of fact, is Pango Pango. That is what Sadie, the Reverend Davidson and all the others called it in "Rain," if your memory is one that will stretch back that far.

BELL

The legend is that it all came about a century or so ago, when missionaries began colonizing the South Sea Islands. They came across this place called Pango Pango and attempted to print it that way in the primitive brochures they got out for the redemption of the wayward. Only there was a hitch. It seems that through some carelessness or other the bundle of type containing all of the printer's "n's" was lost and nothing remained to be done but spell it Pago Pago. Having been out that day, I wouldn't be sure that this is the indisputable fact, but it has been Pago Pago ever since—and pronounced Pango Pango.

There is no particular point to all this, needless to say, beyond warning you against the "Pay-go Pay-go," "Pah-go Pah-go" and the like that will be bobbing up in casual conversations for quite a spell now. "Quite a spell" is correct.

"South of Pago Pago," incidentally, is reported by our Mr. Dick Coe, who previewed this languid idyll of the lazy oceans yesterday, as another instance in which the Will H. Hays office turned its tin ear to the dialogue. While not so inflammatory as the blazing verbiage of "Rain," Mr. Coe confides that it will be found sufficiently heated to serve all impractical purposes until another "Rain" comes along to extinguish the impression it occasionally creates.

The Janet Montgomery Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and Sidney B. Lust's Bethesda Theater, in the nearby Maryland community of that name, are finding eager response to their campaign to better the type of motion pictures being shown in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase film houses. With the state of the outside world what it is, particularly favorable reaction is being encountered in the presentation of patriotic subjects. Awakened interest has been manifested in all of the recent "March of Time" issues, as well as in the considerable list of Warner Brothers Technicolor subjects, of which so much that is laudatory already has been set down here from time to time. This drive for a quickened Americanism will be continued for several weeks to come.

Word filters in from the West Coast that one of the most distinguished casts of the season has been assembled for Universal's forthcoming release of "Seven Sinners," starring Marlene Dietrich in her first vehicle since the memorable "Destry Rides Again," in which she virtually wrecked the physical well-being of the long-suffering Una Merkel in that famous rough-and-tumble, barroom brawl. John Wayne, who sprang into the first flight of leading men in "Stagecoach," is cast opposite the star. Another notable in the ensemble is Oscar Homolka, who scored so emphatically in "Rhodes" and "Ebb Tide." Still others are Anna Lee, young English actress; Albert Dekker, Mischa Auer and Broderick Crawford.

The Earle Theater's Roxyettes are losing another talented member. The brunette Marie De Mar is leaving the group to accept a position in the Government. Miss De Mar, who hails from Peekskill, N. Y., has long been featured in the Roxyettes' singing trio and distinguished herself in that fabulous "walking globe" stunt—which, by the way, will be repeated the week of August 23, but sans Marie.

On last Sabbath, I think it was, we had something to say here concerning Marjorie tRambeau's personal triumph in the Warner Brothers production of "Tugboat Annie Sails Again." Her reward for that sterling performance has been the assignment to the stellar role in "Thirty Days Hath September," a screen play by John Gannett and Jack Sobel. Miss Rambeau is cast as the grandmother of a youth who sells his legacy rights to his grandmother's estate to a gang of racketeers. The hoodlums find Miss Rambeau a pretty tough old egg to try to rub out—which sounds like another role tailored perfectly to her measure.

Dipping-Into-the-Past Note

Careful, Those Things Have a Mighty Kick!

FRANK McHUGH, WILLIAM POWELL AND MYRNA LOY have a slightly testy time with a gadget with an immense propensity for back-firing—and when it does! This would be in that reputedly ultra-comic "I Love You Again," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer item, coming to the screen Friday at Loew's Palace. Even Mr. Powell's hair-do is funny!

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—Exciting that our own motion picture industry will do its share via the radio to disseminate counteractive propaganda in South America and other Latin countries. Five major companies have accepted a proposal to participate in a twice-weekly program in the interests of strengthening our economic frontiers in Latin America and to bolster national defense. The idea is that glamour, combined with fine entertainment, will do much to overcome the effect of the Nazi and Fascist programs now being broadcast there.

PARSONS

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Warners, RKO, Paramount and Universal will share the radio spotlight beginning September 15. Programs will be two half-hours in Spanish and two half-hours in Portuguese. Each program will be recorded and then shipped East by N. B. C. and transferred to the Latin American countries by short wave facilities. Lunsford P. Yandell, director of commercial broadcasting for N. B. C., who closed the deal, said every United States industry that assists in these programs is contributing to our first line of national defense.

Jimmy Roosevelt, just back from San Francisco, told me today that he has been negotiating with "Meet the People" for the motion picture rights to this musical. His plan is a unique one and interesting, I think, in that he will not have any big names should he film the picture, but will use all unknowns, just as the play itself featured talented youngsters. He may have a few of the people in the stage cast of "Meet the People," but outside of that he will seek newcomers.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Simone Simon and Gilbert Roland an unexpected twosome at Cocoanut Grove; Jackie Cooper has been at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Bigelow, since she underwent a major operation Monday morning; Jean Parker and her heart, Douglas Dawson, are attending the Santa Barbara fiesta as Barbara Chase's house guests; Lupe Velez entertaining—and entertaining is what I mean—Stephen Fulk at the Florentine Gardens. You ought to see the full-length mink coat Teitlebaum, the furrier, made for Orson Welles to wear in "Citizen Kane." It's clear down to the floor.

Annabella, weighing only 109 pounds since her operation, looks so pretty. She and Tyrone Power were dinner guests at the Edith and William Goetz party Saturday night. In the group of 14 guests were Claudette Colbert and Dr. Pressman. Claudette had her foot bound up and could hardly walk after that fall on the set. Frances Goldwyn brought her house guest, Mrs. Jay O'Brien. She says she hasn't heard yet how many fish Sam, sr., and Sam, jr., have caught at June Lake. Tanis and Howard Dietz and Gregory Ratoff were others in the delightful little group; Bob Preston is driving to Winslow, Ariz., to meet Kay Feltus en route home.

Lew Ayres and Helen Vinson stepping out again at the Beverly Tropics; Bob Taplinger and Ruth Foran having fun doing the concessions at Ocean Park and trying all the trick rides. Ruth's ex, Dick Foran, is devoting himself to Jane Larkin these evenings. The Tail o' the Cock is their favorite place to dine; That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Sylvan's 'Nelly' Draws Summer Record Crowd

By Richard L. Coe

Forty-five hundred Washingtonians—a record crowd for the summer—clustered at the foot of the Washington Monument last night for the Sylvan Theater's production of "Mis' Nelly of N' Orleans," a nostalgic play of a generation ago. Nobody seemed to care that it was frayed with the years and for that there was good reason.

For what those 4,500 wanted was escape from the war of nerves which consciously or unconsciously surrounded them. They wanted to forget a raging philosophy whose complete lack of morality puzzled them. That the Players Club of the Central Community Center was the production group—and a workmanlike group at that—or that the play dealt with outmoded customs mattered to them only passingly. They enjoyed their evening thanks to the Community Center and Playgrounds Department and the Office of National Capital Parks which has been presenting these annual festivals at the unique theater. They watched Mis' Nelly for the playgoers' primary urge—to forget the everyday world—and demonstrated to Sybyl Baker and her associates, who must have felt heartened, the importance of the Sylvan to an amusement-hungry city.

Laurence Eyre's romantic comedy was written for Minnie Maddern Fiske in 1919. It tells of the former belle of the Mardi Gras whose youthful romance had been cut off by misunderstanding and how she contrived to avoid its repetition in her niece's life. Mis' Nelly was gay and clever, still had a way with the men and honesty's perseverance.

Lucille Dickson in the Mrs. Fiske role won her large audience from her very first scene. It's a rich part and Miss Dickson played with affectionate humor. William F. Baker directed the well-drilled company of this prominent local acting group, a cast including William Davis Austin, Blanche Mitchell, Wallace Culver, William McDonald, Mildred Hope, Ann Thrasher, Mildred Norvel and William Schaffer.

That genuinely praiseworthy setting by Harold Snyder for Nelly's garden enhanced the play no end, its clever fountain and lovely doorway capturing the nostalgic atmosphere. And a cooperative moon served Director Baker well for one important scene.

During the action the Student Assembly Glee Club played a vocal part while a concert by the Washington Gas Light Co. Employes' Band, under Otto Siebeneichen, preceded the performance.

The New Yorker

By Frank Case

Author

New York, Aug. 13.

HOWARD LINDSAY and "Buck" Crouse tell me that when they were writing "Anything Goes" for William Gaxton, Victor Moore and Ethel Merman, the parts for Bill and Victor were well along before they had even thought of a character for Ethel Merman. One day they had an appointment with Miss Merman for 2 o'clock when they were to describe in some detail the character she was to play. Still barren of any idea, they lunched at the Algonquin where they saw a lady whom they thought to be a celebrated evangelist; in fact, they were sure of it. Inquiring of a neighboring diner, they learned that the lady was not an evangelist but a singer in a night club. Presto. A character was born, and within the hour Miss Merman was told that she was to play a night club singer who had formerly been an evangelist.

HOWARD C. LEWIS, of Dodd Mead & Co., being in London and wanting to meet Shaw, asked ten or more persons to give him a letter of introduction. Reluctance, avoidance—"Well Shaw, you know. One just doesn't." So Lewis wrote Shaw a note, saying he was an American publisher, visiting in London and would like to meet him. Shaw answered, "Come Thursday at 2."

DIRECTLY across the street from the hotel is the Bar Association, short for Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and from these dignified portals stream "our learned friends" exhausted from their labors in search of sustenance. A fine body of men, prominent among them, John Kirkland Clark, senior member of the State Board of Law Examiners.

"It's very pleasant to see you so often, Mr. Clark."

"It's convenient," says John, "you are just a Blackstone's throw from us."

THE PLEASURE of escorting glamorous persons here and there is often dimmed by the very effulgence of the glamour one. It was my lot to squire Miss Joan Crawford to the theater one recent evening. I managed to keep alongside through the hordes at the entrance, became accustomed to people leaning on the back of my neck at intermission, reaching across for autographs, but on the way out after the final curtain, was bowled down the aisle, losing the lady completely. Arriving outside, I see Miss C. throned in her car with four or five hundred loyal subjects pressed about her, making it quite impossible for me to reach the car. So I appeal to a policeman to get me through.

"What do you want? An autograph?"

"Autograph nothing. I am supposed to be protecting her." Which was a laugh for the cop, and he didn't overlook it.

COLES PHILIPS, ensconed in the restaurant, introduced me to a lady whom he is evidently proud of being with, but doesn't give me the name clearly. Realizing that the lady is some one in particular, I grope about in the fog, finally putting out a feeler in the form of a remark containing the word "malice" and bingo, it is Margaret Halsey, author of the best-seller "With Malice Toward Some."

PAGING MR. NOAH WEBSTER: Who in his invaluable work managed to collect more specimens than the other Noah did in his ark, but still fails to supply to the hotel man an adequate word to describe or designate the person who eats or sleeps at a hotel.

"GUESTS" carries the connotation of free entertainment which is far from true—I hope.

"PATRON" suggests the arts, and no one except Sinclair Lewis has thus honored hotel keeping. (Worfk of Art, Doubleday Doran.)

"INMATE"—Well, you can see why this wouldn't do.

"HABITUE"—Stuffy. And dangerous if applied to second generation.

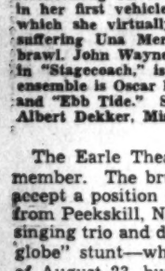
In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Aug. 13.

You've got to give any country lots of credit for trying to take care of its own people. "Charity begins at home" has always been a good rule to follow. But I believe it would be better for the motion picture industry to write their check for a million dollars and give it to the British Relief than to go ahead and make the charity film called "The Rafters Ring," which will have Hollywood in hot water. Because when you get a hundred Britishers shooting in the same film, Hollywood is going to be asked questions. Just how many foreign actors are there here?



HOPPER

Then our own charities will demand that we make a benefit picture with American stars. Picture schedules will be disrupted, there'll be dissatisfaction, because 75 per cent of all profits go to the British and only 25 per cent to American charities.

The toughest job on the set for "Love Thy Neighbor" is keeping Fred Allen and Mary Martin awake. Fred can't get used to the idea of getting up at 6 in the morning to come to work—so he continues his slumber all morning on the set. And Mary, working in the middle of summer in heavy furs and winter duds, falls asleep the minute she sits down. While Jack Benny just stands by sneering, "We grow 'em tougher on the West Coast."

Director Shep Traube, who will do "Dance Hall" for Lucien Hubbard, is one of those peculiar bits of Hollywood phenomena who got himself a job merely by writing a letter. After doing "The March of Time," he was out of work, so decided to write Lucien simply that Mr. Hubbard was being offered the services of a very fine director in one Mr. Traube.

Lo and behold, Lucien liked the looks of the stationery—maybe he could even spell!—anyway, he became interested and hired Shep.

Rose Hobart and Bud Watson are "collaborating" on a new formal for women—white tie and tails. What—no top hat or cane?

It's almost indelicate—all this blah-blah about Elsie and her baby, Beulah. Bill Boyd says he's found the "Oomph" cow a boy friend in Mr. Moo, a young bull that wandered out of nowhere onto Bill's mountain ranch. Bill says he doesn't know where it came from. And Mr. Moo being a strolling minstrel, I don't believe he'd mind being a stepfather to anything.

Johnny Weissmuller goes to South America with Billy Rose's Aquacade, but not till after the new addition to his family arrives and a new Tarzan picture is born.

Director Fritz Lang tells the story of his cook, who has been planning to get married for a year and said the other day, "I don't think I'll get married at all." "Why not?" asked Fritz. "Well," she said, "I won't marry him when he's drunk, and he won't marry me when he's sober."

Patsy Kelly really has a charm bracelet—all little stars set with diamonds and on back the names of friends.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The city slickers will come up in droves tomorrow for the Hambletonian, looking more for bucolic quaintness than for a good long shot. And, because there will be perhaps 25,000 of them with the same thought in mind, they'll defeat their purpose.

CONSIDINE

The rustic fastness of the good time track, where a field of nine has been named to face the weird starting device in the corn tassel derby, will quickly evaporate under the advance of the dressed-to-kill city folks. The thusand or so farmers and their wives who till the soil in this region, and who patronize and make colorful the meetings at the historic and good time tracks will be lost in the Hambletonian crowd. It will be a treat for them to regard some of those fashionable derelicts from the saloon set who believe they are getting back to the soil by breathing Hambletonian dust.

Spencer Scott, with Fred Eagan in the sulky, became a 3-to-2 favorite tonight to win the race, expected to carry a purse of about $44,000.

	Pole Horse	Owner	Driver	Prob. Odds
1	Sister Hanover	Hanover Shoe Farms	Henry Thomas	30 to 1
2	Milstone	J. A. Neville	Wayne Smart	8 to 1
3	Kuno	Dunbar Bostwick	Harry Whitney	4 to 1
4	Stewart	Joseph Burke	Will Caton	10 to 1
5	Queen Victoria	William Strang	Ben White	30 to 1
6	Princess Pert	Mrs. Edith Mix	Vic Fleming	20 to 1
7	Remus	Will Dickerson, Paul Bowser and Harry Short	Harry Short	7 to 1
8	Spencer Scott	C. W. Phellis	Fred Egan	3 to 2
9	Earl's Moody Guy	Earl Shropshire	Tom Berry	10 to 1

Like the old gray mare, the harness game ain't what it used to be—in the eyes of a lot of the venerable gaffers who follow the trotters. It was inevitable that harness racing would have to follow the example of the runners, and modernize. The old-timers of the trotting business resent officials, protested bitterly when judges and stewards were permitted to come out of the grandstand and set up office in an infield pagoda, and the same old boys are now convinced that pari-mutuels, automatic starting devices and finish cameras are taking all the old-time charm out of the game.

That these innovations are also giving the betting public a break apparently doesn't matter to them. Several old drivers are threatening to quit the game, after being fined for beating the new starting device.

Until this year it was the custom to delay the start of every heat as many as ten minutes, by beating the gun. This is called "scoring" and it was practically the strip tease of sport. The field would walk slowly down to the spot where it made its U turn and head for the starting line. The crowd would stand up and yell as the old drivers got their chargers away. But then a bell would ring. One or more drivers had crossed the starting line ahead of time. Everybody would then sit down, and in a moment the aimless process would begin again, and again and again.

The new gate tends to stop these false starts, and the new officials are slapping fines of as high as $250 on drivers who persist in "scoring."

Now the field walks up the track to a point about 60 yards from the starting gate. A phonograph record begins to count slowly. At the count of three or four the driver turns his horse and sulky in such a way as to straighten out in his own prearranged lane, and along about the count of 10 they get up speed and breeze toward the starting line. The record counts up to 15 and woe to the driver who drives his horse's nose under the stringy matter before then. The complaint of the oldtimers is that this nullifies the chances of shrewd drivers to get the jump on less shrewd ones, but the apparatus is unquestionably here to stay.

Why Naval Nine Is Off the List, Or Who'll Throw Whom in Brig

By Bill Burnett

Because of a ruling by the D. C. Baseball Umpires Association, which officiates at all local sandlot games, the Naval Air Station nine in the U. S. Government League will henceforth play all of its contests away from home—or without league sanction.

The situation grew out of the Airmen's Saturday game in the league, according to President George Watt, of the umpires' association.

"Things were progressing quietly," Watt said last night, "despite the fact it was a highly important outing for Naval Air. Then the umpire, who had been assigned to the game, called a close play as he saw it, but favoring the Airmen's opponent.

"Immediately there was a row," Watt continued, quoting his umpire, "players protested violently, which was only natural. But it wasn't natural for a gentleman in civilian clothes, who claimed he was an officer of the station, to also lodge a complaint.'

"According to my informant, this gentleman then called two sentries on duty, who escorted the umpire inside the building to an office. The officer commanded our umpire to reverse his decision with the reminder that 'I have the power to throw you in the brig.' To which the umpire claims he said, 'You may run this Station, but I am the boss of that ball game. My decision stands.'"

As soon as he heard of the above events, Watt, said, he immediately called a meeting of the Umpires Association. It was unanimously agreed never to officiate at another game at Naval Air Station. A U. S. Government League rule stipulates that members of the Umpires Association work all games, otherwise they do not count in the standings.

It will be necessary for the Airmen to find another site for their battle with Pepco today. The two teams are in a deadlock for the top ranking in the second half, following the Station's 4-to-1 victory over the first-half winners yesterday on the Ellipse.

Charlie Meads was the hero of that performance, working the full seven innings and allowing Pepco only three hits. He also had a double and single in his team's behalf, as did Outfielder Shepherd.

Challedon Sought For Bay Meadows 'Cap December 7

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 13.—William P. Kyne, general manager of the Bay Meadows race track, will leave shortly for the East in an effort to induce W. L. Brann, owner of Challedon, champion racer of the year, to enter his thoroughbred in the Bay Meadows handicap to be run December 7.

The handicap, which carries a purse of $10,000 added, will be boosted to $30,000 in the event Brann indicates Challedon's appearance, Kyne said.

Directors of the course will expend $330,000 in purses during the 41-day meeting, scheduled to open October 12.

Indians Now Top League By 2 Games

Deciding Run in 9th Scores on Error as Cleveland Triumphs; Gorsica Weakens

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—Cleveland's battling Indians stretched their league lead to two games over Detroit today with a run in the ninth inning for a 6-to-5 victory over the Tigers.

The Redskins scored as Dutch Meyer, rookie second baseman, allowed Ben Chapman's hot smash to go through his legs. Ray Mack, who had singled and advanced on a sacrifice and another hit, trotted home with the winning tally.

Cleveland took an uphill course in posting the decision, sweeping the two-game series with the Bengals. Johnny Corsica, Detroit's starter, limited the Indians to two hits for six innings, but weakened in the seventh and gave way to Al Benton.

The Tigers' ace relief hurler managed to stop the Indians in that session, after two runs had scored, but gave up two tallies in the eigth and was the victi mof the winning outburst in the final stanza.

Cleveland used five pitchers, credit for the victory going to the last, Harry Eisenstat. Hhe threw to only one batter, retiring Pinch-hitter Pete Fox.

Mel Harder opened for the Indians, but retired for a pinch-hitter in the sixth. He was followed by Johnny Humphries, Joe Dobson and Bll Zuber.

Campbell Homers

Bruce Campbell poled his sixth homer of the season in the fifth inning, and tripled to the centerfield wall in the eighth. Chapman, Mack and Hal Trosky had two hits apiece for the Indians.

Detroit made a desperate bid for the victory in the ninth and Pinky Higgins and Meyer walked. Then Eisenstat replaced Zuber and retired Fox.

The Bengals got nine hits and Cleveland eight.

Cleveland's newborn pennant fever sent 16,128 fans to League Park.

Yankees Purchase A Hollywood Star; He's an Ace Hurler

New York, Aug. 14.—Rinaldo J. (Rugger) Ardizoia, 20-year-old right-handed pitcher of the Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League, was purchased by the New York Yankees today for cash and players. He will report to the Yankees at their spring training camp in Florida next year.

Ardizoia has been pitching for the Stars for the past two seasons and is now leading his rival pitchers in strikeouts with 119, according to the latest averages available. He has won 11 games and lost 16 so far this season for the sixth place Hollywood club.

The Yankees' new right hander was born November 20, 1919, in Italy and lives in San Francisco. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 180 pounds.

Boston Paper Quotes Williams As Wanting to Play for Yanks

'Problem Child' Of Bosox Denies Story; Cronin in Dark

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13.—Told that Ted Williams, problem child outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, was quoted in a Boston newspaper today as saying he dislikes Boston and wants to be traded to the Yankees, Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, said:

Tom Yawkey, Red Sox owner, who was present at today's doubleheader, said the young California slugger positively will not be traded unless the Sox receive a proposition they can not turn down.

"He'll just have to stick to his playing ball and learn to curb his temperament," said Yawkey.

An official of the Yankees said: "Se ne wants to come to the Yankees, eh? Why a pop-off like that wouldn't last two minutes with Joe McCarthy.

Joe Cronin, manager of the Sox, said Williams hadn't mentioned a trade with him and Williams later admitted he hadn't.

TED WILLIAMS

Bartell Picks a Poor Time to Strike Out

'Cool' Crowd and Rain Halt Pastor-Conn Go

Fight, Scheduled for Polo Grounds Last Night, Postponed Until September 5; Shift Juggles Jacobs' Louis Title Plans

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 13.—Rain and prospects of a small gate caused postponement of tonight's Billy Conn-Bob Pastor fight to September 5 and a shift of the bout from the polo grounds indoors to Madison Square Garden.

Since tonight's winner was slated for a title shot a Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis in September, this change forced Promoter Mike Jacobs to begin immediate negotiations for another possible Louis opponent.

The postponement and indoor trek is expected to improve the fight and enhance the gate. It should enable Conn to build up to his hoped-for 180 pounds. When he weighed in today Billy scaled only 175¾ because of last week's attack of dysentery and treatment for a boil. It should boost the gate from tonight's probably $40,000 to $70,000.

It was recalled that Promoter Jacobs' last weather postponement, two years ago, aided the gate robustly. That was when the first Ambers-Armstrong lightweight title tilt was postponed from August 10 to August 17, 1938. That bout also was shifted from the polo grounds to the garden. And the gate jumped from $67,000 to $107,280.

Conn Leaves For Rest

Tonight's bout was postponed for three weeks because of the unfavorable weather forecast for tomorrow and Thursday. Johnny Ray and Jimmy Johnston, managers of Conn and Pastor, respectively, agreed that it would be virtually impossible to keep their fighters on edge from day to day. Hence they asked Jacobs to give them enough time for a week's rest and for two more weeks of training. This should assure both Billy and Bob of entering the ring at peak condition. Conn, particularly should be much stronger at 180 pounds.

Conn is leaving immediately for a week's rest in Pittsburgh where his mother is critically ill. He will return to New York and train for two weeks at the Pioneer gymnasium. Pastor will vacation at Sarasota.

Louis Fight In D. C. Now Is Unlikely

By Tony Neri.

A Staff Correspondent

New York, Aug. 13.—With the Billy Conn-Bob Pastor fight scheduled for tonight postponed until September 5, Washington sport writers converged upon Mike Jacobs at his office to see what effect the postponement would have on the talked-of Pastor-Louis fight in Washington.

The promoter stated there would be no Louis-Pastor fight in the Nation's Capital. Red Burman's name was mentioned as a substitute for Louis, but Jacobs seemed cool to this, saying a Burman-Louis bout in New York at best would draw only $50,000 and in Washington he didn't think it could draw that well.

Promoter Jacobs called the Conn-Pastor 15-rounder off at approximately 3:30 p. m. (D. S. T.). It rained most of the day in New York and although it cleared up later a small crowd seemed probable for the heavyweight battle.

The conversation between the New York promoter and Washington sport writers left considerable doubt that any Louis fight will be staged in Washington this year.

A proposed Louis-Pastor bout, providing Pastor had beaten the light-heavyweight, was originally instigated by the Variety Club, and at first Jacobs was warm for the fight in the District, but with the postponement tonight, Washington apparently will have to wait until after this year, at least, for a heavyweight championship.

Bucs Subdued By Cincinnati In Tenth, 4-3

Reds Score Pair In Ninth, Then Win On Goodman's Fly

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 13.—The league-leading Cincinnati Reds spanked the ambitions, red-hot Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, in ten innings today with the aid of Big Frank McCormick's bat and the wildness of Buccaneer flingers.

Big Joe Bowman was coasting along easily behind a 3-1 lead going into the ninth. The Bucs had chased Junior Thompson from the mound and seemed headed for their twenty-first victory in 26 games.

McCormick lighted the fireworks, lining out the first pitch for his sixteenth homer of the year. Ernie Lombardi singled and when Bowman passed Johnny Goodman, Manager Frankie Frisch rushed Johnny Lanning to the mound.

Run Is Forced Home

After a sacrifice advanced the two runners, Eddie Joost was given an intentional pass, filling the sacks. Harry Craft, pinch hitting, flied out, but Bill Werber also drew a pass forcing home the tying run.

Kennie Heinzelman took up the pitching in the tenth for the Pirates. Last Sunday he walked nine Cub batters, then in desperation the rookie southpaw lobbed one over with a three-and-one count that was slapped out for a double.

"If you do that again it will cost you $100," the irate Frisch told the youngster, "I'll make a pitcher out

Nats Beaten, 6-3, by A's John Babich

Leonard Loses 11th In Night Game; Punch Lacking Among Griffs

Special Dispatch to The Post

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Night life again disagreed with the Nats and they found themselves on the wrong end of a 6-3 score in the opening clash of the four-game series with the Athletics at Shibe Park this evening.

Under the flood lights and before 7,215 customers, who defied pregame rain, the Nationals were handcuffed by Johnny Babich, hard luck flinger of the White Elephants.

Although battering Babich for 12 solid smacks, the Nats missed numerous opportunities, leaving ten men stranded on the cushions. One little single in at least three innings would have made a whale of a difference in the final tally.

Leonard Is Victim

But the punch was missing and this was a tough break for Dutch Leonard. The knuckle-ball ace was charged with his eleventh defeat of the year because he had two bad sessions, the first and fifth. The Macks bunched three blows in the opener for three tallies and in the latter frame concocted four to duplicate.

Resting on this advantage Babich withstood every challenge and closed the fray by fanning Cecil Travis with Lewis, who had forced Sam West, and Gerald Walker on the cushions. Johnny then was tiring and a base knock might have been fatal.

Dee Miles, an outfielder subbing for the benched Bob Johnson, was the jinx for Leonard. He collected three of the A's 13 wallops and two of them were quite damaging. But it was a two-bagger by Dick Siebert which Gee Walker played poorly that cinched the contest.

Gantenbein opened the fray with a single and advanced on an infield out, counting when Sam Chapman grounded one past Pofahl. Miles smacked a safety and then Bloodworth took Siebert's grounder, electing to try for the plate. His toss was too late, Chappie scoring. Leonard fanned Hayes; but while Myer was doubling Siebert, Miles sneaked across the dish.

Leonard then settled down to some fancy pitching and had no trouble until the fateful fifth. Gantenbein singled and reached third as Dutch heaved wild, but he picked him off when taking Moses' rap to the box. Chapman and Miles hit safely, one counting, and Siebert's double finished off the local run production.

Lewis Scores First

The Nats didn't score until the third, when Lewis singled and advanced on Davis' wild throw, scoring on Walker's single. But they had a real chance in the previous frame. Travis and Bloodworth singled with none out, Cecil going to third. Myer raised a short fly to left and Babich got himself over the hurdle by whiffing Pofahl and Ferrell.

There was much quiet from the Nats until the seventh, when Ferrell singled. Case hit a long fly, Chapman slipping on the wet turf as he started for the ball, and the ball got away for a triple. Lewis followed with his third single.

In both the eighth and ninth the Harrismen had two runners riding, but they couldn't reach the stable. Tomorrow Ken Chase will try to do something about it, Nelson Potter being booked as his opponent.

'Peanuts' Takes 27th Nod in 28 Fights

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Lou (Peanuts) Barbetta, 120½, of New York, won the twenty-seventh fight in his professional career of 28 starts tonight by outpointing the veteran Paul Lee, 126, of Indianapolis, in the eight-round feature bout at Queensboro Arena.

Barbetta was floored for a nine count by a ring swing in the fourth round. He came back to open a cut over Lee's left eye in the fifth, and he sent the Westerner to his knees with a sharp right for no count in the ninth.

Weighing In Just for Fun

Bombers Hit Five Homers, Win, 9-1, 19-8

DiMaggio, Dahlgren, Gordon and Rolfe Clout for Circuit; Russo Checks Boston

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13.—The Yankees looked like the Yankees today.

Unleashing a barrage of five homers in two games and getting a fine five-hit pitching job from Marius Russo in the first, they trampled the Boston Red Sox in both ends of a rainy double-header, 9-1 and 19-8. The second one went only six and a half innings, called because of darkness—or exhaustion.

Russo's first-game pitching feat was complemented by home runs from the bats of Joe Gordon and Red Rolfe as the Yanks scored seven of their runs in the first three innings.

The second game was an utter rout. Seven hits—including a DiMaggio home run with two on—accounted for seven runs in the first inning. They got four more in the second, thanks largely to a four-baser by Babe Dahlgren with two on, and DiMaggio came through again in the seven-run fourth inning with a four baser with the sacks loaded.

The Yanks, at that, only outhit the Sox 15-12 in the nightcap. Marvin Breuer started, but was belted out in the midst of a five-run rally in the third inning. Atley Donald finished and got credit for the win. Emerson Dickman was the victim.

Washingtonians Win

Cincinnati, Aug. 13 (AP).—Washington came from behind to grab a 10-to-7 victory from the Minneapolis-St. Paul team in the International Printers' Baseball Tournament here today and eliminate the Twin Cities club.

With Washington trailing, 5 to 2, Catcher Grier opened the fifth inning with a single. Posedae followed with a hit, Holloran sacrificed, and Grier scored on an attempted double play.

Rightfielder Gartland singled in two runs to tie the score. A single by Second Baseman Holfberg brought in two more before the round ended.

The Senators collected 14 hits, while the Twin Cities crew counted nine off hurler Mosedale and Schneider.

Twin Cities, starting strong, blasted out three runs in the second inning on two singles Hanson's home run and two walks.

of you if I have to fine you out of the league."

Anyway, Heintzelman started throwing them hard today and walked Frey before he found the plate. Frank McCormick singled his mate to third, from where he counted the winning tally on Goodman's long fly to right field.

Maurice Van Robays' single in the first with the bases loaded drove in the first two Pittsburgh runs, making 73 runs he has driven home. Elbie Fletcher drove in his seventy-fourth marker in the third and sent Thompson to the showers when he singled behind Debs Garms' triple.

Fletcher fell rounding first, so aggravating an injured knee he had to retire, Bill Brubaker replacing him.

For Cincinnati the victory was the tenth in 12 games with Pittsburgh. The Reds seem minded to make up for the 20 drubbings out of 22 games inflicted on them a few years ago by the Bucs.

760 Amateurs Seek Golf Championship

Entries Close With Comparatively Small Number of Contestants for September Tourney at Winged Foot Club

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13.—Entries closed tonight for the National Amateur golf championship, to be played over the Winged Foot course at nearby Mamaroneck, September 9-14, with the comparatively low number of about 760 names listed.

Joseph Dey, executive secretary of the United States Golf Association, said this number may vary a little one way or the other when the lists are rechecked, but the total is certain to be the smallest since the 1937 amateur, which was played at Portland, Oreg. Last year there were 826 entries and in 1938 there were 871.

The last time the amateur was played in the eMiropolitan district was in 1936, when the all-time record of 1,118 entries was established.

All but ten of this year's title candidates will be required to play through the sectional qualifying rounds Tuesday, August 27, at 29 locations. The complete entry list with pairings for the sectional rounds probably will be announced late this week.

The ten exempt players are the former champions who entered this year's tournament, headed by Defending Champion Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane, Wash. Others are Willie Turnesa (1938), Johnny Goodman (1937), Johnny Fischer (1936), George T. Dunlap (1933), Jess Sweetser (1922), Francis Ouimet (1914 and 1931), Max Marston (1923), Jesse Guilford (1921), and Chick Evans (1916 and 1920).

A notable absentee among the former champions is Ross (Sandy) Somerville, the 1932 winner, who is with the Canadian army in England.

In addition to all four of last year's semifinalists, the entry list includes Jim Ferrier, Australian Open and amateur champion, who has been playing brilliantly in the United States and two of the leading players in the recent national public links championship. For the first time in many years the U. S. G. A. executive committee invited the four public links semifinalists to enter the sectional qualifying rounds. The champion, Robert C. Clark, of St. Paul, and Ed Furgol, formerly of Utica, N. Y., who won the qualifying medal, accepted the invitation.

Furgol, now a resident of Birmingham, Mich, will play his sectional rounds at Detroit and Clark at Minneapolis. Ferrier chose to qualify at Chicago, where he was successful in qualifying for the National Open.

'Tillie' Manton Signs With Eagle Eleven

West Chester, Pa., Aug. 13 (AP).—Taldon (Tillie) Manton, former Texas Christian player, has been signed as a free agent by the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Professional Football League. Manton, who formerly played with the New York pro Giants and the Washington Redskins, will report immediately to the Eagles at their training camp here.

Joe Hunt Wins Over Parker At Newport

By the Associated Press

Newport, R. I., Aug. 13.—Midshipman Joseph Hunt, of the United States Naval Academy, provided the tournament's most startling upset today when he eliminated Frank Parker, of Altadena, Calif., seeded No. 2 and also second ranked nationally, 6—1, 12—14, 7—5, in the third round of the twenty-fourth annual Casino Invitation tennis tourney.

Hunt ran through Parker easily in the first set, but the battle began in earnest soon after the second set started. Parker rallied gamely several times after Hunt broke through his service and carried the battle to 26 games before he took the set.

The midshipman concentrated on the net in the third set and wore Parker down, taking advantage of several errors in judgment to eke out victory.

Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, also fought his way to the quarter-final round, being forced to three sets before he defeated George Toley, of Los Angeles, 6—2, 5—7, 6—4.

Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., started in where he left off yesterday, taking William Talbert, of Cincinnati, 6—4, 13—11.

Another seeded player who went spinning out of the competion was Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., who bowed to Edward Alloo, of Berkley, Calif., 6—3, 7—5. Veteran Frank Shields, of New York, stayed in the contention with an easy 6—2, 6—4 decision over Edwin Amark, of Los Angeles.

In the morning round, Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, of Atlanta, reached the quarter-finals by a whirlwind 6—1, 6—2 victory over Hal Surface, of Kansas City, while Leon Everett, of Jacksonville, Fla., had little trouble with Robert Harman, of California, 6—2, 6—4.

2 Washington Girls Winners In M.-A. Tennis

Misses Combs and Parsons Enter Semi-Finals at Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Aug. 13.—Two Washington players won their way into the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic Girls' Tennis Tournament at L'Hirondelle today.

Shirley Combs, Washington, defeated Julie Fiske, Arlington, Va., 9—7, 4—6, 6—1, and Margot Parsons, Washington, ousted Virginia Lloyd, of Baltimore, 6—1, 6—0.

Helen Harrison, of Stevenson, Md., defeated Janice Goldberg, of Baltimore, 6—4, 6—1. Lucy Tyler, of Annapolis, and Betty Simpson, of Ruxton, will meet tomorrow for the other semifinalist berth.

In the first round doubles Mary Brookings, of Alexandria, Va., paired with Miss Combs to defeat a Baltimore team, Marjorie Ellison and Jean Salabes, 6—3, 6—4. Misses Fiske and Parasons defeated Misses Simpson and Harrison, 8—6, 4—6, 6—3.

Hope Knowles Scores Upset In Essex Net

Defeats Favored Miss Wolfenden, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, at Manchester

By the Associated Press

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 13.—Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, scored the only break in the seeded ranks today as the Essex County Club's sixteenth annual women's invitation tennis tournament reached the quarter-final stage.

The 19-year-old star, ranked fifteenth on the national list, upset Virginia Wolfenden, Los Angeles, ranked fifth nationally and seeded fourth, 1—6, 6—3, 6—3.

The stars otherwise advanced without hindrance, the closest approach to another upset being the 32-game battle put up by Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, against third-seeded Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev. Miss Osborne, 1936 national junior champion, lost 8—6, 6—3, 8—6.

Defending champion Alice Marble, a full day behind the field, won two matches, but was still one contest short of the quarter-finals. Within an hour, she eliminated Louis Raymond, of Scarsdale, N. Y., 6—4, 6—4, and Anne Page, of Wayne, Pa., 6—1, 6—1.

Mary Hardwick, of England, top-seeded foreign star, also played and won two matches to reach the quarter-finals. She first defeated Betty Sue Cover, of Ponca City, Okla., 6—0, 6—1, and then Barbara Bradley, of Los Angeles, 6—0, 6—2.

Valerie Scott, also of England and second foreign seeded, joined her British Wightman Cup teammate, defeating Barbara Brandt, of Newport, R. I., 6—4, 6—2.

The two others to reach the quarter-finals were second-seeded Helen Jacobs, of Lon Angeles, and the unseeded Pauline Betz, of Beverly Hills, Calif. Miss Jacobs disposed of Dorothy Wightman, of Brookline, 6—1, 6—0, and Miss Betz scored easily over Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of Stamford, Conn., 6—0, 6—1.

Fourteen doubles matches were played late in the day with the world champion team of Miss Marble and Miss Palfrey leading the way into the third round.

Eastern All-Star Grid Roster Filled

Providence, R. I., Aug. 13 (INS).—Acceptance today by Tommy Nash, Brown end, to play against the New York football Giants in the fifth annual fresh air fund game September 4 completed the roster of the Eastern All-Star football squad.

Nash and 33 other team members will report Sunday for two and a half weeks of practice. Seven members have been permitted to forego early practice so that they might play in the Western All-Star game.

Brewers Win, Battle Cameo in Title Play

Heurich Defeats O'Donnell's, 6-1, in Final Game for Right to Enter Second-Half Championship Play-Off Today

After a near disastrous lapse in the middle of the second half, Heurich's clutch-hitting Brewers yesterday managed to earn a deadlock for top ranking in The Washington Post Industrial League when they trounced O'Donnell's, 6-1, in the final game of the schedule on the West Ellipse.

The second-half title, therefore, will be decided in a three-game series between the Brewers and Cameo Furniture, starting today on the North Ellipse. First action will be at 4:30, a half hour ahead of the regular starting time.

A best-two-out-of-three triumph for the Beermen will earn their third straight league title, as they already own first-half honors. A Cameo victory however, will necessitate still another playoff. Out of that will come the team to enter the D. C. Sandlot Baseball Tournament conducted by the National Amateur Baseball Federation.

Lanky Walter James was responsible for the Brewer victory yesterday, his three-hit pitching far outdoing that of Lanny Birch. The game was actually decided in the opening frame when Huck Stahl, shortstop of the Brewers, cracked a terrific triple into centerfield to chase Kaufman home from first.

Single runs were pushed over in the second and fourth, and in the sixth a total of three romped home. Two O'Donnell errors, a base on balls and a solitary single accounted for the lot.

Ballston Slates TwoGrudge Games

Two of the hottest softball rivalries in the city will be renewed tonight at Ballston Stadium, where Cameo A. C. faces Posner's and Dixie Tavern clashes with Senate. First game will be at 7:45 p. m.

Members of the last-mentioned clubs were once affiliated with the same team, until the Senate ten drew away to themselves. So far this season, Senate holds one victory over the Tavernmen, a 1-0 decision. Orrin Shanks will hurl for Dixie tonight and Vic Levinson for Senate.

Cards Move Up With Victory Over Cubs, 5-1

Club Nearly in 5th; Shoun Sets Old Mates Down With 7 Hits

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within a half game of fifth-place Chicago today when Clyde Shoun set the Cubs down with seven hits for a 5-to-1 victory.

Shoun, a former Cub, who went to the Cards two years ago in the Dizzy Dean trade, walked no batters and allowed only one damaging blow—Hank Lieber's fifth-inning home run.

The Cards combed Larry French for 11 hits and all their runs in six innings, one of the smashes being Johnny Mize's thirty-third round tripper of the season. Charley Root and Ken Raffensberger gave up only one hit in the last three innings.

The loss was the Cubs' fifth in their last six games.

Spencer Scott Is Favorite in $43,000 Hambletonian Today

Goshen Goes Modern With Starting Gate

40,000 Expected At Harness Classic; Pari-Mutuels and Camera Installed

By the Associated Press

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 13.—This horse-loving community, steeped in the lore of the harness horse, goes modern tomorrow when nine picked 3-year-olds face the barrier for the Hambletonian.

For the first time in the 15-year history of trotting's premier event the horses will start from the McNamara barrier, a synchronization of a web-like gate and phonograph voice that eliminates the long scoring sessions. A camera will catch the horses as they finish.

The 30,000 to 40,000 fans will join the modernistic trend by wagering through the pari-mutuels, also a first in the history of the buggy-horse Derby.

The race, with a value of $43,658.45, is the richest since The Marchioness won in 1932, and the most wide open since Lord Jim copped the big prize in 1934. That was the last year the decision was carried to more than two heats.

Spencer Scott, son of Scotland, from C. W. Phellis' Greenwich, Conn., stable, is the 3-to-2 favorite to take the winner's share of $23,076, but at least four others are serious contenders.

The Phellis colt, trained and driven by the Lexington veteran, Fred Egan, rates his position off three victories in the four major warm-up tests. In the National Stakes at Narragansett Park, the brown colt reeled off a mile in 2:02 1-2, fastest time registered by a 3-year-old this year and only a second slower than the Hambletonian record set by Shirley Hanover in 1937.

Spencer's only defeat was handed him by Dunbar Bostwick's Kuno in the American Stakes at Narragansett. That victory plus his time of 2:04 1-4 made as a juvenile in 1939 established the Bostwick trotter the 4 to 1 second choice.

Other contenders are Remus, giant trotter owned by Harry Short, of Columbus, Will Dickerson, of Goshen, and Paul Bowser, of Boston; the lanky Milestone from J. A. Meville's barn of Delaware, Ohio, and Earl Shropshire's Earl's Moody Guy, of Lexington. The early line quoted Remus at 7 to 1. Milestone at 8 to 1 and Earl's Moody Guy at 10 to 1.

Cavalcade Colt Brings $7,500 at Spa

Sale Recalls Bolting Of Watch Her in Belmont Park Race

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Memories of a remarkable racing incident at Belmont Park back in 1933 were revived tonight when a brown colt by Cavalcade out of Watch Her, was bought by Robert Kleberg, owner of the King Ranch in Texas, for $7,500, top price of tonight's yearling sales.

Seven years ago Watch Her, dam of the colt sold tonight, got loose from Jockey Tony Pascuma at the post for a race at Belmont and ran away 4 miles. She was returned to the post and the bookmakers, who had made her one of the favorites, raised the odds to 100 to 1. The filly still wanted to run so Pascuma let her go when the race started and she won. She made only one other start before the end of her racing career.

Max Hirsch, who now trains for the King Ranch, trained Watch Her then for Bernard Baruch's Kershaw Stable, and he recalled the incident when Watch Her's foal was led into the ring as a part of the Blue Ridge Farm consignment.

Forty-eight head of yearlings were sold tonight for a total of $88,100, averaging $1,835. Consignments also came from Greenwich Stud, Horace N. Davis, Charles Nuckols, Mrs. T. J. Regan, Meadowview Farm and others.

The other highlight of the evening came when Olin Gentry, bidding for Col. E. R. Bradley, purchased a brown son of Pharamond II—Heterodyne for $7,000 from the Nuckols lot. This purchase indicated that Bradley, whose Bimelech disappointed him this year, is going to keep trying for his fifth Kentucky Derby winner. It was learned that he may buy several other yearlings.

Alice Marble, Riggs Enter Doubles Matches

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP).—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Calif., were listed tonight as partners in the mixed doubles of the National Doubles cnampionships to be held next week at Longwood Cricket Club.

Riggs and Welby Van Horn, of Los Angeles, will play together in the men's doubles while Miss Marble will defend in the women's doubles with Miss Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev.

Quarles Beaten By Cincinnati Negro

Cincinnati, Aug. 13 (AP).—Herschel Joiner, Cincinnati Negro, punched a 10-round decision over Norment Quarles, of Richmond, Va., in a fast and bruising return match here tonight.

Taft Wright's Double Beats Browns, 4 to 3

Blow in Ninth Gives Chisox Victory; Rally In Sixth Ties Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 13.—Manager Fred Haney revamped the Browns' lineup, Vern Kennedy pitched out of a couple of bad spots and seemed set for his tenth victory of the year—then the Chicago White Sox found the range and came up with a 4 to 3 victory today.

Taft Wright's ninth-inning double which drove in Luke Appling was the deciding score but the three-run rally of the Sox in the sixth pulled them even with St. Louis.

Appling walked to start it. Wright lined to Joe Grace in the outfield. Larry Rosenthal walked and Mike Tresh singled to fill the bases. Bob Kennedy's single off Harlond Clift's glove scored Appling. Ken Silvestri batted for Bill Dietrich and doubled to center, scoring Rosenthal and Tresh.

Watch Out for Old 'Dizzy' Dean

He May Not Arrive On Time But He's on His Way Back to Fame

By the Associated Press

Oklahoma City, Aug. 13.—He may not arrive on schedule, but Dizzy Dean is coming back.

The big right-hander who returned to the Texas League nine weeks ago has regained everything but his speed and he'll bet you a hat he's back with the Cubs when the 1941 season rolls around.

"It feels better than it has in three years," said Dean as he patted his salary arm and pointed with pride to 21 consecutive scoreless innings in his last two appearances.

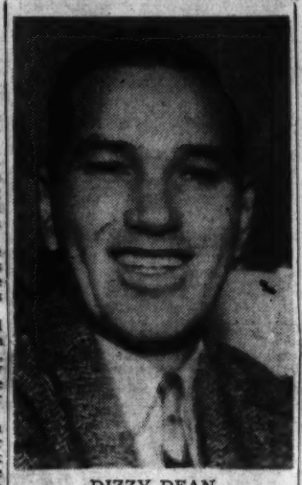
When the Chicago Cubs passed their $185,000 pitching problem on to the Tulsa Oilers early in June, Dizzy predicted he'd get the misery out of his ailing flipper and be back in the big show within four weeks.

He wanted to experiment with a sidearm delivery. He asked for the change and a chance to soak up some Southern sunshine in the Texas League, which had been his first stepping stone to the majors.

The side-arm delivery didn't work out and he has abandoned the idea of being recalled this year because the Cubs are out of the National League race, but the batters in this A-1 circuit are finding his famous "nothing" ball harder than ever to hit.

"I couldn't do anything with a side-arm delivery," he said today after the Oilers had finished a series here. "My arm hurt more than ever when I tried to throw that way."

So he returned to his natural motion, about halfway between a side-arm and an overhand throw. Today, the soreness has departed. His effectiveness has returned.



DIZZY DEAN

"I still can't 'r'ar' back and fog 'em through there like I used to, though," said Dean. He depends entirely upon control, which is nearing perfection, and his slow-floating "teaser." His record with Tulsa is seven victories and four defeats.

Not long ago he shut out Dallas, 1 to 0, with two hits, pitching to only 28 men. San Antonio batted him from the box on his next time out, but last week he started his string of shutout innings in beating Shreveport, 3 to 2, in 11 frames.

The two runs were scored in the first inning. Only one man reached first base after that.

His last appearance, against the Oklahoma City Indians, was a heartbreaker. For 11 innings, Dizzy pitched shutout ball, holding the Tribe to four hits in a duel with Orval Grove.

He retired in favor of a pinch hitter in the twelfth, but his replacement failed to deliver and the Indians went on to win the game, 1 to 0, in the last half of the twelfth.

Of course, Dean wasn't charged with the loss, but it's tough not to win when you give up only four hits in 11 scoreless innings.

Izzy Janazzo Signed forBout

Izzy Janazzo, still considered a contender for the world's welterweight championship, has been signed for a ten-round feature match at Griffith Stadium on Monday night, August 26.

Gabe Mendoez, matchmaker, said yesterday he was scouting for a suitable opponent for the New Yorker.

Among those Mendez is sounding out as a possible opponent for Janazzo are Cocoa Kid, No. 1 contender, who lost a thriller to Georgie Abrams, a middleweight; Milt Aron, of Chicago; Kid Kaplan, of Boston, and Holman Williams, Joe Louis' standard bearer.

Janazzo has been in the limelight for the last six years, and his handlers believe he has the goods to succeed Henry Armstrong as champion. The National Boxing Association thinks so much of Janazzo that it rates him as one of the four leading contenders for the title.

Egg-Breaking Drive of Kids In Canada Boon to Ducks

Baltimore, Aug. 13.—Maryland sportsmen can thank a crow-egg-gathering campaign by Canadian children in part for better duck hunting this fall.

The campaign against crows, which eat duck eggs, and a restoration of lake areas carried on by the United States and Federal Governments are responsible for a large increase in the duck population, State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte said today.

Ducks "are coming back and coming back fast," LeCompte said, predicting many more hunters would bag the limit of ten ducks apiece this fall.

The increased population, he said, accounts for the extension of the duck season from 45 to 60 days, as announced yesterday in Washington by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes.

The new season will be from November 2 to December 31, adding 13 days in the front, and two on the end of last year's season. With deduction of Sundays, when no hunting is permitted, Marylanders will have 51 days to aim at the wildfowl.

Also, hunters may start firing at sunrise, instead of 7 a. m. as last year. The day's hunt still ends at 4 p. m., however.

Explaining the anti-crow campaign, LeCompte said the Canadian government paid children for crows' eggs which they gathered, awarding prizes for the largest totals. The drive was carried on in Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Manitoba.

Dams to create lakes were built in these provinces, and in the Northern States where ducks breed.

Other open seasons for Maryland are: Railbirds, September 1 to October 31; dovers, September 1 to September 30 and November 15 to December 31; woodcock, November 15 to November 29.

Giants Lose Game, Bat Lead And Manager

It All Happens While Bees Are Winning, 4-1; Terry Is Banished

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 13.—The New York Giants lost about everything they could in one game today.

They lost the game to the Boston Bees, 4 to 1; they last the National League batting lead to Carvel Rowell, who took it from Harry Danning, and they lost their manager, Bill Terry, who was ousted for the third time in his managerial career for protesting too vehemently about a decision.

Bill Lohrman, trying for a fourth time to win his tenth victory, was belted out in the sixth, when the Bees scored all their runs on singles by West, Miller and Sisti, a walk to Hassett and a Giant error.

Reds' Coach Becomes Active Catcher

By Bill Burnett

The District of Columbia was the last place in the world Shannon (Bill) Harris expected to land when he left Nashville, Tenn., seven years ago in search of a job. But here he landed, and local sandlots have been glad of it ever since.

A plumbing concern hired the 195-pounder, and he faithfully served his apprenticeship. But he needed no apprenticeship at this game of baseball. He hit all and sundry pitching and has improved each year.

Now 24, Bill's first baseball was played at Hume Fogg High, in Nashville. After graduating he served a year as bat boy for the Vols, of the Southern Association. Then the wanderlust got him, and he happened in on Washington.

He's hitting an even .500 as an outfielder with Cameo A. C. as it goes into its crucial playoff with Heurich today. Strangely enough, his bat accounted for that identical average during the first half of The Washington Post Industrial League.

Four home runs he's slugged this season on the Ellipse, where a ball must be hit with the force of a cannon to count for four bases. And triples and doubles are well mixed in his record.

toga Springs, N. Y., and resume training in New York at Stillman's gym. Today Pastor scaled 182¾ pounds, his best fighting weight. This gave him an advantage of seven pounds over Pittsburgh Billy, although the latter was heavier than ever before.

Mike Jacobs admitted that he would like to have Joe Louis defend his title in September or early October, but he declined to reveal what possible opponent he had in mind. Louis and co-manager John Roxborough are in New York now and Mike may have some announcement tomorrow. When asked if he was considering a Louis-Maxie Baer bout, Jacobs evaded by inquiring: "Can you get Baer to fight Louis?" This evasion recalled that Baer recently had demanded a $50,000 guarantee for fighting Louis again.

Phils Get a Break As Rain Halts Dodgers

Brooklyn, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers-Philadelphia Phils game was stopped in the second inning by rain today, with the Dodgers ahead, 3 to 0.

The game will be replayed tomorrow as part of a double-header.

Potranco Takes Wildwood Purse

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—Potranco, a 3-year-old owned by the Lexbrook Stable, of Chicago, easily wore down Equistar in the stretch to win the Wildwood Purse at Washington Park today.

Potranco won by a length and a half, with Alhalon another two lengths back in third. The winner paid $3.40 and ran the 6 furlongs, for 3-year-olds, in 1:11 4-5. Jack Richards rode him.

Malone Kayoed In Scrimmage, Halting Drill

Star End Knocked Out by Three Mates On Play Around End

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 13.—The Redskins' first tast of scrimmage was brought to a sudden halt today when Charley Malone, veteran of six seasons at end, was knocked unconscious trying to stop a play around his end.

Malone's blocking pads were knocked loose, and he received the full force of a block by Ray Hare, rookie halfback, and two teammates, in the pit of his stomach. He was put out for fully three minutes and when brought around, he remembered nothing of the day's practice. The accident occurred after two hours of work with the pads and Coach Ray Flaherty called a halt at that point. Malone is expect to take it easy tomorrow and be back in uniform Thursday.

As the Redskins ran through their first extended session of scrimmage it began to appear that "Bo" Russell, veteran tackle, will again carry the main field goal and points after touchdown hopes this fall.

Hayward (Sandy) Sanford, whose two sensational field goals from almost impossible angles brought him Nation-wide fame while playing football at the University of Alabama, has been unimpressive and admits himself that he can't seem to get going.

"I don't know myself what's the matter," the 24-year-old rookie said. "I just can't seem to hit that ball right. Maybe it'll come with a little more practice."

Meanwhile, Coach Ray Flaherty today wired Owner George Marshall, now vacationing in California requesting that he make a final attempt to bring Frank Filchock, quarterback, holdout to terms.

"I asked Marshall to let me know one or the other whether Filchock's coming or not," Flaherty said. "Time is flying and I have to know what to expect."

Gar Wood, Jr., To Compete in Gold Cup Race

Allen, Another Star Racer, Enters Annual Long Island Events

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13.—The entry list for the gold cup race, most important speedboat racing event in America, was increased to eight today when Charles F. Chapman, secretary of the contest board, announced that Gar Wood, jr., of Algonac, Mich., and Sidney A. Allen, of Hampton Bays, N. Y., had sent in their entry fees for the race at Northport, Long Island, next Saturday.

The entries will be officially acted upon by the contest board at its Friday meeting.

Wood, a prominent outboard racer for the past few years, will pilot Tinker Toy, a converted Class E inboard runabout. He has added sponsons and a forward step to the lightweight craft and rebuilt an old World-War Liberty motor as power. Allen's entry is Hotsy Totsy III, which was built in 1936 for the late Victor W. Kliesrath, of South Bend, Ind., and raced in the 1937 gold cup event at Detroit.

Other challengers for the trophy, being defended by Zalmon G. Simmons, jr., of Greenwich, Conn., in My Sin, are Herbert A. Mendelson, Detroit, with Notre Dame; Horace E. Dodge, Detroit, with Miss Syndicate; George C. Cannon, Rockledge, Fla., with Gray Goose III, Lou J. Fageol, Los Angeles, with So Long, and E. A. Wilson, Ingersoll, Ont., with Miss Canada III. Wilson, however, is not expected to compete.

Broken Bone Found In Sirocco's Hoof

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—An X-ray examination revealed today that the Dixiana Stable's Sirocco suffered a broken bone in his left forefoot in last Saturday's American Derby at Washington Park.

Sirocco, the Derby favorite, came out of the race cut about the legs, but the wounds were not considered serious until the X-ray was completed. He finished second, three lengths behind Mioland. The injured foot was placed in a cast.

Dead Heat Scored in Feature Purse at Cumberland Track

Cats Cradle, Miss Baker Nose and Nose

Former Pays $3.30, And Latter $3; Card Proves Thriller All Way for 10,000 Fans

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland, Md., Aug 13.—A crowd, only a shade under last Saturday's record gathering and estimated at 10,000, saw a thrilling dead heat in the American Legion Purse, fourth event on today's program. Ewart Johnston's Cats Cradle and the Hillbrook Farm's Miss Maker came into the finish line locked so tight that all the king's horses, all the king's men, the camera and the judges couldn't separate them.

Under the share-the-wealth plan, that goes with pay-offs on dead heats, backers of Cats Cradle received $3.30, while those who put their faith in and their dollars on Miss Maker took down $3. Both horses paid more to place than to win.

Although the program was a thriller in more ways than one, the dead heat stole the show. Jockey Carason Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md., and Jockey Willie Kelley, leading rider at the meeting, were the saddle heroes. They used different methods of getting to the wire at the same time. Kirk took Cats Cradle to the front and kept there there as if his very life depended upon the outcome. Kelley rode a confident race. He allowed Miss Maker to find her stride in the rear of the field and then brought her up in a rousing finish that just missed getting the whole pot.

The advertised feature saw an upset. Mrs. M. V. Daly's Seneschal nosed out Double Back, owned by W. Eichorn, to pay $22.30. The race was the Old German Beer Purse, over the 6½ furlong course. P. H. Faulconer's Roman Boy, a winner this summer at New ork, raced forwardly for part of the route and stopped suddenly to pull up last. Butterman was third.

R. C. Waple's War Port, the horse that couldn't lose here last Friday but did, came back to win today's steeplechase. The 7-year-old gelding finished eight lengths ahead of Champfleury. These same horses ran off the course after last week's race when the riders miscounted the times around. Today Jockey Norman Brooks was in the saddle and the colored boy made no mistakes. Suspect was third in the field of eight. Star On and Carl's Choice lost riders but the boys escaped injury. War Port was a $3.60 favorite.

The program produced a $34.50 pay off in the daily double. Pop's Sister, aided when Rippling On ran out at the first turn, drove to victory in the first race ahead of Glitter Girl and Delhi Dan. The winner paid $7.80. In the second race, Green Water came from behind Polly Fair to score at a $7.60 price. By Surprise was third in this test.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POP'S SISTER, $7.80, $4.70, $3.40; GLITTER GIRL, $3.90, $3.40; DELHI DAN, $3.40.

POP'S SISTER, sent to front while saving ground at first turn, was headed by GLITTER GIRL in early stretch, but responded to punishment to draw out at end. GLITTER GIRL, forwardly placed from start, came to outside for racing room, took brief lead over pacemaker, but could not stay in final drive. DELHI DAN was vigorously handled throughout and was held safe. GRADATTM could not keep up.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:46. Off 2:47. Winner, Mrs. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREEN WATER, $7.60, $4.20, $3.10; POLLY FAIR, $6.80, $4.30; BY SURPRISE, $8.40.

GREEN WATER, steadied while closest to POLLY FAIR'S pace, was taken up when blocked along rail, went to outside and responded to drive to open gap. POLLY FAIR was hustled along while setting pace and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. BY SURPRISE worked way to contention on outside and closed resolutely. ARBOREAL was outrun early and closed with rush on inside.

Daily Double, POP'S SISTER and GREEN WATER, Paid $34.50

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $500; claiming. Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:21. Off 3:22. Winner, R. C. Waple's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR PORT, $3.60, $2.60, $2.70; CHAMPFLEURY, $3.00, $3.20; SUSPECT, $5.00.

WAR PORT, steadied over jumps while in thick of forward contention, assumed command when asked and drew far out to win easily. CHAMPFLEURY lacked early speed and closed gamely, but was not serious factor. SUSPECT was well placed early and was a strong third. CYNTAH was always outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:36. Off 3:36½. Winners, Ewart Johnston's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAT'S CRADLE (dead heat), $3.30, $3.60; $2.90; MISS MAKER, (dead heat), $3.00, $3.50, $2.90; ASTER PRINCESS, $4.30.

CAT'S CRADLE saved ground while setting pace, shook off challenges of ASTER PRINCESS and was held together under good handling to withstand MISS MAKER. The latter was allowed to settle into stride, saved ground early, came between horses to better position on backstretch, came out for racing room and barely got up for dead heat. ASTER PRINCESS was hard ridden early to force CAT'S CRADLE pace and weakened in final test.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:37. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. M. V. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SENESCHAL, $22.30, $6.00, $4.10; DOUBLE BACK, $3.00, $2.60; BUTTERMAN, $5.80.

SENESCHAL, in thick of contention from start, was forced to race between horses approaching stretch, drew clear inside eighth pole and was under drive at end. DOUBLE BACK was steadied along close up and on outside to backstretch, responded gamely to drive to get to front, but could not resist the winner. BUTTERMAN was vigorously handled to dispose of ROMAN BOY and weakened in closing test.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:11. Off at once. Winner, M. B. Goss' gr. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOHOEV, $7.00, $3.70, $2.90; GOOD BATTLE, $4.30, $2.90; HAPPY MIRACLE, $4.10.

DOHOEV, rated while close up to backstretch, responded when shaken up to take command and held GOOD BATTLE safe to closing test. GOOD BATTLE went to front at once and continued gamely when displaced. HAPPY MIRACLE was in trouble early and was tiring under drive at end. LADY SOLACE rallied mildly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:45. Off 5:48½. Winner, A. R. Cremen's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARTHA'S QUEEN, $4.40, $3.40, $2.60; CONGO PRINCE, $5.70, $3.60; CHERRY'S CHILD, $4.30.

MARTHA'S QUEEN, steadied while racing within striking distance, came out for racing room approaching stretch and responded to vigorous handling to win going away. CONGO PRINCE wore down DAVIDOR to get to front, opened good lead, but could not resist winner while closing gamely. CHERRY'S CHILD lost ground at turns in early stages and closed as gap.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:19½. Off 6:20. Winner, E. G. Davis' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—YANKEE LAD (entry), $4.30, $2.80, $2.80; TEPIN, $3.10, $3.10; RAZZLE DAZZLE (entry), $2.80.

YANKEE LAD, steadied while saving ground and unable to improve position along rail in opening half, was taken wide for racing room, came around leaders turning for home and won going away. TEPIN was keen forward factor from start, took brief lead over RAZZLE DAZZLE, but could not resist winner. RAZZLE DAZZLE set good pace and weakened gradually when displaced. CHARMING MARY had speed in spots.

Selections at Cumberland.

Dear Al:

They tell me War Port was equipped with an adding machine so that Jockey Brooks would know when to finish. At that, Brooks made the best race speech of the jockeys to date. He said, "I sure am glad to win it." A. P. Pannell's Dark Sun broke down badly in last Saturday's seventh race and will be on the shelf for some time. E. K. Hillman claimed Bell Thorn for $800. Speaking of Steeplechase Jockey Brooks, he rode Delhi Dan in today's first race on the flat and finished third. Used to be a good flat rider before weight put him in the discard. He weighs 122 pounds. I'm told there was a little unscheduled action at the jockeys' dance last Saturday night. Somebody bit somebody's ear. I thought meat was off a rider's diet. Don't forget, tonight is track night at Carysville Inn. Music and everything, including the Beachcomber Hawaiians. And you people down Hagerstown and Williamsport way, the Potomac Fish and Game Club is giving its annual chicken dinner at the club on Thursday. Harry Daub, jr., and the boys are expecting you. Now, ain't this getting to be just the newsiest column. I know you would rather have a winner. Dates have been assigned Wheeling for a summer meeting. The session opens August 24 and closes September 7, 11 days. Thanks to S. W. C. of Charles Town, for these kind words. I know somebody who hasn't been introduced over the loud speaker system here. Trainer Jim Arthur says the plater Disraeli is suffering from a high fever. The sum of $460,541 was wagered here last week, a record for five days at this track. With clear weather, Mutuel Manager Jim Considine expects the meeting to total over a million dollars. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Mayfern gets away from the rail position that was a factor in that recent defeat. Fits nicely in this field and I'm going to string along. Mr. Jim closed in business-like fashion last out and is a threat. Strolling In and Quest D'Or are threats, but are very doubtful starters.

Second race—Lula Khayyam has the speed to take the top on this kind and promises to do a lot of running. I see no reason for mistakes. Din was second to a good horse last out and is dangerous. Expected Belle flashed recently and could be underrated.

Third race—Axacan always could beat this kind of horses. I'm tossing out that last at Bel Air. Edgemont evidently likes this course and is a threat. Qualm won here and could be improving.

Fourth race—Small Change has had a rest and should be ready to show best form in this company. Needs only the right handling. Man At Arms has plenty of speed and looms as a contender. Golden Key would be close if in action.

Fifth race—Sail By was second in good company last week and appears ready to turn back a field of this kind. Cautious Bo loves the track and should be close if taken off the reserve list. Don Gomes is a possible surprise.

Sixth race—Wale Signal appears nicely placed in this field. Gets in with steadying weight and is promised good handling. Molasses Julia has shown good form and is a threat. Questre probably will like the route.

Seventh race—America First turned a form flip-flop recently and if we can expect him to return to that effort he should be the winner. Lyde is at tops and promises to be close. Huppy loves the track and is dangerous.

Eighth race—Keswick Hill could be the right one in the day's finale. Has the closing ability to win a race of this kind. Never Idol will be prominent if the track is fast. Dressmaker is fit but a doubtful starter.

Best bet—Axacan.

7% Increase In Store Sales Seen This Fall

92% of Retailers Optimistic on Outlook, U. S. Survey Shows

A Nation-wide survey of merchants' opinion indicates expectations that department store sales will increase 7 per cent this autumn, the National Retail Dry Goods Association reported yesterday.

The organization said more than 92 per cent of retailers canvassed anticipate general improvement in business and employment in the fall on the basis of present conditions.

Agency Head Named

Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. yesterday announced the appointment of Raymond A. DuFour as the company's general agent in Washington. Mr. DuFour, who has been prominently identified with life insurance business in Washington for the past nine years, will maintain offices at 1422 F street northwest.

Following his graduation from Catholic University, Mr. DuFour was employed by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for two years in an executive position. He entered the life insurance business in 1931. A graduate of Columbus University Law School, he was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar in 1937.

Mr. DuFour is a member of the Eastern Inter-Collegiate Football Officials' Association, and the Southern Conference Football Officials' Association. He is recognized as one of the outstanding referees in inter-scholastic and inter-collegiate football in the East.

He is vice president of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters' Association, secretary of the Life Insurance Trust Council, a member of the faculty of the Life Insurance Institute of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters' Association, lieutenant governor of the American Business Clubs, and a member of the Touchdown Club of Washington.

D. C. Trade Index Rises

Washington was one of 86 areas in the United States where business conditions showed an improvement as of August 1 over the index for July 1, according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas of the United States by Brocke, Smith, French & Dorrance, national advertising concern.

Business conditions in Washington as of August 1 stood at three per cent above normal, representing a gain of 3 per cent over the standing for July 1. On August 1, 1939, the city's business index stood at 3 per cent below normal, the survey showed.

Business Gains 16.2 Per Cent

A 16.2 per cent gain in paid business of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. for the month of July, 1940, over the same month a year ago has been announced by A. J. McAndless, president. At the end of the month, the company's total insurance in force stood at $1,061,646,237. This figure represented a gain for the month of $3,331,153. The total gain for the first seven months was $24,828,558.

Exchange Markets

The supply of the free currency has been steadily contracting since Britain recently tightened her money regulations. Official sterling sells now only a few cents above the free rate.

The Canadian dollar slipped back 1/4 of 1 cent to 86 3/4 U. S. cents. The Swiss franc added .01 of 1 cent.

New York Dry Goods

Worth Street brokers reported bids were withdrawn because of declines in stock and commodity markets.

Sales yesterday were said to have been 3,000,000 to 3,500,000 yards of print and broadcloths, presumably covering Russian government orders.

Spot deliveries on lower priced grades of rayon brought premiums. Other items remained quiet.

Interest in silk centered on the decision of women's full-fashioned hosiery manufacturers to meet the nylon challenge by producing an all-silk construction to retail at 69 and 79 cents.

Woolen mills are busy on Government orders and demand for civilian wear was reported improved.

Sales were reported on the basis of the following quotations for immediate delivery: Print cloth, 38 1/2, 64x60, 5.35, 4 4/4-Broadcloths, 37, 100x60, 4.10, 6 4/4, Sheetings, 37, 48x48, 4.00, 3 4/4, Combed lawns, 40, 76x72, 9.00, 6 4/4.

Foreign Markets

London, Aug. 13 (AP).—Security dealers favorably impressed with air battle reports, posted higher prices for many issues today. While trading remained at recent curtailed levels, the market seemed little disturbed pricewise by bombs hitting areas only a few miles away. British government bonds advanced as much as 1/4 point. Japanese and Brazilian loans were also in demand. Selected industrials attracted support but Kaffirs and oils were on the inactive list. Domestic rails inched forward.

Liverpool.—Cotton futures rallied to net gains of 3 to 6 points today after early losses. Trade calling developed at the low levels and contracts became scarce.

June Volume Of HomeLoans At 10-Year Top

$1,300,000 Disbursed Here for Building Of 236 Dwellings

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Keeping pace with a national advance, member associations of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League disbursed $3,975,500 for all purposes in June, these disbursements including 924 individual loans. Of the total, approximately $1,300,000 was for construction of 236 new homes, the remainder being for purposes ranging from refinancing of trusts to small advances for repairs and improvement of properties.

People throughout the country borrowing to build new homes, either for themselves or to sell to somebody, received the largest share of the June disbursement, that they have had in any month the last ten years, the United States Savings and Loan League reports. Out of the total of $106,984,000, disbursed to borrowers for all purposes, $35,523,000, or 32.2 per cent was placed in new construction financing.

June volume of loans was the year's third largest, falling 6.6 per cent under May, which was the record high month. From January through June associations placed $558,361,000 in mortgage loans, a 23 per cent increase over the same period of 1939.

Morton Bodfish, executive vice president of the national league, reminds that the greatest gains in the 1940 period were in volume of new home construction loans which accounted for 30.91 per cent of money disbursed since the year began. In this classification, volume was up 29.12 per cent over last year, being $172,594,000 and within a few million dollars of equalling the construction lending of the full calendar year of 1936.

Buick to Spend $200,000,000, Produce 300,000 Cars in 1941

By the Associated Press

Flint, Mich., Aug. 13.—Harlow H. Curtice, president and general manager of Buick division of General Motors Corporation, said today that his company plans to assemble at least 300,000 automobiles during the 1941 model year and spend more than $200,000,000 for materials and supplies alone in doing so.

Curtice made his announcement in addressing a group of automobile editors from throughout the country here to preview Buick's 1941 models. Formal public presentation of the new models will be made after dealers have been stocked.

The company built 283,204 cars in the 1940 model year and through a multi-million dollar expansion program just completed now is equipped to manufacture 350,000 units annually.

"Generally speaking," Curtice said, "it does not appear that the national defense program, either in its demand upon productive facilities or in the possible conscription of manpower, will in any way hamper the industry's normal production of passenger cars and trucks for private use."

"Whether the war ends abruptly or not, this country is likely to continue its vast defense program which, as it develops further, should offset any immediate loss of foreign business and minimize any psychological effect that a sudden stoppage of hostilities might have on American sales."

Buick's 1941 models already are in production, Curtice said, with 16,000 scheduled as August production and 130,000 as the anticipated total for the remainder of the present calendar year.

For 1941 Buick again is producing five series of cars and as its principal mechanical advance has introduced what is described as "compound carburetion" and improved the combustion chamber design to step up the power output of each engine. Horsepower has been increased to 115 in the "special" series; to 125 in the "super," and to 165 in the "Century," "Roadmaster" and "Limited" models.

Each model is larger and somewhat heavier than the 1940 type; running boards have been eliminated or placed inside the body, which in general accentuates the "torpedo" type the company introduced last year.

Nervous Sales Depress All Commodities

New Seasonal Lows Registered by Wheat; Cotton Off 25 to 40c

By the Associated Press

The commodity price curve dropped decisively yesterday while traders in the big futures markets somberly sifted indications the German attack on Britain had started in earnest.

At Chicago nervous operators sent wheat down 5/8 to 1 1/8 cents a bushel to new seasonal lows for all deliveries. About half of extreme losses were recovered. Corn showed independent strength, closing 1/8 lower to 1/4 higher.

Industrial raw materials were especially hard hit. Such important staples as copper, rubber (one delivery, however, advance) and hides scored outside losses of 1/2 cent a pound.

World sugar futures opened up virgin low territory and wool tops dropped 2 cents a pound.

Cotton at New York followed the pattern traced by other commodities and securities and lost 25 to 40 cents a bale. Also down were silk, cocoa, cottonseed oil and Santos coffee. Straits tin managed a small gain.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples, based on 1926 as 100, hit a new low for the year at 69.25. This compared with 69.42 Monday.

Gold Import Drop Believed Due to New Nazi Attack

By the Associated Press

Gold imports last week fell to $25,616,655, the lowest for any week since February 28.

Officials said they had no way of knowing why the shipments were so small. However, since deliveries from Europe were exceptionally small, intensification of the German aerial attack on England may have been a factor, they explained.

In the preceding week, shipments totaled $78,684,221, which also were far below the average since the war began. Not many weeks ago record receipts of more than $400,000,000 were reported.

Virtually the only gold which came from Europe in the week ended August 7 was $2,506,715 from Portugal. Other large shipments were $11,556,593 from Canada, $1,908,366 from Mexico, $1,245,041 from the Philippine Islands and $6,748,764 from South America.

Instead of shipping more gold, the British apparently drew on gold already on deposit in the Federal Reserve banks here. The total of such earmarked gold belonging to all foreign governments and central banks was reduced by $102,774,739 to $1,658,476,743.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—Livestock prices were steady to lower today. Hogs opened steady to 10 cents lower with later trade very slow and uneven, the top dropping to 6.85. Cattle were steady to 25 cents off and spring lambs were mostly 15 to 25 cents off.

Although receipts were not extra heavy, hogs failed to continue the higher trend begun several days ago. Some interests were even bidding 15 to 25 lower. Best wholesale pork loins steadied at yesterday's price of 21 cents a pound.

Choice and prime medium weight steers and all grades yearlings were steady, but mediums and strictly fed steers were weak to 25 cents, mostly 10 to 15 cents, off. All of the latter recently sold very high compared with strictly choice grades.

(U. S. Dept. Agr.).—SALABLE HOGS—Receipts, total, 15,000; open steady to 10 lower than Monday's average; later trade very slow and uneven; some interests bidding 15@25 lower; top, 6.85; early sales good and choice, 200-240 pounds pounds, 6.60@6.85; some 240-270 pounds 6.25@6.55; 270-300 pound, bid, 5.35@6.30; packing sows, 360 pounds down, 5.35@5.85; some 360-450 pounds kinds, 4.75@5.40.

All lots fat natives, 9.85; throwouts natives, 7.50 down; choice handyweights fed yearlings, 8.25; others, 7.50@7.75; few fat native ewes, 3.75; bulk, 2.50@3.50.

Sugar Futures

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures trailed the world contract today as the latter again reached record low prices.

The world flat lost 1 1/8 to 2 points on turnover of 12,400 tons. September "47, December "71. Brokers said there were no signs recent severe liquidation had been completed.

Domestic futures dropped 2 to 3 points on turnover of 19,150 tons. The decline in securities outweighed the effect of a steady raw market.

Refiners bought nearly 10,000 tons of afloat Philippine raws at the unchanged price of 2.65 cents a pound. A cargo of Cubas for September shipment was held at a basis of 2.70.

Local refiners continued to quote 4.20@4.35 cents for fine granulated.

Stocks Suffer Worst Spill in Three Months On Intensified Nazi Raids; Many Off $1 to $6

New York, Aug. 13.—Intensification of Nazi aerial attacks against Britain caused severe disturbances in security and commodity markets today. Stocks experienced their worst day since May 21, losing 1 to 6 points on a broad front with steels and an assortment of the recently popular "war babies" hardest hit.

Both foreign and domestic bonds were unsettled. In the domestic corporate section the second grade rails lost heavily. Sterling stiffened to $4 in foreign exchange dealings with attendant evidences of a thin market. Swiss francs were at a new top as the peg was altered.

The opening was slightly lower for most shares and this was at first interpreted as a normal technical reaction after several days of price betterment.

As the tickers brought in late bulletins of the German raids on Britain, however, selling developed on a broad scale and before the end of the first hour volume was running at the rate of about a million shares. By noon the sales total was 410,000 shares, 120,000 shares more than the full day's record of Monday. Volume tapered sharply in the afternoon and prices were correspondingly steadier but last quotations, on the whole, were not very far from the day's lows.

The composite average of the 100 key stocks was off 1.30 points. Sales, with 774 listed issues changing hands, about 200 more than the average for recent sessions, totaled 641,350 shares, the largest since July 30.

International Paper, leading the list on 28,600 shares, sold 1 1/8 net lower despite appearance during the day of its second quarter report, showing decidedly favorable earnings. The preferred broke more than 5. The steels gave ground without much resistance. Steel common lost 3 1/4 net; Bethlehem 4 1/2 and Republic 1 1/2, all three being among the most active issues.

Other pivotols which were targets of selling included General Motors, off 2 3/4; Chrysler, off 4 3/4; Allied Chemical, 6; duPont, 4 3/4; Great Northern preferred, 2 3/4; Telephone, 2 1/4; Sears Roebuck, 2 3/4; United Aircraft, 2 3/4, and Westinghouse, 5 1/2.

Oils were relatively the steadiest group but they had also been the least buoyant in advancing markets of the previous four days. Standard Oil of New Jersey, which has important interests in Great Britain and is affiliated with Shell in certain foreign developments, including Egypt and Arabia, was off more than a point. Texas Corporation, while fairly active, was only 3/4 lower.

Aside from nervousness over the war and pessimism on the "stickiness" of certain phases of the National defense program, including principally the legislative situation, business news was favorable. Better trade figures, brightened outlook for automobile production and the uninterrupted flow of bullish corporate reports on second quarter operations, were largely ignored.

Companies and groups contemplating new financing, more particularly in connection with National defense industries expansion, were particularly interested in the House action in accepting a Senate amendment, attached as a rider to the investment trust bill. The change, which now goes to the White House for approval, does away with the 20-day so-called "incubation" period stipulated to prevail between the time of the filing of a registration statement covering a new issue, and the offering of the securities. The investment trust bill itself places investment trusts and investment counsellors under SEC jurisdiction.

Declining prices ruled in bond dealings with losses appearing in virtually every section as volume expanded. War news was accounted the major disturbing factor and lower prices reached for vulnerable issues such as those of Canada and Australia spread quickly to other parts of the list.

Total trading on the stock exchange was $5,108,000, against $2,723,000 on Monday; Treasurys, $155,000, against $55,000. Among Treasury bonds final prices on the stock exchange showed losses up to 11-32 point and late prices in over-counter trading were down 1-32 to 9-32 point. Buying was reported on a scale down.

Declines of 1 to more than 2 points were common among British Empire bonds, including loans of Canada, Australia and New South Wales. The foreign section generally declined except for fractional strength in some German issues.

The average of 30 bonds was off 0.57 point for the day with second grade rails under heavy pressure. Such speculative issues declined 1.38 on the average. Weakness resulting in losses of 1 to around 4 points appeared in obligations of Baltimore & Ohio, Central of New Jersey, Lehigh Valley, Nickel Plate and others.

Better grade rails also suffered and the average was down 0.74 point. Domestic corporate bonds followed the general move and sold off 0.30 point while public utilities advanced 0.02 point in the averages.

Cotton Futures

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Cotton futures had a steady opening today but slid down to final losses of 5 to 8 points.

Tenor of the market changed as reports piled up of air raids on England. War weakness of securities and other commodities acted as a drag on cotton, too.

Most offerings represented hedging. Southern selling and commission house and professional liquidation.

Worth Street reported scattered bids under the market were soon withdrawn. Mills, however, clung to list prices for textiles.

Exports Monday nil; season so far, 19,620. Port receipts, 14,322. Port stocks, 2,480,713.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—All future deliveries of wheat and oats crashed to new low levels for the season today before rallies set in and wheat recovered about half its extreme 2-cent loss.

Corn displayed independent strength throughout the session, but lard futures also dropped to the lowest prices in seven years.

The market suffered a severe attack of war jitters and prices were lower from the start in sympathy with sharp breaks in securities. Uneasiness over war developments was the prime market factor, virtually all other news being ignored.

Wheat finished 5/8@1 1/8 cents under Monday's final quotations, September 73 3/8@73 1/2, December 74 3/8@74 1/2. At the extreme low points September touched 72 1/4 and December 73 1/8, off 2 and 2 1/8 cents, respectively.

Corn was steady through the session, ending 1/8 lower to 1/4 higher, September 61@60 1/8, December 56 1/8@56 1/4; oats were 1/8 off to 1/8 up; soy beans 1/8@3/8 lower and rye 7/8@1 cent higher. Lard lost 25 to 30 cents a hundredweight, the latter on the March delivery, which closed at 5.97.

Reports that the long-threatened aerial blitzkrieg against England was now to be released in all its fury chilled the market from the start. A bearish interpretation was placed on the Canadian wheat surplus report and liquidation of September wheat contracts made for a lower trend.

Stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down before the lower price range attracted better buying support from milling interests. A strong resistance at Kansas City and Minneapolis also helped reverse the downward trend.

Oats lost ground in sympathy with wheat. Part of the selling was credited to hedgers, but local interests gave the market support on the decline.

Rye followed wheat. Soy beans finished lower also, with local interests the principal buyers, while selling was scattered.

Lard contracts sustained sharp losses under general liquidation started by the disappointing decrease shown in the United States cold storage report and the setback in live hog prices.

Utility Issue Is Sold Under 'Blitz Formula'

Con. Gas Underwriters Cautious in Marketing $7,000,000 Stocks

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13.—An underwriting syndicate, in marketing today an offering of securities of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co., of Baltimore, used what bond men called a "blitzkrieg formula" to protect the underwriters against sudden change in the war situation.

The underwriters had authority from the Securities and Exchange Commission to release the offering for public sale at any time after midnight. Most flotations, it was explained, usually are carried out with the agreement the underwriters became liable when the SEC releases the issue.

However, in today's offering, the underwriters had an agreement with the company permitting them to postpone the issue if they saw fit any time up to 10 a. m., thus giving the sellers a chance to size up the market in light of developments in Europe.

Reports of the heavy German air blows against England, which caused a wave of selling in security markets today, were cited as just the sort of unpredictable events the underwriters sought to protect themselves against.

However, the banking group, headed by White, Weld & Co., went on with the offering and reported late in the afternoon a successful sale.

The offering consisted of 68,928 shares of series "C" 4 per cent preferred stock at $104. The $7,000,000 in proceeds were intended to reimburse the company for capital outlays.

Publishers Unit To Act as Agent For Canada Tax

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—The American Newspaper Publishers Association announced today it had received permission to act as transmitting agent to the Canadian government of the 10 per cent Canadian war revenue tax on newspapers.

Hitherto United States' newspapers here circulated in Canada with revenue stamps affixed to each copy, causing extra labor and delays in deliveries.

Hereafter the tax can be paid monthly by the newspapers through and upon the recommendation of the American Newspaper Publishers Association which will act regardless of whether the newspaper is a member of the organization.

Manganese Supply Plentiful, Brazil Assures U. S.

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—American steel mills were assured "all the manganese they can use by a Brazilian government official today.

The purchase supplements last year's buying of 17 locomotives and 1,000 cars for the Central Railroad of Brazil.

"That equipment," said Maj. Guimaraes, "provided the transportation needed for our manganese. We can now furnish all the United States can use. All the United States needs now is the notion of buying. I have asked for orders in this country.

"We have five export points with a capacity of a million tons a year."

He said he had signed a contract with United States Steel Corp. for $1,000,000 worth

Md. Crops Hold Own Despite Month's Heat

Tobacco Reported Thriving; Wheat Yield Estimated Higher

By the Associated Press

College Park, Md., Aug. 13.—The protracted hot spell of last month—which the Weather Bureau catalogues as "adverse conditions"—failed to cause material damage to Maryland crops, the crop reporting service of the University of Maryland said today.

A survey of conditions throughout the State, as well as on the eastern shore of Delaware, showed prospects about the same as last month, with the exception of corn, hay and potatoes, which fell off slightly.

While the tobacco crop, thriving in the hot weather, showed improvement, there was little change in prospects for the wheat, rye, oats, barley and sweet potato yields.

The August 1 forecast placed the Maryland wheat yield at 7,448,000 bushels, nearly 100,000 bushels greater than last year's yield, but over a million bushels less than the average from 1929 through 1938.

Other forecasts included:

Oats, 1,015,000 bushels, off 113,000 from 1939; barley, 2,128,000 bushels, no change; corn, 16,863,000 bushels, off 2,800,000 bushels.

The commercial apple crop estimate of 2,232,000 bushels is slightly under last year's production but above the five-year average, 1934-1938.

In Delaware, prospects in July were "moderately favorable" with most crops not affected seriously by the heat.

Mrs. May Herron Dies After Illness Of Eight Weeks

Mrs. May K. Herron, 64, of 2646 Thirty-ninth street northwest, died at George Washington University Hospital yesterday after an illness of eight weeks.

The wife of Milo D. Herron, assistant sales manager for the Trew Motor Co., Mrs. Herron came to Washington 13 years ago. She was born in Elbridge, N. Y., and lived there most of her life. In Washington she was a member of the Women's Guild of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Surviving are her husband and three daughters, Jean, Betty and Mrs. Barbara Councilor, all of Washington. Funeral services will be at 11 a. m. tomorrow at Hysong's funeral home, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. W. D. Goodman Dies After Long Illness at 43

Mrs. Martha B. Goodman, 43, of 2814 Thirty-fifth street northwest, wife of Dr. William D. Goodman, died at her home yesterday after a long illness.

A native of High Point, N. C., Mrs. Goodman came to Washington in 1916 and was graduated from the Emergency Hospital nursing school in 1919. She was married in 1920.

An enthusiastic sportswoman until her illness, she was a member of the Columbia Country Club.

Besides her husband, she leaves two children, Clara L., 12, and William H., 17. There are two brothers in Washington, Thornton and Luther Woodall, and four others in North Carolina and a sister in Cleveland.

Funeral services will be at 10:30 tomorrow at Hines' funeral home. Burial will be private.

J. H. Barnes, Sr., Funeral Set For 2 P. M. Today

Funeral services for Joseph H. Barnes, sr., fraternal leader and lifelong resident of Washington, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the George W. Wise funeral home, 2900 M street northwest.

Mr. Barnes, 77-year-old retired stone worker, died Monday at his home, 2608 Dana place northwest. He was founder of Washington Lodge, No. 8, Patriotic Order Sons of America, and a member of St. David's Episcopal Church.

In 1934, Mr. Barnes and his wife celebrated their golden wedding. She died a year ago, after 56 years of marriage.

Col. Burns Denies D. C. Guard Won't Return Home

By a Staff Correspondent

Richville, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Even should the District's 260th Coast Artillery be inducted into Federal service if the National Guard bill is passed, its members will have at least a month at home after present maneuvers, Col. Walter W. Burns, commanding, said today.

Col. Burns' statement followed 24 hours of growing disquiet in the regiment after publication in Washington of a report that the 260th might not return from camp before going into Federal service. The first intimation the organization had of the report was in telegrams, telephone calls and letters from relatives in Washington.

"I am not at all concerned personally by the report and I would be very much concerned if I did not expect to have a month in which to close up my own affairs," Col. Burns said.

"Publication of such a report at home," declared Maj. Arlington A. McCallum, regimental chaplain, "has seriously affected the morale of the regiment for the time being. The men need some assurance that their families will be relieved of further worry."

Funeral Today For Mrs. Pile

Funeral services for Mrs. Bertie Viola Pile, wife of Henry W. Pile, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Lee funeral home, Fourth and Massachusetts avenue northeast, with burial in Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Pile, a native of Washington and daughter of the late Ensign Samuel Cross, United States Navy chief gunner, died Tuesday at her home in Norfolk, Va., after a lingering illness.

Besides her husband she leaves a sister, Mrs. William C. Buckingham, of Washington, and two brothers, Clifford E. Cross, of Colonial Beach, Va., and Samuel E. Cross, of Washington.

PDS Presents Piano Soloist

The guest artist this morning on the PDS program will be Miss Karlian E. Meyer, 1422 Forty-fourth street, northwest. Miss Meyer has played for churches and private entertainments in Washington, and she has given a full length recital in Baltimore and Washington in the past year. Miss Meyer has a three year scholarship at the Peabody Conservatory. She will broadcast over Station WMAL.

"Station PDS Presents," broadcast by Lee Everett from the Peoples Drug Stores Studio, Eleventh and G streets northwest, is presented each week-day morning from 7:30 to 8:30 over Station WMAL as Peoples Drug Stores in cooperation with The Washington Post. Anyone over 16 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. Studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Contract Bridge

On today's hand Mrs. M. R. and her partner were doubled and set badly. She submits the hand for criticism; sitting South, Mrs. M. R. held:

♠ A Q 4 3
♡ A Q 8 3
♣ A Q 8

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	2 ◇

"What should I do now?" she asks.

A good many players would make a takeout double, asking partner to name his best suit, but a pass seems the wiser course. Most partners will extend themselves to respond to a one-bid, and if North is not a timid bidder, South, with three broken ace-queen suits, will do well to pass. A severe penalty may well be the price for forcing the bidding if partner has, as indicated, a trickless hand.

Ralph L. Hebbard Due to become Water Registrar

Ralph H. Hebbard, acting water registrar for the District since October, is slated for the registrar's post, it was revealed yesterday.

He would succeed Edward Grove, whose retirement papers are now before the medical board of the Civil Service Commission. Grove is leaving the service because of disability.

Other problems also exist in the department. A vacancy was created by the death of William F. Franklin, clerk, who died July 12. Percival Melbourne, also assistant water registrar, will retire September 30 for age. He has been with the District 47 years.

Hebbard, who will be 53 on August 24, came to the District from Lansing, Mich., to work in the Water Department as a laborer. He progressed through the various channels in the department until his present position.

Newsmen Aboard Clipper 'Marooned' On South Sea Isle

Canton Island, Pacific Ocean, Aug. 13 (INS).—Bound for New Zealand on a preview of the new Trans-South-Pacific Airway, a group of American newspapermen were temporarily marooned here today in this remote midocean island which has become the newest American colony.

The Pan American California Clipper, aboard which the preview flight is being made, sustained minor wing injury in leaving its dock here during a strong ebb tide. Capt. Cluthe, in accordance with air line's safety procedure, ordered the ship held here 24 hours.

The press representatives immediately organized expeditions to explore the colony which has been established on a tiny coral atoll more than 4,000 miles from the mainland.

Japan's Only Fear Is U. S. Fleet, Says Dr. Thorning

San Francisco, Aug. 13 (AP).—Dr. Joseph Thorning told interviewers on his return today from a tour of the Orient to study sociological conditions that Japan "is confident that Britain is disintegrating and is all set to cash in on the booty."

Asserting the "hour of decision is at hand" for Japan, the Washington resident who made the tour as a representative of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, added:

"There may be shortages of things in Japan, but it is a long way from war weary and will move in on the Dutch East Indies and French Indo-China—then the Philippines.

Halve Plane Order, U. S. Urges Britain

By the Associated Press

A British spokesman revealed yesterday that William S. Knudsen, national defense production expert, had suggested halving of England's request for 3,000 American airplanes a month.

Arthur B. Purvis, chief British purchasing agent in this country, said his government was now studying a counterproposal from Knudsen calling for between 1,300 and 1,400 airplanes a month beginning "late in 1941."

The Briton explained that, in view of America's own defense needs, available production facilities and other factors, it did not appear possible, at this time, to fulfill the original British desire for 3,000 airplanes a month beginning next January.

NLRB Revision Held Unlikely

By the Associated Press

Some members of the Senate Labor Committee expressed belief yesterday that revision of the National Labor Act at this session of Congress was unlikely in view of opposition of the American Federation of Labor to certain phases of legislation passed by the House.

William Green, A. F. L. president, conferred with the committee yesterday and at the first of a series of executive sessions arranged to consider the House-approved amendments.

Members said he told them that he acquiesced in the amendments while they were in the House with the idea that those unacceptable to the A. F. L. could be altered in the Senate and the others enacted.

Arlington Rites Today For Comdr. Eckhardt

Funeral services for Comdr. Ernest Frederick Eckhardt, U. S. N., retired, who died in Seattle, Wash., last November, will be at 11 a. m., today in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Comdr. W. H. Rafferty, U. S. N., chaplain corps, will officiate at the services and Comdr. A. R. McCann, U. S. N., will command the military escort.

Funeral Today For Harry Pywell, Retired Policeman

Funeral services for Harry E. Pywell, 54, retired District policeman, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in the Hysong funeral home, 1300 N street northwest, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Pywell, who retired July 31 after 25 years of service, died Sunday at his home, 44 Channing street northwest, after a long illness.

From 1931 until his retirement, he was attached to the Harbor Precinct. There he received several commendations for rescues. On one occasion he saved the lives of several occupants of a sailboat which capsized in a high wind.

A native of Washington, he served in the First and Ninth precincts. For two years before joining the Harbor Police he was a driver attached to the House of Detention, now the Women's Bureau.

Frank T. Cain, 54, U. S. Park Police Veteran, Succumbs

Frank T. Cain, 54, veteran member of the United States park police force, died unexpectedly yesterday at his home, 113 Stewart avenue, Alexandria.

Mr. Cain had been a member of the police force for 26 years, almost to the day, having been appointed August 15, 1914. He was one of the original members of the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard patrol, where he was serving at the time of his death.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Mr. Cain had resided in Alexandria for about 20 years. He served in the Army nine years before joining the park police.

He was affiliated with the Woodmen of the World, the Holy Name Society of St. Rita's Church, and the Washington Police and Firemen's Association.

Surviving are his wife and a daughter, Esther C. Cain.

A. C. B. S. radio show has earned well over a half million dollars for charity, and this month that charity begins to take on concrete form.

The show is the "Screen Guild Theater," which you've heard over Columbia on Sunday nights during the past year. Off the air for the summer, it's to return in October at the same time.

Hollywood's foremost stars, writers, producers, technicians, directors and what have you all have contributed their talents and services to it, the sizeable sums which ordinarily would go to them being paid by the sponsor to the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

Thus far more than 200 of the screen's most valuable assets have appeared on the programs, and it's estimated that if it hadn't been for charity their fees alone would have amounted to well over a million dollars.

The money which has gone into the fund this far adds up to $570,000. And this month Jean Hersholt, who's president of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, along with members of the executive committee, expects to announce the site they've chosen on which to build with that money a home for the aged and incapacitated who have been connected in any way with film work.

It's nice to be able to report this aspect of Hollywood life.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Slug in His Ear — BY MILTON CANIFF

...IS THIS THE WAY TO THE PRISON? WE'RE GOING INTO AN OPEN FIELD!
THE GUARDS MUST THINK WE'RE HAVING A LOVERS' STROLL... SINCE THAT WAS THE TOUCHING STORY YOU INVENTED TO DECEIVE THEM — AND ME!
YES, YES, I KNOW! — BUT YOU WILL BE PAID WELL ENOUGH TO SALVE YOUR BROKEN HEART — IF ANY!
YOU HAVE SO LITTLE REGARD FOR MY FEELINGS ... LET US SEE IF YOU ARE CAPABLE OF BEING HURT!
MILTON CANIFF

AT A POLITICAL RALLY, JOHN GETS THE FIRST TERRIFYING REACTION TO THE CHARGE THAT HE IS A MEMBER OF THE PURPLE SHIRTS!
BOO
SSSS!
TRAITOR!
PLEASE! ... AT LEAST BE FAIR ENOUGH TO GIVE ME A HEARING!
BOOO!
IT'S NO USE, JOHN! THAT DEMONSTRATION IS BEING LED BY GOVERNOR SWILLER'S OWN WARD-HEELERS! LET'S GET OUT OF HERE!
NO! WE DON'T BUDGE!

DONALD DUCK — The Tide Turns — BY WALT DISNEY

THROW OUT THE ANCHOR, BOYS! THIS IS THE "FISHIN' HOLE!
HEY, YOU! SCRAM! CAN'T YOU READ?
AW, PHOOEY!
HE WAS MAD, UNCA DONALD!
WE BETTER
GO!
PHOOEY! WHAT CAN HE DO ABOUT IT?
HOW'S FISHIN', PAL?

MICKEY FINN — A Tonic! — BY LANK LEONARD

HA! HA! HA! PHIL FINN RUNNING FOR ALDERMAN!! HO! HO! HA!
HA! HA! WHAT A POLITICIAN HE'LL MAKE!! HAW! HO! HAW!
IT'S MR. POWERS OF THE TRACTION COMPANY — HE WANTS YOUR FINAL ANSWER, MR. MINTMORE!
OKAY, POWERS! I GUESS I WAS ACTING A LITTLE STUBBORN! EVEN AT YOUR TERMS I'LL MAKE PLENTY ON THE DEAL — COME OVER AND WE'LL SIGN THE PAPERS!!

Coroner's Jury Holds Driver in Traffic Death As Brown Asks Approval for 'Crash Squad'

TRUCK OVERTURNS, DRIVER ESCAPES WITH LIFE—George Hughes, 18, of 1414 Montello avenue northeast, was pinned under his truck which overturned yesterday at Iowa avenue and Allison street northwest, but escaped with minor injuries

A coroner's jury ordered John W. Lewis, of 412 Eleventh street northeast, held for Police Court action under the negligent homicide act as Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown sought the commissioner's approval of the 40-man accident investigation squad—Washington's newest weapon against such traffic mishaps as the one for which Lewis faces blame.

On other sections of the local traffic front, meanwhile, 82 persons were announced as exempted from paying parking fines last week, and a driver was injured when his truck overturned, pinning him underneath.

Lewis was held in the death of Mrs. Vera Dove, 47, of 204 Tenth street southeast, who died at Casualty Hospital Monday of head injuries suffered when she was knocked down by Lewis' car in the 300 block of Eleventh street southeast, August 3.

It was testified yesterday that the woman was running across the street and that the automobile skidded more than 20 feet before the collision. Detective Lieut. William J. Liverman said Lewis told him he saw the woman about 30 feet in front of his car.

Maj. Brown said the request for official approval of the investigation squad was a formality. The "crash squad" probably will begin work Monday.

Maj. Brown explained to the commissioners that the 40 men selected for accident investigation work have completed a several weeks training course under Inspector Arthur E. Miller, squad commander and recent graduate of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

The special squad, Brown reported, was scheduled to make its appearance on Washington streets August 1, but a delay in receiving equipment forced postponement.

Sixty-six of the traffic tickets were adjusted by "warnings," while cancellations took care of 16 others.

George B. Howard, of 3901 Connecticut avenue northwest, had an overtime parking ticket canceled when the State Department interceded for him. He is attached to the Polish Embassy.

Other tickets canceled because of "diplomatic immunity" were those of Ignatius S. Ramos, 1434 Harvard street northwest, an attache of the Mexican Embassy, who was charged with a parking violation, and Ionia T. Hemmingson, of the Netherlands Legation, who parked within 25 feet of a stop sign.

Tickets were adjusted for Representative C. Arthur Anderson (Democrat), of Missouri, whose automobile was parked between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. on H street northwest, near Sixteenth street, and for Representative Estes Kefauver (Democrat), of Tennessee, also charged with a parking violation.

Representative Emanuel Celler (Democrat), of New York, interceded in behalf of Seymour Guthman, an attorney, of 3000 Thirty-ninth street northwest, who parked in violation of an official sign.

George Hughes, colored, 18, of 1414 Montello avenue northeast, was injured yesterday when a truck in which he was riding overturned at Iowa avenue and Allison street north, yesterday. He was pinned under the machine.

The Federal Diary:

Felix Morley Named on Board To Pass Upon U. S. Press Jobs

By Edward Ryan

Felix Morley, former editor of The Post, will represent the newspaper profession in reviewing candidates for civil service press information jobs in the Government.

Morley, who resigned from The Post to become President of Haverford College, will serve as one member of a three-man committee appointed to award final ratings in the Civil Service Commission's recent examination for principal information specialist.

Other members of the committee are Milton Eisenhower, information director for the Agriculture Department, and Clayton Taylor, Civil Service Commission examiner.

More than 400 persons took the written examination for the jobs last week. They included Government publicity writers not under civil service, and newsmen and newswomen, some employed and some unemployed, who hope for permanent Government jobs.

At present, it was estimated, there are only two key press information jobs open in Government service, and these would be filled when the ratings are completed.

Out of 462 persons who applied for the examinations, about 150 will come up for the final rating, the Commission reported. A written examination, given last week, constitutes 20 per cent of the rating, and the other 80 per cent will be based on the applicants' experience and education.

Each of the committee members, officials said, will go through all the examination papers and records of the applicants. Later they will meet as a group to give the final ratings.

Many of the Government information men, it was explained, sought to obtain a civil service rating through the exam so that if their jobs were ever placed in the classified civil service they would be eligible to fill them.

The latest examination, and the committee plan for reviewing the applicants, were announced after two other commission exams for information specialists resulted in a round of criticism from professional newsmen and Government officials.

First exam was held three years ago for Social Security Information personnel. The requirements were such that the examination brought in a supply of information novices. All but a handful of information experts stayed away from the exam, and later Government personnel directors stayed away from the civil service list in filling new jobs.

A second examination for pressmen, arranged for the wage-hour division, brought applications from 750 persons. Of these 21 passed, among the failures were top-flight newspaper executives, ace reporters, and press relations experts.

Altmeyer Sees No Retreat For Social Aid

Arthur Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, said yesterday that there would be "no retreat for social security as the result of the defense program."

Instead, he said, there was "likelihood of judicious strengthening of the act as a bulwark for the internal defense of the American economic system."

Altmeyer's views were set forth in a statement reviewing five years of social security. The law became effective August 14, 1935.

"The stabilization of family income represented by the social insurance and public assistance programs has become more important than it ever was before," Altmeyer declared. ". . . No European nation has found it necessary to curtail its social insurance program in the face of actual war."

Reviewing activities under various social security programs, he said the unemployment service placed more than 3,500,000 persons in jobs last year.

Since the national defense program has occasioned new demands for special skills, Altmeyer continued the system of State employment services coordinated with the Social Security Board "has put thousands of machinists and other skilled and professional workers onto the jobs in industries manufacturing defense materials."

Under the unemployment compensation program, he said, more than 28,000,000 workers have built up credits against the day they "face the loss of pay checks when jobs fold up."

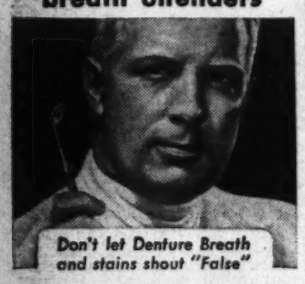
FALSE TEETH WEARERS often worst breath offenders



Dentists say—use POLIDENT

Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor.

Grateful Users Praise It

Long-lasting can only 30¢, any drug store. Money back if not delighted. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere. Hudson Products, Inc., N. Y.

POLIDENT

NO BRUSHING

Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse—and it's ready to use.
